France to Send Envoy to Smyrna in View of Refusal of British to Withdraw Troops From Chanak

Franklin Bouillon, Who Negotiated Angora Agreement Going to Smyrna

Will Urge Upon Turk Leader the Necessity of Remaining in Asia Minor

Britain to Keep Troops at Chanak—Refuses to Bind Herself to Terms

PARIS, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press.) The French cabinet today decided that in view of the refusal of the British to withdraw their forces from Chanak on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, the efforts of the French government should be directed toward preventing war between Turkey and Great Britain. To this end it was agreed immediately to send Franklin Bouillon to Smyrna.

Mr. Bouillon, who was the negotiator of the agreement reached at Angora between the French and the Turkish nationalists, will urge upon Mustafa Kemal Pasha the necessity of remaining in Asia Minor until the peace terms are decided upon.

The French negotiator will probably leave today or tomorrow and he hopes to arrive in Smyrna before the termination of the conference now in progress there between Kemal and his governmental and military chiefs for the purpose of deciding whether to push on in the face of the British military and naval concentration or await the results of the peace negotiations.

When the conference met this afternoon Premier Poincaré, Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, Count Sforza of Italy, and Lord Hardinge, British ambassador in Paris, were present. Lord Curzon at once presented the British declaration, reaching the cabinet in London yesterday, including the declaration of Great Britain's determination that her troops remain at Chanak and her unwillingness to bind herself to peace terms in advance.

Premier Poincaré, it was understood, continued his efforts to persuade the British to adopt a more conciliatory attitude.

SERIOUSLY INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

As a result of an automobile accident, which occurred in Gorham street yesterday afternoon, William Cumulley of Carlisle street is in a serious condition at St. John's hospital, suffering from internal injuries. According to the story told the police, he was riding a bicycle, collided with the rear wheel of a truck of the Standard Oil Co., operated by Harold F. Parsons of 75 Westford street. The boy was rushed to the hospital, where it was stated today that his name has been placed on the dangerous list.

GREECE MUST KEEP THRACE

Will Never Permit Turkish Invasion, Says Greek Foreign Office

Consider Thrace Part of Homeland—Essential Condition to Peace Conference

ATHENS, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—Greece will never permit the Turks to invade Thrace, which she considers part of her homeland and retention of which is "an essential preliminary condition to any peace conference." This declaration was made in a statement to The Associated Press by the Greek foreign office today.

"We have lost Asia Minor but we must keep Thrace," said the statement. "That is an essential preliminary condition to any peace conference. Our army in Asia Minor, which had been fighting for 10 years, was absolutely exhausted but the Greek nation will never permit the Turks to invade Thrace, which we consider home territory."

"Unfortunately we lack ammunition, artillery and general equipment, but hope our friends will help us in our efforts to keep the Turks out of Europe and that the English fleet will aid us in preventing the Turks from crossing the straits."

"The Smyrna massacre speaks for itself. Greece is defending Christian civilization."

"Internally Greece is quiet. There is absolutely no danger of a revolution. Foreign reports of trouble are the outgrowth of the insistence of our troops that they be returned to Piræus instead of being demobilized on the islands."

"Immediately some of the returned soldiers exclaimed sadly, 'What are we fighting us, we're fighting ourselves.'"

"Our king remains because the people demanded him and want him. By what right shall any foreign nation interfere with the expressed will of the Greek people?"

CLERKS WANT PAY FOR OVERTIME

A protest has been lodged with Mayor George H. Brown on behalf of certain clerks employed in the election commission office relative to pay alleged due them for overtime work in connection with the recent registration sessions and primaries.

The matter brings up an interesting point in that whether the duties of the Budget and Auditing commission could not be obtained there the city solicitor and it is an original of the story told the police, the attorney general should be appealed to clear up the point at issue.

The facts of the case are: During the three weeks just before and at primary time it was necessary to ask the clerks to work overtime that desired results might be obtained. A bill

TURKS SEIZE TOWN OF EZ-INE

Position on Asiatic Side of Dardanelles Now Held by Kemalist Forces

Move to Prevent Free Ingress to Dardanelles to British Atlantic Fleet

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sep. 22, 12.45 p. m. (By the Associated Press).—Turkish nationalist forces have seized the town of Ez-ine, on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, and are threatening Kuleli, an important key position on the southern side of the straits. The Kemalists are nowhere opposed.

The nationalist move, in the opinion of naval experts here, will enable the Turks to prevent free ingress to the Dardanelles to the British Atlantic fleet units which are on the way from Malta.

The important positions involved were up to today occupied by the French and the Italians, and from them the heavy Turkish batteries can command the entrance to the straits.

SLAYER STILL AT LIBERTY

Mystery of Killing of Rev. Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills Far From Solution

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 22.—The mystery of who killed the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist, and his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, wife of the sexton, seen as far from solution today as it was nearly a week ago when the bodies were found.

Authorities turned to questioning the individual members of the little church, indicating that the investigators give some weight to the theory advanced by Ellis Parker, famous Burlington county detective, that the slain couple may have been the victims of a person inspired by religious fanaticism. An obsession to be censorious of the conduct of the clergyman may have prompted the crime, according to this theory.

James Mills, husband of the dead woman, was to be questioned further today in an effort to learn the identity of the woman who first told him of rumors about the clergyman and Mrs. Mills.

Both Mills and Mrs. Hall are vigorous in declaring they do not believe stories of improper relations between the pair.

DEFENDS ATTY. GEN. DAUGHERTY

Cong. Blanton Flays Attempts to Impeach Official Who Performed His Duty

Also Scores House Republicans for Failure to Defend Him

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Attempts to impeach Attorney General Daugherty for seeking an injunction against striking railway employees and lack of defense of Mr. Daugherty by house republicans, were criticized in the house today by Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas.

"When the attorney general has performed his duty—has taken action to have the law enforced in behalf of the people," said Mr. Blanton, "there comes to this house a resolution to impeach him, to discredit his efforts before the country, and the administration with its big majority has not placed a single member on the floor to defend him. With railroads tied up bridges dynamited and the people of the United States appealing to the administration to enforce the law, the attorney general seeks to act and then there is a cry to impeach. Not a member of his party has dared to get up here and defend him."

Mr. Blanton said the people might talk all they pleased about Turkish atrocities, but that he could think of "no atrocity" greater than that at Herrin, Ill.

INDICTED FOR ARSON BY THE GRAND JURY

Armed with warrants issued following secret indictments by the grand jury for arson, State Fire Marshal Everett W. Shumway and Lieut. Martin Maher of the local police, arrested late yesterday afternoon Costas Mallos and James Nicholopoulos, both of Dracut.

It is claimed that the two men owned the old Tighe house in Collinsville at the time of a suspicious fire there in the early morning of July 1. Marshal Shumway conducted an examination of the building immediately after the fire and found incriminating evidence of arson. He found that the plaster had been torn from the walls in several places and these orifices filled with sawdust and shavings. He also discovered what appeared to be fuses leading to this inflammable material.

At that time Mallos and Nicholopoulos were arrested and faced Associate Justice Pickman in district court on the morning of July 3. "There was no complaint made against the men at the time," the grand officers saying that as far as they were concerned there would probably be no complaint brought against the men. After the dismissal of the two men, Marshal Shumway announced that he would report the fire to the state authorities as a case of deliberate arson.

He came to Lowell yesterday armed with the warrants for the arrest of the two men which had been made out after the grand jury had been secretly indicted by the grand jury for the crime of arson. With Lieut. Maher he went to the mills in Collinsville where Mallos was arrested and later James Nicholopoulos was arrested at the Merrimack mills. The two men were taken to the local police station where they were locked up.

DECISION ON RAILROAD INJUNCTION TOMORROW

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—With the railroad world waiting for the decision promised by 11 a. m. tomorrow, Judge James H. Wilkerson in the preparation of his ruling on the government's strike injunction, was without any suggestions from Attorney General Daugherty today for modification of the restraining order issued Sept. 1. Mr. Daugherty at the close of the hearing, personally explained the government's position.

"This order," he said, "speaks the last word for the government for society and civilization; for peace and fairness, for liberty and protection, for firmness and, if necessary, with force."

Until he makes his ruling, the restraining order issued Sept. 1 and extended for a second 10 days period remains in effect, Judge Wilkerson announced.

PROMINENT MEN ARE SPEAKERS

Addresses by Vice Pres. Coolidge, Gov. Cox, Gen. Edwards and Cong. Rogers

Impressive Gathering of 4000 People Pays Homage to Heroes of Three Wars

The Lowell Memorial Auditorium, gift of a grateful people, temple of peace, meeting place of thousands in the years that stretch ahead, was dedicated and turned over to the city as a public building last evening at exercises that forever will remain a fragrant memory in the minds of those who were privileged to attend.

Graced and honored by the presence of the second officer of the Union, first official of the old commonwealth, head of the northeastern department of war, the city's own representative in congress and hundreds of men and women who answered the country's calls for mobilization in 1917 to 1918 and again in 1917, the exercises were national in aspect, shrouded in the mantle of patriotism and Americanism and glorified by the knowledge that all that was being done was for the eternal honor of those sons and daughters of Lowell who had given their last full measure of devotion that this nation might live and hold her place among the powers of the world.

Prominent Men as Speakers

The speakers were His Excellency, Calvin Coolidge, twice governor of Massachusetts and now vice-president of the United States; Governor Chandler H. Cox, Mayor George H. Edwards, head of the northeastern department of war and former Yankee division commander; Hon. John Jacob Rogers, representative in congress from the fifth district; John H. Harrington, chairman of the building commission and presiding officer, who formally turned over the building to the city by presenting the key, and Hon. George H. Brown, mayor, who accepted it.

Four thousand men and women of Lowell filled every chair and seat in the magnificent Auditorium and for more than two hours paid homage to the memory of those whose sacrifices made the building and the subsequent exercises possible.

Significant from beginning to end from the standpoint of eulogy and oratory, and beautiful ceremony, the exercises were made even more inspiring by the splendid work of the Lowell Choral society, which sang "Unfold, Ye Portals" from "The Redemption," and "The Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah."

Program Excellently Executed
There was not a discordant note struck during the entire ceremony. The program was carried through without hesitation and its success for ever will remain a monument to the men of the building commission who conceived and accomplished it. The building itself was a beautiful setting. The magnificence of the interior was beyond description.

CONGRESS TO ADJOURN SINE DIE TODAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Senate House leaders had shaped their plans for adjournment of congress sine die today with only minor legislative matters to be cleaned up. A special session to be called by President Harding about Nov. 15, is in prospect.

Speeches on political and other subjects were expected to occupy the closing hours of the session today, while both houses awaited the conference report on the deficiency appropriation bill passed by the senate late yesterday as the last important bill on the republican leaders' program for passage before adjournment.

THE BICKER FAMILY

rior was enhanced and accentuated by the brilliancy of the lighting effects and charming floral decorations that were attractively arranged on the stage and in trophy hall. Completely filled, the appearance of the Auditorium must have been an inspiration to the speakers, as it was to those who were privileged to listen.

The outside doors were thrown open at 7 o'clock, although long before that hour hundreds of people lined the opposite side of East Merrimack street, and many others strolled along the beautiful esplanade on the river side. The uniforms of army and navy men were everywhere—uniforms of old blue, uniforms of blue and gray and uniforms of khaki, veterans of three wars.

Entrance of G.A.R. Men

For an hour the Auditorium filled, gradually at first, but gaining in rapidity as the hour of 8 o'clock approached. Just before 8 o'clock, a large orchestra, moving into "Marching Through Georgia" and down the main centre aisle, two abreast, marched the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, with Capt. Joseph A. Molloy, D.S.C., as escort. An audience rose and applauded the boys of '61 and '65 were given chairs of honor in the front rows. The remainder of the main floor was filled by veterans of the

In the second row were Judges George F. Lawton, John G. Leggat, Stanley E. Qua, Thomas J. Enright, Frederic A. Fisher and John J. Pickman, wearing their official robes; Charles H. Hobson, Major Frederick A. Bates and Thomas P. Douger of the board of trustees; Representatives Owen E. Brennan, Charles H. Stowey, Victor F. Jowett, Henry Achlin, Jr., and Thos. J. Corbett and members of the city government. Several rows of chairs in back were occupied by officers of military organizations, allied societies, Red Cross representatives and guests.

There is no more beautiful stage adornment conceivable than the dark maroon curtain that cuts off the gallery from the stage. When its folds were pulled apart, revealing the members of the Choral society and orchestra, an audible expression of happy surprise ran through the vast auditorium. A few had realized what the curtain concealed and the impression made upon the gathering was instantaneous and lasting. It completed the picture and became a vital part of it.

Invocation by Dr. Keleher

At just 8:25 o'clock all interior doors were closed by the ushers as Chairman John H. Harrington rose to open the exercises. He presented Rev. D. J. Keleher, one of the city's most distinguished clergymen, to give the invocation, which was as follows:

"Almighty Father, we pray to Thee. We adore Thine infinite Majesty. We thank Thee for Thy never failing goodness to us; to our nation, our state and our city.

"With joy of heart we are assembled in this noble structure to dedicate it to Thine honor, and to invoke Thy continued protection over it. It is true that it is not a temple of religion; it is a temple of citizenship. It is dedicated to the intellectual, moral, social, artistic and patriotic welfare of the inhabitants of our city, present and future. But these ends can be reached only by a people who love and fear Thee, and respect and keep Thy commandments. Grant, O Lord, that we may be always such a people, and that this edifice may be ever worthily used, and never profaned by Thine enemies; the enemies of our country's liberties, and of that sound morality which must ever be the bulwark of these liberties.

"Grant that its memorial character may speak to generations as yet unborn of our love, our gratitude, and our admiration for the men and women of Lowell who have served our beloved country in her hours of peril. May its walls stand firm through the ages to blazon to the world the history of their unflinching loyalty. And may the memory of their deeds and their sacrifices keep alive in the hearts of our people the patriotic spirit of which they have given such noble examples.

"We invoke Thy blessing upon all who have contributed to the success of this enterprise; upon the members of the civic society who conceived it, upon the members of our city government and of the legislature who made it possible, upon the governor who gave his approval, upon the architects, builders, and artisans who contributed their best efforts, upon the members of the building commission who have labored unflinchingly to bring about the happy results which we witness this day, and, finally, we ask Thee to bless all our people who willingly bear an increase of their burdens in order that our city may possess this noble and useful monument. We ask much, but we ask it with the confidence of Thine children.

Trooping of the Colors

"Dear to the heart of every true soldier, every patriot and every citizen is the desire to pay respect to 'the colors.' At the sight of our flag with its glorious stripes of alternate red and white; its white stars on a field of blue, something throbs in the breasts of all of us that cannot be described, but which only the sight of Old Glory can produce.

To every soldier the trooping of the colors had a significance that no other military exercises convey. When the flags are brought 'centre' everyone sees before him that banner which stands for all that is right and good. When this exercise commenced the vast audience was hushed.

At a word of command from Major Colby T. Kittredge, flags of our nation and from the various veterans' posts appeared from three different parts of the hall. Down the centre aisle came three flags born by three representatives of the Grand Army of the Republic. The bearers were J. K. Knowlton, Isaac Patnaude and Chester Goodwin. Six members of the Spanish War Veterans acted as a color escort. They were Carl Lambert, Albert Richardson, James Molloy, William Donahue, Fred Cheney and John F. McBride. From the entrance at the left of the stage appeared another detachment bearing the national colors and the flag of the American Legion. Joseph E. Coughlin carried the national flag, and Thomas M. Gargan carried the Legion's standard. The color guard consisted of Mark W. Flannery, sailor, and George M. Walsh, soldier. From the right appeared the national colors and the Spanish war flag. The colors were carried by Carl F. Tith and George E. Everett. The guards were John H. Ward and John M. Lund, Spanish War Veterans.

As the flags, with their color guard, made appearance the audience rose and came to rigid 'attention.' To the front of the stage came the squads, and at a word of command faced the audience. At 'present arms' eight guns were snapped to position by the guards. Ruglers Riggs, Reagan, Lamoreaux and Carl 'played up the colors.' At the command of 'order arms' the guns were snapped back to the rear. The flags were then placed in positions at either side of the stage.

The entire ceremony was simple and lasted but a few minutes, but it was perfectly executed and there are few who witnessed it who will ever forget its impressiveness.

At a word from Chairman Harrington the audience then rose and sang 'America.'

Vice President Coolidge's Speech

In presenting Vice President Coolidge, Chairman Harrington brought to mind the fact that the act under which the Auditorium was built was signed by him during his last term as governor of Massachusetts.

The vice president spoke as follows: "In the erection of this memorial the people of Lowell have put in serviceable and enduring form their appreciation of the men and women who have served their country in the days of national peril. The contribution which the military forces have made to the well-being of America is beyond estimation. It reaches all the way from the little band of Pioneers under the command of Miles Standish down to the gigantic expeditionary force abroad, supported by an even larger force at home, under command of General Pershing. The defense and the perpetuation of liberty has rested upon the determination of the American people to pledge to its support their fortunes and their lives. When this spirit has no longer been cherished by a people, they have fallen prey to those who did cherish it, their heritage has been destroyed, and their name has been blotted out from a further effort on history. This Auditorium will stand along with your army as a citadel for the defense of American liberty.

MASSACHUSETTS BAK-ERY TO CHANGE HANDS

Negotiations are under way for the purchase of the Massachusetts bakery in Hildreth street, the home of the Honey Crust bread, by Henry J. Turcotte, a well known business man of this city. It is expected that the final papers in the transaction will be signed within a week or ten days and that Mr. Turcotte will take possession of the business by Oct. 1.

The Massachusetts bakery is one of the largest of its kind in the city, the weekly output being about 30,000 loaves. It is now owned by Adam Gullotta, whose plans after transferring it to Mr. Turcotte will be to retire and look after his real estate. In connection with the shop, there are also three buildings, the home of Mr. Gullotta in Hildreth street, the home of the firm in the shop in Allen avenue and a large garage. Mr. Turcotte will buy the business and real estate.

life of Massachusetts. When the last call came two of her sons left the halls of congress, putting aside the authority of civil office to wear the uniform of their country. Major Augustus Fox, congressman of Essex, and your own body guard, Private John Jacob Rogers of Middlesex. One gave his life, and sleeps with his comrades at Arlington. The other, preserved and restored to the public service, is here to honor this occasion. These men are typical of the spirit of this proud city and of that which has gone into the creation of our commonwealth and the establishment of our nation.

"Our country has neither lost nor forgotten this spirit. It is not lacking in the estimation of its value, nor does it fail in the bestowal of the honor which is its due. It holds it as its most precious possession, and will cherish it forever.

Great Sacrifice

"This attitude of the people toward those who make up our military forces has and can have but one source. It arises from the realization of the great sacrifice which they make. This is not alone in time of war, from which happily we have been spared, but it is also their condition in time of peace. The financial return to those in the service is necessarily small. While it is certain, it is meagre. The private must enlist with a higher motive than for the pay he is to receive. The officer must stay in the service as a result of some other sentiment than that which arises from his financial returns. Yet American manhood and womanhood have not failed to respond. Patriotism has inspired our forces from the private to the chief in command, generously bestowing on our country the highest order of ability, the deepest devotion to the line of duty. No other country can boast of such sacrifice and such devotion. It is this splendid service in war and peace which this monument has been raised to glorify.

"Our country will maintain this ancient spirit. It will maintain an adequate army and navy, ever ready to keep order, insure the administration of justice, perpetuate the freedom of the people at home, and secure the rights of our citizens and uphold respect for our flag abroad.

Remove Causes of War

"While our country will shrink from no sacrifice ever to maintain its ideals, it is by the arts of peace that it ultimately expects to serve itself and the world. It cherishes its armed forces because they are the instruments and guarantees of peace. That peace it will ever seek to promote by the only practical means, which is the removal of the causes of war. Our country stands for justice among the nations. It advocates the removal of misunderstanding by conference and negotiation. It has sought to promote international harmony by covenant and agreement, but most of all by doing right itself and exerting its moral influence in support of the doing right by others.

"It was for this broad purpose that the recent conference was held in Washington. It did not pursue an impossible and impractical proposal for disarmament. There could be no such thing. It did propose and succeed in securing an end of the building of competitive armaments and a general limitation in the construction of ships of war. It stands as a great accomplishment and an unanswerable justification of the place of America in the history of civilization.

"It has been to establish these ideals that our country has resorted to arms. Protection and defense from destruction moved the people of colonial days, a maintenance of their dear-bought heritage was the motive of the old French wars. Not merely the defense of their liberties, but an inspired will to found an independent nation, sustained the revolutionary patriots through seven years of blood and sacrifice. The extension of freedom, the washing away of the curse of human slavery, was the result of the conflict between north and south. The principle that civilization is founded not on force but on reason, that hot despotism but democracy is the ideal of the world was the justifying cause of our participation in the great war. All of these have been established by the arms of our military forces. It is a glorious record of progress and righteousness. It is the foundation of world peace.

The Memorial

"In recognition of these achievements of the living and the dead, of that part in their fulfillment which has been borne by the city of Lowell and by those who in the days of old supported the principles which have been maintained and extended by the sacrifice of its sons and daughters, this memorial has been raised. Let it stand as a testimonial to patriotic devotion in the days to come. Let it afford a meeting place for those who love liberty and cherish their country! Let it tell of the American spirit which through the sacrifice of war is forever building stronger the temple of peace!"

Governor Cox Next Speaker

Mr. Harrington next presented His Excellency, Gov. Channing H. Cox, who spoke as follows:

"It is a satisfying experience to come to such a city as this and on such an occasion as the present to share in this moment of your progress. This is a beautiful Auditorium, something that the city has needed. The civic pride which has prompted its erection in memory of valiant sons will make better and stronger the sense of the city's worth and its possibilities. We are all a great family of human beings and those agencies which facilitate our coming together are of more than material value. One of the first things which our forebears did here, when they came and established the that which meets the eye when from the summit of Christian Hill we look down upon Lowell, and survey the varied landscape hurled like a beautiful picture before us.

"This region was destined for the growth of a great industrial centre. Here nature had provided a remarkable water power, first used in a saw mill owned by Judge John Tyng, of Tanglewood. It was not a long step to the incorporation of the Proprietors of the Locks and Canals on Merrimack river, which company cut a canal for boats around the Pawtucket falls. From then onward developed the city which has grown to what we see today.

"Tonight, as we reverently pay tribute to the memories of those men who made such worthy response to the call of their country we recall with gratitude the names of some of these courageous men who so firmly laid the foundations upon which a happy and contented people have dwelt in security: Moses Hale, Phineas Whiting, Joseph Fletcher, Oliver M. Whipple, William Treston, Francis Cabot Lowell, Patrick Tracy Jackson, Nathan Appleton, Paul Moody, Kirk Boett and Warren Dutton. They were great figures in American history, factors in the creation of a mighty country and a strong and prosperous nation.

"Tonight, however, we are dealing less with the past than with the future. Yet for the future we can certainly draw inspiration from the past. This new Auditorium would not tonight stand here, we tonight would not here meet to dedicate it, but for the courage and the vision of those early pioneers in New England industry. They have succeeded as they usually do, said Charles de Gaulle, the Frenchman on political economy, who came to this city in 1834. He had caught something of the spirit of America. Those founders had set their goal; they were determined to attain it, they pursued it and they won.

"In those words of this foreman vision, uttered nearly a hundred years ago, we can find a text for modern Lowell. This new Auditorium marks an achievement, the fruits of an effort which was bound to succeed, because the people of this city always do succeed. Cities have an atmosphere, a condition maybe it is, certainly something indefinable yet definite, which compels their progress. New individuals come here, men and women from other regions of the world, men and women with the traditions of older nations behind them, men and women not familiar perhaps with all of our early history. But they find here not only wheels turning and cotton goods and other products being made. They find some elusive thing that they cannot put into words, but it is something which is essential to this nation. It is the spirit of success.

"In the history of Lowell there is, of course, much more than the story of industrial struggles and achievements. There is the record of patriotism and sacrifice that are the proud memories of all of you. Many of you must have stopped to read upon the monument erected in Monument square the names of Adolphe D. Whitney and Luther C. Ladd, two sons of Lowell who fell in the fighting April 15, 1861, at Baltimore. By their death they made immortal the fame of the old Lowell City Guards. The record of Lowell men in the World War is known by all of us. Their sacrifices are indelibly branded upon our very souls. But in all these records of the city, whether in peace or war, whether in building up an industrial centre or in defense of the nation, the distinguishing fact has always been that you have won success.

"Ours is not an old nation, as nations go. Yet we have stood firm through a good many years. We have seen our countrymen meet many tests, and come out victors. We have never failed. We can never fail so long as we keep alive that spirit of success. We shall continue to win, as we usually do—not in a spirit of vain glory, not for the single reward of material profits, but because it is in the tradition of this country to go through to the end, stopping for no obstacle, recognizing no discouragement.

"That is the American spirit; and

I Can Eat With"

A man came into this office some time ago and made the above statement. He said he had two sets of teeth and could not eat with either of them. I made him a set and he came in the office later and said they were the only ones he could keep in his mouth while eating. In fact he could chew peanuts and eat apples without the least trouble.

The reason for this is my particular method of taking impressions, study of the shape and relation of the jaw, and correct articulation of teeth.

Now, I can make you a set of teeth just as good as his. If your plate drops or breaks come in for I make a specialty of difficult cases and will examine your mouth and give you advice free of charge.

The price for sets of teeth is $2 up. Gold crowns $5. Fillings 50c up. Teeth extracted painlessly free, when plates are ordered.

DOCTOR SLAIN, THREE WOUNDED

Brookline Physician Shot
Down as He Rushed to
Assistance of Two Others

Charge of Buckshot Fatal—
Janitor Captured With
Gun in Hand

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—While going to the assistance of two police officers who had been wounded by shots fired by a drunk-crazed janitor at 1768 Beacon street, Brookline, late yesterday afternoon, Dr. Henry V. Reynolds, a prominent physician living at 112 Salisbury road, Brookline, was shot and instantly killed.

A few seconds before Dr. Reynolds happened upon the scene, Patrolman Alexander Johnstone of the Brookline police, and Bartholomew J. Connolly, a local estate manager of 5 Buxton circle, Brookline, had been wounded by buckshot from a shotgun alleged to have been fired by William Morgan, 42, colored, who lives in the basement of 1768 Beacon street.

Thomas McLaughlin of 60 Villa lane, Brookline, employed in the Brookline highway department, who was standing over a tool chest on the Beach street Reservation, opposite the house, was also hit by the buckshot, which caused an abrasion on his left arm.

Morgan Found in Closet

Shortly after the shooting, Patrolmen Allen Wilson, Matthew Moreland and the police chauffeur, Timothy Connolly, entered the basement of the apartment house. The officers pushed in a closet door and found Morgan standing behind it with the shotgun in one hand and a bottle in the other. When Morgan saw the officers, he threw up his hands and submitted to arrest.

When the police and Dr. D. M. Hassman of 1738 Beacon street reached the side of Dr. Reynolds they saw that the doctor had been shot in the chest. The full force of a charge from the double-barreled shotgun on the right side of the head.

The body of the physician lay on the sidewalk at the corner of Beacon street and Corey road. Patrolman Johnstone, who fell over a hedge on the front lawn of the house, was picked up and rushed to the Peter Bent Brigham hospital.

His chest is peppered with buckshot and his condition last evening was regarded as critical. He was conscious when found and was able to apprise other officers, who had been hurried to the scene, of the presence of Morgan in the basement.

Mr. Connolly is at the Corey Hill hospital, where he was removed in an automobile. Mr. McLaughlin was able to go to his home, where his wound will eventually be treated.

The shooting of four men caused excitement of the wildest kind in the neighborhood and immediately afterward a great crowd gathered on the scene. The body of Dr. Reynolds lay on the sidewalk covered with a sheet for more than an hour before it was removed by an undertaker.

Morgan, it was said, had been in a particularly belligerent mood since Wednesday, when he had been given his notice to leave by his employer, Mr. Connolly, owner of the block.

Mr. Connolly had some words with the janitor Wednesday, as the result of which the police were notified. An officer was sent to the house and following an interview with Morgan the latter is said to have quietly departed.

Yesterday afternoon after 5 o'clock, Mr. Connolly again visited the house. One story is that he went there to see if Morgan had made preparations to leave. Another that he went there to procure some tools.

At any rate, there were further words between Mr. Connolly and the janitor. Mrs. Morgan, wife of the janitor, told the police that when the argument between her husband and Mr. Connolly started, she became frightened and rushed to the roof of the apartment house, where she stayed. She claims she was not present in the basement when the shooting occurred.

Connolly Gets Policeman

Mr. Connolly, following words with the janitor, went out onto Beacon street and there found Patrolman Johnstone. The pair walked to the corner of Beacon street and Corey road, which is in front of the house, and stood talking.

Several persons witnessed the shooting, but the police, last evening had had no direct statement from anyone that they saw Morgan with the shotgun in his hand.

Dr. Reynolds, whose home on Salisbury road is just around the corner from Corey road, was coming through Corey road toward Beacon street and he could see Mr. Connolly and Patrolman Johnstone standing on the corner, though he, of course, could not see the front of the apartment house from which the shots were fired.

He and several other persons including George W. Hanley of 1693 Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, who appeared by Mr. Connolly as a janitor, appeared to have been on the Corey-road side of the building.

Hanley, and presumably Dr. Reynolds,

Why I Am Spending $1000 to Advertise This Event

I am spending this amount in newspaper advertising because by so doing I can sell better clothes for less money than if I did not advertise. Instead of making 20 to 30 garments a week at a profit of $10.00 to $15.00 a garment, as do some of the non-advertising tailors, I will sell five times this amount. The more I sell the greater my buying power, my overhead is less, my growth is faster. I am establishing a clientele and good will that are worth real money. I spend $1000 for advertising and at the same time save you from $7.50 to $12.00 on a suit of clothes or overcoat and also make a small profit on each garment, I sell, is it not good logic to spend the money in that way? If you have any doubt as to my ability to save you money, then do this: Come in and get a sample of woollens. See how well I am making the clothes, then ask any tailor to duplicate in quality and workmanship what I offer you. This test will convince you that it pays to respond to any announcements, and it pays me to tell you about my offer.

Read it--fine print and all. To many it will prove more interesting reading than the leading news articles on the first page of today's Sun. It is a message to men, but is also of interest to women.

By a fortunate deal I have become the owner of more than 3000 yards of fine quality woollens including imported Carr's Meltons overcoatings. These were bought from one of the largest woolen houses in New England--a firm that specializes in quality goods such as are featured by the high-priced tailors. At regular prices in unbroken bolts I would have had to pay not less than $10,500 for what I bought. Because they were not full bolts and because I was one of the few tailors in New England that could and would use the quantity offered, I bought this brand new stock of fall woollens at a ridiculously low price. THIS IS MY FOURTEENTH WINTER IN LOWELL and as you know I make men's clothes only, yet I do want the women, wives, mothers and sweethearts to come in and see what I have to offer. Most women know more about cloth than men do. They will back me up in the assertion that quality is woven into every inch of the warp and filling of every piece. The more you know about woollens the greater will be your astonishment that I can and will make a made to order suit or overcoat from such materials for as low as $25.00.

You Run No Risks—I Do Not Even Ask for a Deposit

Recently at a New York hotel there was a meeting of men interested in staging an industrial exposition. The principal speaker, a man of more than ordinary sagacity, said: (in effect) "If a community, firm or individual wishes to get back to normalcy within a reasonable length of time it is necessary that the ordinary ways of doing things be supplanted by extraordinary methods, to wake people to action, (and action is what is most needed right now). It is necessary that unusual means be used."

In this sale I am doing two most unusual things. First, I am selling Suits and Overcoats at $25.00, made of identically the same quality materials that are used in the making of garments selling at from $32.50 up to $37.50. Second, I will take orders and make them up without a deposit, whether you are a man out of a job or a retired millionaire. You can order a garment without putting a dollar for a deposit. If the suit is not satisfactory, after it is made simply say so and I will keep it. I assume all risk of loss. Such is my confidence in the clothes I make and the people I deal with.

heard shots and saw Mr. Connolly fall. He saw Patrolman Johnstone reach out to catch Mr. Connolly as he fell. Hanley, the other janitor, and William Dunkle of 133 Salisbury road saw Dr. Reynolds get out of his machine, and run toward the house. The physician had seen the officer fall over the hedge.

Doctor Dropped in Tracks

As Dr. Reynolds started from the corner to assist Patrolman Johnstone, the physician received a charge of buckshot which dropped him in his tracks. All of the shots were fired from a small doorway in the front of the block, located on a level with the basement windows and close to the front steps. The door was open, for none of the glass in the upper part of it was broken. It is presumed by the police that Morgan, anticipating arrest when he saw Mr. Connolly talking with the officer, took up his position just inside the small front doorway of the basement and fired.

Patrolman Matthew Moreland, who was doing traffic duty at the corner of Beacon and Washington streets, was apprised of the shooting and hurried to the scene. He met Patrolman Allen Wilson.

Meanwhile word had been sent to the station and Patrolman Emory Allen and John J. Sullivan were dispatched to the house in the police automobile in charge of Chauffeur Connolly.

Moreland, Wilson and Connolly ran around to the rear of the house and entered by a basement door. They found no one in the apartment, but after looking around a bit they heard a noise in a closet. Wilson pushed in the door and there found the colored janitor with the shotgun and bottle in his hands.

The janitor had evidently reloaded the weapon, for the police found new cartridges in both barrels. They also found ammunition in the janitor's pockets.

LOWELL FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL OUTING

If the hungry bunch of fish and game celebrities posing on that rustic constructed grand stand at Willow Dale yesterday had partaken of the shore dinner first, there might have been a sad tale to tell today. As it happened, the sportsmen were decidedly underweight, none having had a chance to obtain a plate of Willoughby salad and roast lamb just around the corner, therefore being in the lightweight class. No fatalities were recorded.

The collapse of the picture gallery, or one portion of it containing some four dozen stout members of the rod and gun legion, only proved to be the first comedy number on the program that was genuine. And when the members picked their ankles out of the mess of planks and beams, found their hats and dinner tickets, the club snapshot artist re-arranged the group on safety-first principles, and the rush to the dining hall ended all chances of any more spills.

Almost everybody in the fish and game world attended that highly successful banquet and outing yesterday at the big pond. The weather was just right, the air brisk, and there were notable guests from congressmen, mayors, etc., down to town selectmen from nearby precincts.

Cheering news to Massachusetts sportsmen reached old Lowell yesterday afternoon via Willow Dale park. The congressman was one of the invited honor guests of the Lowell Fish and Game Association at yesterday's outing. It was an afternoon filled with exhilarating good things from the roast lamb dinner and accessories to the last round of the old-fashioned horseshoe contest and the fat men's race as a wind-up.

It was an ideal day for the sportsmen, who made the annual outing almost a record-breaker for genuine enthusiasm and good fellowship.

Nearly everybody was there, notwithstanding the counter attractions of the day in Lowell, which of course were not neglected. Notable guests arranged to take in both the association outing as well as the memorial exercises at the Auditorium.

The guests included Congressman John Jacob Rogers, Mayor George H. Brown, Hon. John H. Burnham, president of the American Game Protective Association; Harry Thompson, president of the Pointe Fish and Game club of Manchester, N. H.; Mott L. Hartlett, conservation commissioner of New Hampshire; Arthur L. Clark, secretary of the Massachusetts Fish and Game Association; Elmer C. Leach, Walter F. (Elphard) Henry Thompson of the Winchester-Reed Co., Boston; Harold L. Crosby, Dracut; E. B. Backus, William R. Davis of Rhode Island, and others well known in New England's sportsmen's circles.

Among those unable to attend the outing were: Hon. Charles H. Allen, General Adelbert Ames, William A. L. Hazeley, state commissioner of conservation, and William C. Adams, director of the state department of fish and game. The latter sent letters of regret. Mr. Hazeley was called to an important meeting of the directors of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, and Mr. Adams sent word that he was obliged to be at the annual convention of the United States Fisheries Association in Atlantic, Ga. Both attended last year's outing here, and had a royal time.

Many Automobiles in Line

Considerably more than 100 automobiles were in line for the parade from the Hood administration building to the lake yesterday. The start was made promptly at 12:45, trumpeter Edward Rowe leading the procession in an auto also containing President Livingston of the Lowell Fish and Game Association, Secretary Willis L. Holt and Samuel McCord, well known druggist and ardent sportsman for many years.

It was a long line of automobiles of every brand and make, headed by sportsmen and American flags flying from the windshields or radiators, that slid through Lowell's main thoroughfares and skirted away for Willow Dale. The parade attracted a lot of attention, as usual.

The annual photographs were taken first, then came the dinner, a big and a grand rush for the Page catering tables, loaded to the edges with generous portions of roast lamb, salads, mashed potatoes, sweet corn, rolls, ice cream and coffee. Exactly 478 diners were handled in good style by 25 expert waiters, and then came the speechmaking and the smart smokes distributed by Secretary Holt, who carried his dinner on his right sleeve most of the time while keeping tabs on the folks spread over the banquet hall.

The line-up of dining tables filled the interior of the hall, and forced the caterers to place a hundred or more sportsmen outside on the verandas where the lake breeze obliged them to wear their headgear. For the weather man did his darndest yesterday to make it a real day for the outdoor boys—and the latter appreciated it to the limit.

"The head table of the association and its guests, nobody was late. Mayor Brown came early, and Congressman Rogers rushed up the stairway to the dining board just in time to keep a young sportsman from Westford from grabbing the last seat.

Welcomed by President Livingston, the coffee and good smokes shortly after 2 o'clock, President Livingston called the boys to order and welcomed everybody.

"I am going to call on you guests today, and I want them to just stand up, bow and sit down," thundered the president, rapping for a little more order. And he made them do it, with the exception of Congressman Rogers and Brother Burnham, who came a long ways and wanted to say a few words of encouragement to the Lowell sportsmen.

Mr. Rogers declared that he did not approve of "draining all the lakes and destroying the forests," but would do all he can to maintain the open waters of the land and preserve the national forests that are threatened with destruction. He said the secretary of agriculture has written to the commissioner of agriculture, praying the present game refuge bill. At the present time, more than 6,000,000 people fish and hunt each year in America, the nation's recreation facilities.

Mr. Burnham received a warm welcome. He told of the latest method adopted by the protective association of which he is the head, in preserving wild fowl. The season is now open he announced. And one week from today other "game seasons" are to be opened.

"You Lowell sportsmen have set a high standard in the state of Massachusetts by your policies, your honorable conduct and your campaigns for the upholding of our game protection laws," said the speaker.

"You have set a good example by leaving the seed in the covers when you do your own shooting," Mr. Burnham said in closing amid applause.

Prizes were awarded for old and young guests present. Frank Goodwin, aged 78, received one as the oldest sportsman at the dinner tables, and Paul Best, aged 11, got the other when he arose, hat in hand, and blushed handsomely.

The next number on the program was the reading of Secretary Holt's report of the annual outing.

Mr. Rogers said sportsmen in Canada are convinced that "game is coming back everywhere." Game refuges or sanctuaries, he continued, are the only means that can be adopted to keep wild game alive in the future. Laws of this kind are working out well in the northern lands, the congressman said. With the new principle of issuing federal licenses at one dollar per license, a fund of more than one million dollars will be raised by the new laws, Mr. Rogers declared. Forty-five percent of this annual fund will be used to purchase game and other wild life sanctuaries, and 55 per cent. of it used to maintain them under proper regulations. All federal licenses may be obtained at any post-office in the future, red tape will be out, and the new laws will work a wholesome effect on the country's game question.

At 5 o'clock a buffet luncheon was served to the Lowell sportsmen, who celebrated the outing by the Lowell Pine Fish and Game club in Nashua. It was a monster rally with more than 1000 sportsmen from four states present. The Nashua sportsmen, entering the Manchester clubmen, entered the Fletcher club coming down the line with a large delegation. Hon. Mr. Burnham gave his illustrated lecture, "Slashing in Siberia," the entertainment that delighted local clubmen March 30, when the Lowell men held its annual "slashing" night.

Among the Lowell clubs outing guests who made the Nashua trip with the members last night, were James A. Peck, state fish and game warden of Pittsburg, and Raymond J. Kenney, deputy chief warden, of Boston.

Radiographs

Talk Over Sea by Radio!

By N.E.A. Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Uncle Sam hopes to talk to John Bull by radio within a very short time.

His hopes are based on the successful production of a huge vacuum tube powerful enough to transmit speech over a considerable distance.

Wireless communication with England and the rest of Europe has been possible for several years. But actual conversation across the Atlantic has not yet been found practicable. The reason being the incomplete state of development in which radio telephony finds itself today.

The large vacuum tube, which radio engineers believe will enable operators to throw their voices across the sea, is the product of co-operative experiment on the part of Western Electric engineers at the Bell Laboratories here, Dr. E. R. Stokely, D. O. E. Buckley, W. G. Housekeeper and Dr. M. J. Kelly are the men to whom credit is given for the production of this special tube.

Vacuum Tube
Modern radio telephony bases its success on the vacuum tube with its capacity for converting waves of an audible frequency into those of a much higher radio frequency and hurling them out into space. Those used by amateurs today are slightly smaller than an ordinary electric light bulb. That being tested for transatlantic work stand three feet high and in from three and one-half to five inches in diameter.

This large tube is comparatively greater than the small one in power than it is in size. In 1916, when the first transmission of speech across the Atlantic was accomplished, 300 of the small tubes were used to generate the necessary high frequency power. Now it is believed three or four of the large tubes will be enough for practical conversation between America and Europe.

Features
The success of this development is due to two outstanding features:

1. The system of water-cooling the plate of the vacuum tube.
2. The process of sealing pieces of metal to glass so that a perfect vacuum can be maintained under wide ranges of temperature.

For the first change, the plate was taken out of the tube and placed below, where a steady stream of water could keep it cool. Thus a high current could be passed through it without fear of overheating the plate. The matter of insuring a complete vacuum was a problem until W. G. Housekeeper, one of the engineers, invented a method of sealing copper to glass which would make an airtight joint that would not crack at an ordinary working temperature.

"The invention of this sealing process," says Dr. W. Wilson, in charge of vacuum tube design at the Bell Laboratories, "has made possible the construction of vacuum tubes capable of handling, in single units, powers of any magnitude which may be called for in wireless telegraph or telephone transmission."

STREET RAILWAY PUT ON EXTRA CARS

The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway pressed 20 extra cars into service last night to take care of the increased traffic, due to the Auditorium dedication. The extras started out early in the evening and continued in operation all during the rush hour. At the conclusion of the exercises, the cars were again in demand, having remained in Paige and John sts. until the close. At 11 o'clock, all traffic was disposed of without inconvenience or interruption.

For the present, passengers in the Western street route will be compelled to change cars at Windsor st., as the city is reconstructing the roadway in that section from Windsor street to the end of the line. The work will be finished within a week.

Twenty-five years is the average life of a car.

BIG CROWDS IN VICINITY OF AUDITORIUM

Thousands of persons unable to secure tickets of admission to the ceremonies, crowded the sidewalks in the vicinity of the Auditorium last night. For over an hour preceding the opening exercises automobiles drove past the Auditorium in a never-ending stream.

At an early hour the sidewalks on East Merrimack street began to fill and as the hour for the exercises to begin, approached, the vast throng of people who had been unable to secure tickets of admission but wished to see as much of the event as possible filled the walks to overflowing and it was almost impossible for pedestrians to get through on their way downtown. The mall on the East Merrimack street side was kept clear only through the persistent efforts of the police and this greatly aided in the unloading of the machines as they drove into the driveway at Liberty Hall.

At 7:45 news was passed that the American Legion was approaching and would enter the main portion of the hall from Memorial hall. As the Legion approached, a familiar figure was seen at the head of his buddies and the vast assemblage cheered to the echo for the daddy of the 26th, Major General Clarence R. Edwards. The famous leader of the YD division was in civilian clothes but was quickly recognized by the huge crowd of onlookers. At this point the crowd had reached its peak and traffic on East Merrimack street was practically blocked. The kaleidoscopic picture of the thousands of people plainly visible in the bright illumination of the white way and in the glow cast from the lights on the Auditorium presented a wonderful sight and testified to the interest in the public undertaking that had been completed and was about to be turned over to the people of the city of Lowell.

Great credit is due the members of the police department who had charge of the direction of the traffic last night, both vehicular and pedestrian. There was little parking of machines in the vicinity of the Auditorium as East Merrimack street was closed except to passing automobiles from the bridge over the Concord river on East Merrimack street to Fayette street. In this stretch were placed four members of the traffic squad and they kept the machines passing in either direction without any delays.

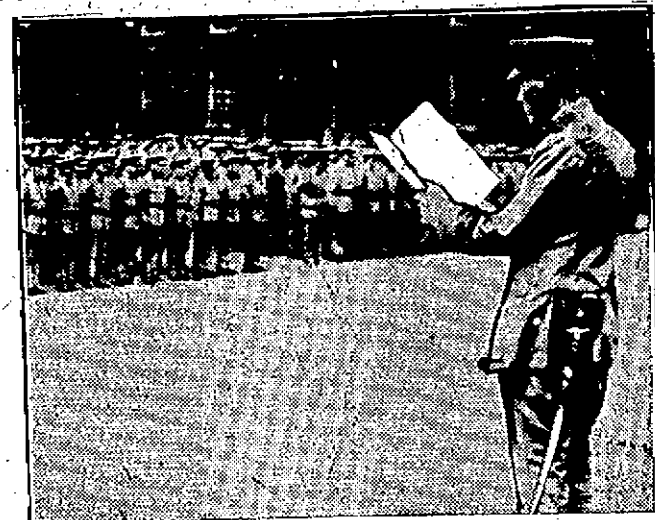

Cars were allowed to park on Brown street where, in the early afternoon, members of the city departments had marked out spaces for the parking of machines. As the hour for the opening of the exercises drew near the machines came in greater numbers and they were directed by the traffic officers on duty to park on Stackpole street with the result that they were lined heavily on both sides of this street. Row on row of machines were parked along the Merrimack square and of East Merrimack street and on they further end of the same street beyond Fayette street. In addition to this there was also a large number of cars parked in the various garages in the vicinity. It is estimated that there were over 500 machines parked in these open areas.

Traffic Officer Connors, who had charge of the traffic squad in directing the procession of machines estimated that there were about 10,000 machines passed the building during the early part of the evening.

It is almost impossible to estimate the number of pedestrians that crowded the sidewalks in the immediate neighborhood of the new edifice and made a tour of inspection of the grounds. The police were greatly taxed in order to keep the walks of the building clear so that those who had tickets might enter and they did a very thorough job.

All in all, the police deserve the greatest credit for the efficient and satisfactory work accomplished in directing such heavy traffic last evening. Everything went off as clock-work and there was not a hitch in the program.

Turks Seize Town of Ez-Ze clared Press) Views of the Near Eastern crisis here fluctuate between hope and fear.

The immediate peril is in the possibility that the Turkish Nationalist troops will attack the British positions along the Dardanelles.
It is confidently hoped that resumption of the conversations of the allied statesmen in Paris today, will lead to the sending of an invitation to the Angora government to participate in a general conference to settle the Dardanelles question and the Turkish claims.
Meanwhile, Mustapha Kemal is con-fering with the Angora cabinet in Smyrna, and the result of their deliberations is awaited here as eagerly as the outcome of the Paris discussions.

PARIS, Sept. 22.—The Near East situation seemed a little more hopeful, at least from the viewpoint of preserving allied unity upon the resumption today of the conference between Lord
Curzon and Premier Poincare.
Disturbing reports, however, continue to come from Constantinople, and it is reported that the Turkish nationalists are on the point of issuing an ultimatum to the allies demanding the evacuation of Thrace within 48 hours.

Turks Pessimistic

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press) A pessimistic view of the present situation is taken in Turkish Nationalist circles here.
It was declared yesterday that, unless the Kemalists received assurances and guarantees from the allies within 48 hours that the question of the disposition of Thrace would be settled in favor of the Turks, a serious situation would arise and it would be impossible to restrain the forward march of their army.

British Labor Opposes War

LONDON, Sept. 22 (by the Associated Press).—The attitude of the British labor party toward the present Near Eastern situation is succinctly set forth in a cable message sent today to the Australian and New Zealand laborites. The message reads:
"British labor is opposed to any war in the Near East and believes the only way of averting it is by reference of the dispute to the League of Nations, in which Turkey, Russia and Germany should be included.
"We are strongly opposed to Great Britain acting individually, and demand a settlement by discussion and

ENGAGEMENT IS BROKEN

French Girl Who Came Here to Marry Soldier
Hero to Return Home

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Marselle
Dallaire, a French maiden, awaited at Ellis Island today for a steamer to take her back home, meanwhile trying to forget that she came to America only two weeks ago, to become the bride of her soldier hero, now Professor Darbin Rowland of De Pau university, Greencastle, Ind.
After her arrival Prof. Rowland broke their engagement and asked that the Travelers' Aid society undertake her safe return to France.
Prof. Rowland came from Greencastle to greet his fiancée, he explained in a letter to the Travelers' Aid. Her affection for him was undimmed, he said, but New York was too tame for her.
"She saw nothing in America to admire. She nagged about my country, grew sarcastic about it and turned up her nose at everything. So I decided it would be a big mistake to make her my wife," said his letter.

CADILLAC FACTORY TO RUN FULL FORCE

Cadillac plans of production include the running of the factories full force during the winter, with a production even greater than that of the past 12 months, which has been the greatest in Cadillac's history.

H. H. Rice, president and general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Co., so informed Cadillac distributors assembled from all parts of the country at the annual distributors' convention at the Cadillac factory last week. Cadillac representatives from nearly 100 Cadillac distributor organizations attended the convention.

Mr. Rice sounded an optimistic note concerning the coal situation and business in general.

Lynn McNaughtin, general sales manager, stated that during the 12 months just concluded the Cadillac organization had exceeded the business of any previous 12 months both in number of cars sold and in volume of business in dollars and cents.

In conversation at the George R. Dana & Son establishment, Mr. Dana, Sr., states that the Cadillac Motor Car Co. has now built and sold over 135,000 Cadillac eight cylinder cars and the present car, the Type 51, is the result of all experience gained during the building of this enormous number of high grade cars. The company first built well, and have since devoted their science and skill to the betterment of the first idea which proved so good. Of course it is well known that the Cadillac Motor Car Co. built the first eight cylinder motor car produced in this country.

MINISTRY OF HEALING

Formally Recognized by Protestant Episcopal
Church in United States

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 22.—The Protestant Episcopal church in the United States has been formally placed on record in recognition of the ministry of healing. The recognition was accorded last night by a vote of the House of Bishops attending the session of the House of Deputies at the general convention here.

The bishops' action authorizes clergy and lay members, who believe they possess powers of healing, to prepare themselves "by care and prayer and theological and medical study for their proper and safe exercise."

A commission to consider the matter of healing further was named.

ATTACKS SEN. FRANCE

Democrat Call Ohio Senator
Exponent of Radicalism
and Communism

BALTIMORE, Sept. 22.—The democratic state convention yesterday declared Senator Joseph I. France, republican candidate for re-election, an exponent of radicalism and communism.

Senator France was criticized in both the keynote speech and in the platform. The platform said that France "stands neither for democracy nor republicanism, he having repudiated his own party and having been repudiated by the best thought in the party."

A plank favoring light wine and beer is in the platform.

TIVERTON OFFICER SHOT IN LIQUOR RAID

FALL RIVER, Sept. 22.—Officer A. H. Robison of the Tiverton police department was shot last night while approaching the farm of Manuel Diaz on Huglar Marsh road, Tiverton, to make a liquor raid with four other officers. The police were stealing up a wooded line toward the farm when a shot was fired. A bullet pierced Robison's right lung. He was taken to St. Ann's hospital, Fall River, where he is in a dangerous condition. A warrant has been made out for Diaz's arrest. Chief of Police Massey was shot in the hand by a second bullet.

MORE CHARTER DOPE FROM CITY HALL

Any petition calling for a new form of charter need not pass through the city clerk's office. The elections commission has full charge of the matter and not even the city council will have a say in it. At least this is the belief expressed today by city officials after digging into law books at hand.

Yesterday it was stated at the hall that the city clerk would be the first to receive the petition as is required by law that it be filed with him and that he would have five days in which to send it through the proper channels before sending it to the secretary of state. Following yesterday's story there was more or less talk of the possibility of a new form of charter being placed before the voters in November.

This led to arguments on the law with the result that recent laws were brought to light which seem to exclude both the city clerk and council from any dealings with a petition for a charter and to place the matter directly in the hands of the elections commission. In chapter 50 of the general laws, which went into effect on January 1, 1921, there is a section which deals with definitions of various terms used in the law.

In the first paragraph it says that the aldermen or board of aldermen shall be construed to include the elections commission of Boston and Lowell as to all matters coming within the scope of their powers and duties and as to such matters, shall not apply to the city council of either city. In the fourth paragraph similar language excludes the city clerk while in paragraph 1 the mayor is excluded.

While no petition favoring any form of charter had been filed with either the city clerk or the elections commission one is expected any day now. It was reported from the city clerk's office today that if a petition were presented there the person or persons would be immediately referred to the elections commission.

It is thought that an opinion will be asked from the city solicitor regarding the entire matter as with the laws making the matter a rather difficult one to understand some definite statement is wanted one way or the other.

Clerks Want Overtime Pay

for 63 hours overtime was put in but this was deemed excessive by the budget and auditing commission and it recommended that payment be withheld. The mayor stood by the commission. The overtime work was then submitted on a separate payroll but once again it failed to get by the commission and the mayor.

Now, according to a member of the commission, comes the rub. He claims that in 1920 the elections commission was created by a special legislative act. Under section 59 of the general laws he claims that the commission is empowered with complete control over its clerical force; that it may employ the number of clerks deemed necessary and that it shall pay such compensation as is deemed sufficient.

Finding this out, this member insists that the budget and auditing commission and the mayor are not in accord with the law when they refuse to pay the money. He also pointed to the fact that the present form of charter provides the commission with the same powers as it always had.

It is possible that an opinion will be asked on the matter in the near future. Verbal protests have been lodged with the mayor over the matter but what step is to be taken next is not known.

NEW TARIFF RATES IN EFFECT

Law Delegates Broad Powers Under Elastic Rate Provisions to President

Millions of Dollars of Revenue Expected to Be Raised Immediately

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The new rates of the tariff act of 1922 were applying today on the flow of American imports. The law, marking a new phase in the history of American tariff making, is in effect today. The president of broad powers under the elastic rate provisions, went into effect at midnight. Millions of dollars of revenue, officials believe, will be raised immediately from the assessment of the new duties on goods in bond or in transit to ports of entry.

With the going into effect of the law, signed yesterday by President Harding, the tariff commission, as the agency through which the president will exercise his new authority to increase or decrease rates and to change from foreign to American valuation as the basis for assessing ad valorem duties, assumes a greatly enlarged function.

In addition to extensive investigations into costs of production at home and abroad as a basis for recommendation of rate or valuation changes to the president, upon the commission, also, devolves the responsibility of determining any case of discrimination against American commerce and trade in foreign countries and of making recommendations as to means for meeting such situations.

DISTRICT COURT HOLDS BRIEF SESSION

This morning's session of the district court was a very short one. The business of the court being completed in half an hour. There were only four cases on the docket and they were quickly disposed of with the result that the city coffers were enriched by $105 and the state treasury received $15 toward its monthly total of motor vehicle law violations.

Martin Sopot pleaded guilty when he was charged with illegal keeping in violation of the prohibition law. Because of extenuating circumstances, as the man has three small children, he was given a month in which to pay the usual fine of $100 which was levied on him. The court made the statement that he would not make such allowances in the future.

The temptation of an apple again drew man into trouble when Anthony Winkler appeared to answer to the charge of larceny of fruit from an orchard. The arresting officer said that he apprehended the man last night as he was emerging from an orchard with a bag of apples. The man admitted taking the apples and he was fined $5 by the court.

Failure to have his car reentered cost Joseph St. Louis $10 when he was found guilty of violation of the motor vehicle laws. St. Louis testified that he had traded cars last August and had forgotten to have his previous registration transferred.

The case of Thomas J. O'Loughlin, charged with violation of the motor vehicle laws on two counts, and that of Wilfred Potvin, charged with felonious assault, were continued to September 28. John Molloy, who was charged with drunkenness, was held over to tomorrow morning for disposition. The case of Wilfred Chase, charged with violation of the milk law, was held over to October 20.

Lectures by prominent industrial traffic managers will be given under the direction of Professor W. J. Cunningham, a man of national repute. Further information may be secured by applying to the Graduate School of Business Administration, 17 University hall, Cambridge, Mass.

PRESENTED WATCH TO CAR INSPECTOR

As an expression of their appreciation the men who work in the Boston & Maine roundhouse at Middlesex street under Michael Morris, chief car inspector, presented him with a Hamilton watch at noon today. The watch was an expensive one and was suitably engraved.

Some time ago Mr. Morris was badly beaten by several men who have not been apprehended and in the melee his watch was broken by the rocks and stones which were thrown at him. Mr. Morris is quite popular with the men who work under him and they clipped in and bought him this new Hamilton watch as a token of friendship and appreciation.

CO-OPERATIVE BANK LEAGUE
FITCHBURG, Sept. 22.—Three hundred and fifty delegates representing 55 institutions, attended the opening of the 24th annual convention of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League here today.

Mayor John B. Feltows welcomed the delegates in a speech in which he stressed the importance of co-operative banks. Work of the year was reviewed by President James H. Clark of Westfield and H. P. Taylor of Boston, secretary-treasurer. The principal address this forenoon was given by James F. Williams of Boston, an editor, who discussed: "The home owner as a national defender."

Conrad E. Spens Named Under New Coal Distribution and Anti-Profitteering Act

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Conrad E. Spens, vice president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway Co., today was appointed federal fuel distributor under the new distribution and anti-profitteering act.

President Harding today signed the administration coal distribution and anti-profitteering and the fact-finding coal commission bills.

FIRE APPARATUS DISABLED

Ladder Number 2 of the Lowell Fire department was temporarily disabled in Merrimack square about 10:10 this morning, while turning from Prescott street into East Merrimack. The front right wheel became caught in the mud-guard and was released only after much exertion on the part of the men in charge. There was no damage, however, and the apparatus continued on its way.

CHILD INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

In an endeavor to avoid striking a little girl in Westford street this morning, Magnus Von Loesche of 12 Avis road, Arlington, drove his automobile on to the sidewalk and after striking a pole, crashed into a fence, demolishing a part of it. The girl, Lemelle Clough, aged six years and residing at 71 Staples street, was struck, however, sustaining minor bruises to her knee, which were treated at St. John's hospital.

According to the story told the police, Loesche was operating his machine through Westford street at about 9 o'clock this morning and when the world's best cinnamon is produced in Ceylon.

Inventor of Mechanical Fog Horn Dead

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—Llewellyn D. Lothrop of Gloucester, inventor of a mechanical fog horn in wide use on maritime vessels, died at a hospital here today. As a ship chandler he was said to have sold more fish hooks than any other man in the world. Mr. Lothrop also invented a swivel for multiplying the number of hooks on a line. He was a native of Appleton, Me., and lived in Dover, N. H., for many years.

Of Nichols street, the little girl ran from behind another automobile into the path of his car. In order to avoid striking the girl the driver swung onto the sidewalk and after sideswiping a pole, crashed into a fence. The machine was damaged, but the driver was not injured.

Examiner Says Miss Lavoy Was Murdered

MINEOLA, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Dr. Arthur D. Jaques, who examined the body of Miss Edith Lavoy, Freeport school teacher, after she had been killed by a bullet through the head, declared today in county court at the trial of William M. Creasy of Fort Thomas, Ky., charged with the murder, that the wound was not self-inflicted. He made the answer in replying to a hypothetical question asked by District Attorney Weeks, who is conducting the prosecution. Creasy claims that Miss Lavoy shot herself.

Former President of Telephone Co. Dead

KEENE, N. H., Sept. 22.—Jasper N. Keller, former president of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., died early this morning at his home in Surry where he had spent his summers for 18 years. He was stricken with cerebral hemorrhage on Aug. 14, from which he never recovered. In early manhood Mr. Keller became acquainted with the late Theodore N. Vail, while the former was a railroad telegrapher and the latter a railway mail clerk. He is survived by his wife, two sons and a daughter, all of Boston.

ad its birth here in New England, that is the spirit we must keep, and everywhere in our country. We mention the names of some of the early days of struggling towards us. Yet we know that there were others, whose names are written so plainly in history, but out whom the achievements of the region could not have been. So tonight, we know that the spirit of the Lowell in the years to come, will depend not alone upon men who are prominent in leadership, but also upon every worthy individual who contributes something to the progress. Every person, in all has something to give for the better of the city. That is the essence of democracy, that opportunity responsibility rest upon all of us. The city's fame, the city's good reputation, the city's existence, rest upon the shoulders of all the people in it. And it is the people here could not read the honorable record of the days which have gone I know they would appreciate the better what the present community and the present responsibility are.

to this Auditorium inspired by the not purposes is not only a great ceremonial convenience, it is not simply evidence of your material prosperity. It is not merely the vision of a man. It is far more than that. It is a symbol of the community. Into it has been woven the heart throbs of the people. Here the people of all will meet on various occasions, here much of the future actively the city will center. Here much of public opinion will find voice. Here we dedicate a fitting memorial to all that Lowell has been in the past. Here tonight we give expression to our firm faith of all that will be in the future. In this memorial of our appreciation to those who have lived and died for the glory of Lowell, we proclaim anew our purpose that our contribution to our day generation, shall be in their spirit of devotion. As they have served, so shall serve. As they have been, so we shall strive to be worthy. As they have succeeded, so we shall succeed. Even as they, so we to the extent of our ability shall contribute to the honor and glory of Lowell, and her proud mother, old Massachusetts.

General Clarence B. Edwards
Hon. Chairman Harrington introduced Gen. Clarence B. Edwards as the most popular commander in New

J. GEN. CLARENCE B. EDWARDS

land," the biggest ovation of the evening was recorded. The general, attired in neat civilian clothes, saluted the audience, addressed the World War veterans as "fellows," referring to the G.A.R. veterans, the general said: "They stood years of war and they did not lose the comforts we had. They were tougher than we, tougher in a great many ways."

"As I came into this building tonight," he continued, "I thought of it as a peace temple. We hear much talk of peace, talk that is intermingled with a great deal of false logic. For example, a syllogism of this sort is introduced: Soldiers love war; George Washington was a soldier, therefore, George Washington loved war. Such a deduction is false logic, and I hope and trust the people of Lowell will not listen to it."

"It is delightful to come to a people who, like you, make up the sustaining power behind the soldiers and erect such a magnificent temple as this with an assembly hall for veterans where traditions may be cherished. I've just been with the Legion tonight and I told the members assembled there that the chief glory lies in the fact that it did not differentiate between those who died in the front line trenches and those who were eating their hearts out to be killed. The Legion had due recognition of those who tried, and so I say, cherish your squad, your platoon, your battalion, your regiment and your division. Join whatever organizations and societies you wish, but first of all, I say, join the Legion."

"In the city of Lawrence, they thought it wise not to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the city, but the Legion took it up and pushed it over successfully. Let questions of jealousy be wiped out from the heart and know that your duties are with the municipality."

"Foreign born citizens are all Yanks in America, for a Yank is a man who will go forward and face a nest of machine guns and die with a smile on his face. I saw patriotism abroad, but when a people is willing to be taxed $10 each for the erection of a memorial such as this, it is the height of patriotism."

"The people of Lowell should realize that we drafted men's lives in the great World war, but we didn't draft capital and labor. We should, therefore, have that appreciation and thoughtfulness and be as potent on the reconstruction of this country as our peers of the Grand Old Army and the Spanish war."

Taps and Reveille

"To a soldier in camp the sounding of 'Taps' means lights out, everyone to bed and sweet dreams. Previous to this exercise, Mr. Harrington explained what was coming so that none would be alarmed when the lights were lowered. At a command two buglers played taps. As the notes came from their instruments the lights were gradually lowered and as the last note sounded through the structure, all lights in the hall, with the exception of the exit lights, were out. With scarcely a sound to be heard,

"Taps" was echoed from Trophy hall by two more buglers. The effect was impressive, for it seemed as if one were actually hearing, this beautiful call echoed around a large encampment."

Hardly had the echo died away than reveille was sounded by the buglers in the main hall. As the blasting notes came from the trumpets, with their command for all sleeping soldiers to prepare for the work of the day, the lights were slowly turned on in a manner to portray, as far as possible, the rising of the sun. The echo-buglers repeated reveille from the trophy room."

Address of Congressman Rogers

Frught with significance and poignantly portraying the feelings of a grateful people, were the words of Hon. John Jacob Rogers, Lowell's own congressman.

"Four years have passed since the ending of the conflict," he said in opening. "Our five million defenders have laid down their arms. The great war belongs to history. Already it is but a memory—a memory fraught with heartbreak to many, with sadness to all."

"Three times within a span of less than two generations has America gone forth to battle. Once we fought against slavery and disunion. Once we rose up to sweep European tyranny, cruelty and misgovernment from

this hemisphere; and once we grappled in the titanic struggle to keep civilization safe. Always our purpose was without selfishness. Always we con-

"Men and women of many races meet in the market place of Lowell," continued the congressman. "But love of our people and loyalty to her cause and ideals do not, thank God, hang upon an extended lineage in America. Had they so depended, the historians of the World war would have had a very different tale to tell. No eddy in the whole land, whatever the nativity or racial unity of her citizens, can boast a more abundant offering of her sons than can Lowell."

"Nor should we tonight omit reference to the part of the women of Lowell. As our greatest president once said, I am not accustomed to the use of language of eulogy; I have never studied the art of paying compliments to women, but I must say that if all that has been said by orators and poets since the creation of the world in praise of women were applied to the women of America, it would not do them justice for their conduct during this war."

"Lowell rejoices to do honor to her brave men and devoted women. Here, today, it records and dedicates. Here, today, we pledge to remember. This is the Lowell Auditorium—a memorial to our gallant dead, who died in war; a tabernacle for those who offered their all for country; a conference for everything that shall be

Secret of a Good Disposition

A woman who carefully safeguards her health, benefits her disposition. She will be happy and attractive to all. The world unfortunately is filled with sweet women who are unhappy because they are held back from usefulness by troubles so common among them. Carelessness and nervousness rapidly destroy good dispositions. Sickly, all-worn-out women cannot make happy homes."

Lydia E. Plankham's Vegetable Compound is a safeguard of women's health. This is clearly proven by the many letters we are continually publishing in this paper, from women who have been restored to health and happiness by its use after years of suffering. Why don't you try it?—Adv.

Vice President Calvin Coolidge, with Mrs. Coolidge and Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston arrived at the Middlesex street depot at 4:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the party coming in the regular train from Boston. A crowd of some 3000 people had gathered to witness Mr. Coolidge's arrival and as he came down the steps from the train he was greeted with cheers and the vice president's salute of 19 guns which was fired by Battery B from a point just above the station.

As Mr. Coolidge stepped from the train he was met by Congressman John Jacob Rogers and a squad of men in military uniform. Three automobiles were in waiting at the side of the station to which a large force of police officers kept open a lane for the party. Capt. David Petro and Lieut. Martin Connors swept down the lane a few paces in front of the official party. Capt. W. C. MacBrayne, vice president, flanked by Lieut. Donald R. McIntyre and Lieut. Arthur L. Eno, with a secret service agent a few paces in the rear.

As the vice president came by, the crowd closed in behind him, forgetting there were ladies in the party. It was some time before the women, who had been taken care of by Mr. Stearns, were brought to the waiting cars. When the crowd, which had gathered about uses, May it be a potent influence for good in this city and in the commonwealth, standing for patriotism, for enlightenment and for social intercourse, that they may be glorified through Jesus Christ our Lord. And now to God's gracious care and protection we commit you. The Lord bless you and keep you; the Lord make His face to shine upon you and be gracious unto you; the Lord lift up His countenance upon you and give you peace, both now and evermore.

Chairman Expresses Thanks

Just before the audience rose to sing "The Star Spangled Banner," Chairman Harrington said a final word. He explained the method to be followed in exit and publicly expressed the commission's grateful appreciation of the work of the Choral society and its conductor, which was given freely, with absolutely no expense involved on the part of the commission. To those who furnished floral decorations and motor conveyances, he also extended thanks.

The assembly then rose and with the Choral society leading, sang four verses of the national anthem to bring the exercises to a close.

Capt. Wilson in Command

One of the most taxing and well managed jobs in connection with the exercises was that assumed by Percy J. Wilson, chief marshal. It was his duty to supervise all seating arrangements and ushering, and to make suitable escort to the distinguished guests and in fact, take complete charge of the situation as it developed up to the actual time of commencement.

He was assisted by nearly 100 uniformed men of the army and navy, who served as ushers, ticket examiners, directors, orderlies and inside and outside door-men.

Walter H. Jones was in charge of parking, assisted by J. F. McGrath and James Clancy.

Capt. Wilson had for his adjutant, Andrew R. Jenkins, Stephen Kearney was in charge of first floor ushers, with Michael H. Harrington and James H. Connor dividing the supervision of the balcony.

Special orderlies were: Roland Black, for Vice President Coolidge; Irving Loucraft, for Governor Cox, and Daniel P. Brennan, for Major General Edwards. Other orderlies were Albert Bourgeois and Walter Matthews.

The distribution of programs was handled by Winthrop Dean, with Randolph Reed in charge of supply. Other program men were Walter G. McNamee, Raymond Ingham, Paul Halstead and Paul Jarvis.

Karl Linck, Raymond Slater, James Sheehan and John W. Brooks were ticket examiners, while W. C. Kirk served as general outside man on the main steps. Checking was in charge of Wilbur J. McGrady, Fred Nichols, Anthony Gosselin, John Brown and George T. Morone.

The main floor ushers were Dr. Nathan C. Pfeiffer, Eugene Loup, Donald C. McIntire, Joseph A. Mulloy, Leander F. Conley, Walter C. Wilson, Alexander D. Mitchell, Frank Dedge, and William H. Prescott.

Ushers in the corridor around the circle were Clarence Morton, Aubrey M. Butcher, Ralph H. Derby, W. T. Hazeltine, Caleb Rogers, Joseph P. Donahue, Cornelius J. O'Neill, Frank H. Jones, Leon Savre, Paul Burns, Edward W. Gallagher and Victor Turnquist.

Inside and outside balcony ushers were: E. S. Belley, Frank E. Hart, Allen Gerson, Thomas Higgins, Carroll A. Pluggree, R. T. Casey, Gilbert Garnett, William Thomson, Joseph M. Dussault, John H. King, J. H. McSherry, A. F. Belletier, Joseph M. Kelly, Dr. F. M. Caldwell, Ariston K. Barrows, Benjamin F. Moloney, George H. Allard, Lewis Putnam, George R. Garmon, Joseph Garmon, C. F. Dupes, and Richard D. Donohue.

Stage ushers were: Dr. Robert L. Jones and Dr. Schuyler R. Walter. Patrolmen on duty in the building were: James Noonan, Louis Lapan, Walter Nickles, John J. Donovan, Paul Spillane, William Nelson, Owen Conroy, J. Graham, W. McBride. On the way, J. Graham, W. McBride. On the way, J. Graham, W. McBride.

The following mayors of Massachusetts cities, guests of Mayor Brown, occupied seats in the mayor's section: Hon. Daniel W. Mahoney of Lawrence, Hon. John V. Kimball of Malden, Hon. Christopher Harrison of Everett, Hon. Peter F. Sullivan of Worcester, Hon. Bernard J. Golden of Woburn, Hon. Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge, Hon. William A. Bradford of Quincy, and Hon. Percy W. Wheeler of Gloucester.

The large crowd was admirably handled both inside and outside the building by the military, under command of Capt. Percy J. Wilson, chief marshal, and the police, under command of Lieut. Bartholomew Ryan.

Chief Edward F. Saunders of the fire department, with a score of men, were on duty throughout the evening and gave valuable assistance in directing persons to proper sections.

The ushers were not hurried in their work, for the crowd came gradually and in consequence there was little or no confusion.

For more than half an hour before the program opened, Knell Borjes' orchestra gave an excellent concert program. The orchestra also played for the Choral society numbers.

Much admired was a novel standard in copy hall, in which the words "American Legion" were beautifully worked out amid a mass of varied colored letters.

More than a score of times expressions were heard on every side in commendation of the beautiful sweeping balcony, but particularly of the fact that no posts, pillars or obstruction of any sort cut out a full vision of the stage.

The distribution of tickets for the exercises was one of the most annoying and unsatisfactory duties that fell to the lot of the building commission. There was a demand for more than 12,000 tickets, while the commission had only 4000 to give out. It was plainly impossible to satisfy everybody, but the commission did the very best it could under the circumstances.

It must have been a revelation and inspiration as well to the members of the new board of trustees, who will be taking the building's affairs, to see the vast interior filled with people. They visualized, perhaps, what the future has in store.

East Merrimack street, as light as day, under the glow of the new white way lamps, little resembled the street of two years ago when the cornerstone of the building was laid. The transformation of this thoroughfare has been remarkable, due entirely to the Auditorium.

Most active in the affairs of the Legion during the day was Robert J. Rutledge, post adjutant. His automobile covered many miles within the city and he was on the job from morning until late at night.

LEGION POST BANQUET IN MEMORIAL HALL

One of the big features of yesterday's exercises was the American Legion banquet held in Memorial hall at 6 o'clock with nearly 500 people in attendance. According to everyone present, it was the best affair that the legion post has staged since its institution.

Harry Cole, a former mess sergeant, served the banquet. The legion members, with invited guests, filed into the hall shortly after 6 o'clock and not a vacant seat remained five minutes later.

It was the thought that it was necessary to set up extra tables. Stephen C. Garrity, commander of the post, took personal charge of seating the guests. The diners gathered in the hall way and stairs outside of the banquet room. Commander Garrity in turn called for the representatives of the country, state, county and city to step forward where the doors were thrown open to the main body.

The county was represented by Atty. James C. Kelly, the city by Mayor George H. Brown, City Solicitor Edward J. Tierney, and members of the council, while a number of other representatives of the people at large were present. The entire Auditorium commission was there and occupied the place of honor at the head table to Commander Garrity's right. Col. John E. Herbert, of Worcester, past department commander and William Doyle of Malden, newly elected department commander, represented the high officials of the state legion. A delegation of war nurses also was in attendance.

A few moments after the dinner started it was announced that Vice President Coolidge and Governor Cox had arrived to greet the "boys." They were given a tremendous ovation as they filed to the head table. Both made a few remarks and left the hall amid storms of applause. Mayor Brown was the next speaker and he too was loudly applauded as he left the hall.

Col. Herbert and Comrade Doyle made short addresses after which Commander Garrity introduced, individually, the members of the Auditorium commission. Each member arose and bowed amid thunderous applause.

Hardly had this introduction been completed when word came from the outside guard that General Edwards had arrived. He was given a wonderful reception. The assembly cheered and cheered and then cheered some more as the "grand old man" of the Yankee division entered the hall and made his way to the head table. It was with difficulty that the cheering was silenced and it seemed that the applause lasted for five solid minutes.

Another outburst of applause started at the completion of his remarks, and at the announcement that General Edwards was to lead the members to the Auditorium the hall was emptied and the men formed in squads in front of the hall. The band struck up a lively air and the march to the dedicatory exercises was started.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The directors of the chamber of commerce will hold their second fall meeting of the season next Monday, Henry A. Smith of the traffic regulations committee will meet with the directors to discuss the proposed new traffic signs. On Wednesday, the big meeting will be held in Liberty hall, Memorial Auditorium. Mr. John C. Nolin of Cambridge, city planner, will make an address at this meeting, prior to which he will tour the city with an idea of suggesting improvements. Secretary Manager George F. Wells attended a conference of New England chamber of commerce secretaries at Westfield, Mass., today.

MORGAN HELD FOR MURDER

Negro Janitor Also Charged With Assault With Intent to Murder

Dr. Reynolds Shot When He Went to Aid Officer and Real Estate Man

BROOKLINE, Sept. 22.—William Morgan, a negro janitor, who shot and killed Dr. Henry V. Reynolds, and wounded three other men yesterday, was held without bail on a charge of murder today. The police also preferred a charge in two counts of assault with intent to murder.

Dr. Reynolds was killed when he went to the assistance of Patrolmen Alexander Johnstone, and Bartholomew J. Connolly, who had been wounded by bullets from Morgan's shotgun after a quarrel between the negro and Connolly, real estate man in charge of the property where the janitor was employed. Thomas McLaughlin, standing across the street from the scene of the shooting, was slightly wounded by a stray shot. Johnstone was still in a critical condition today. Connolly, wounded in the head and shoulder, was noticeably hurt.

Morgan, who pleaded not guilty, collapsed in his cell when told what he had done. He said he remembered none of his acts yesterday afternoon. His case was continued to October 2 and he was taken to the Dedham jail.

EXHIBITION AT THE AUDITORIUM

The Middlesex North Agricultural Society again extends a cordial and free invitation to the public of Lowell to attend the exhibit of farm and home products, fruits, vegetables, preserves, food, flowers, etc., which is to be held under its auspices at the Lowell Memorial Auditorium, Thursday, September 28, day and evening. It is hoped that contributions will be made to this display by the farmers, housekeepers and others of the Middlesex North district. The products shown will afterward be given to local charities. A musical program will be given during the exhibit.

NAVY RECRUITING STATION
The local navy recruiting station yesterday enlisted Charles Landry of 4 Watson street for a term of four years. Charles Webster, C.W.T., has relieved L. G. Merchant, C.C.M., as head of the local station in the Fairbairn building.

PARIS CORSETS
Some recent corset importations from Paris are made of most elaborate fabrics with higher tops and a more definite waistline than we have seen in many a day.

STREET FROCKS
Many of the smart street frocks of wool are entirely unbordered in silk dress or elaborately beaded in rather large wooden bands.

Ford Plants to Resume Operations

DETROIT, Sept. 22.—A feeling of relief pervaded business as well as labor circles here today as three of the largest industrial plants in the Detroit area—those of the Ford Motor Co.—resumed operations after a week of idleness. Approximately 70,000 Ford employees were under orders to resume work on their former schedules and between 30,000 and 35,000 workers of other concerns which shut down when the Ford suspension closed up their market, were preparing to reopen. All Ford units, including plants in many other cities of the country, are expected to be running on a normal schedule by Monday.

dies, and all must know that when our sons and daughters are at the Auditorium they are in an atmosphere which our mother city has taken pains to keep pure and clean.

"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the commission:

"On behalf of the city of Lowell, I accept the Lowell Memorial Auditorium and again I tender to you the people's thanks."

The Choral society then sang "The Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah." Under the leadership of Mr. E. B. Hood, the work was impressively given.

Benediction Pronounced
The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Appleton Grannis, rector of St. Anne's, as follows:

"Almighty God, who in former times didst lead our fathers forth into a wealthy place, we yield Thee hearty thanks for all that Thou dost for them and art doing for the land to which they came. May we always remember them in Thee and be grateful to them through Thee. We remember that their communion was to eat their bread in exile, their sacrament was to pour out their blood for others. We remember them as brave warriors, far-seeing statesmen and incorruptible patriots. And we give Thee thanks for them. We remember those of a later day, who spared not their lives that our land might be one, prophets and martyrs of our country's unity. And we give Thee thanks for them. We remember those who in the great war willingly laid down their lives to preserve us and that our liberties might be saved inviolate. And we give Thee thanks for them. Give Thy grace, we humbly beseech Thee, to us of this generation, that we may always prove ourselves a people mindful of Thy favor and glad to do Thy will. Bless our land with honorable industry, sound learning and pure manners. Defend our liberties; preserve our unity; save us from violence, discord and confusion; from pride and arrogance, and from every evil way. Fashion into one happy people the multitudes brought hither out of many kindreds and tongues.

"Full with the spirit of wisdom those whom we entrust with the authority of government, that there may be peace at home and that we may keep our place among the nations of the earth. We ask Thy blessing on those who assembled this night. Keep them under Thy protection from all things that may hurt them both in soul and body.

"Sanctify this building which we have now dedicated to the highest and best

NEW TARIFF IN EFFECT

The tariff bill, with all its defects and monstrosities, is now law. It is true, that as a result of the demoralized condition of exchange in foreign countries, it is rather difficult to fix a tariff that will serve the needs of domestic industries and at the same time permit such a volume of trade with foreign nations as will give our merchant marine a chance to operate. The defects of this bill, however, in excessive tariff duties have been so glaring that in all probability they will result in severe defeat to the republican party in the November elections. It has been quite notorious that some of the more important schedules of the bill such as that provided for raw wool, for sugar and several other commodities are far beyond anything proposed in the past. They greatly exceed the rates provided in the Payne-Aldrich law which brought defeat to the republican party. The farmers seem to have dictated to a great extent some of the main features of this bill for which Fordney of Michigan and McComber of North Dakota are responsible.

What we need in a tariff law are schedules that will cover the difference in the cost of production in this country and abroad. It would require a scientific investigation to frame a tariff law that would cover this difference exactly. Congress has been unable to make any such investigation and it, therefore, fixed the duties blindly at the dictation of certain corporate interests. As a result of the new law the cost of living will increase and while industries may be temporarily stimulated, there will ultimately be a reaction that will injure the foreign trade of the United States without which our industries cannot have permanent prosperity.

One of the great objections to the measure apart from the schedules is that the president of the United States is to be vested with the power of changing the tariff schedules when he deems it necessary. In that event the president's order will be law. This question will undoubtedly cause much discussion among constitutional lawyers, but it does not require any great knowledge of the law to see that it is rather dangerous to delegate to the president the power to change existing laws and to frame new laws involving taxation whenever he deems it necessary to do so. The power to tax is the power to destroy. The tariff is but a form of taxation and, therefore, according to the constitution, it is exercised by the president. It would mean that he would have the power of taxation, which is reserved for congress alone.

The republican tariff bill just enacted has been under discussion by congress for nearly two years. It is seldom that a law of reactionary character such as this is held so long under discussion, but the reason seems to be in this case that the proponents of the bill had to deal with a very vigorous opposition.

CHILD WELFARE

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis sounds a note of alarm relative to the sacrifice of child life in the infant stage, claiming that 250,000 babies are snatched by death from their mothers' breasts every year before they have had an opportunity to open their eyes on the world. The secretary is just a little astray when he says the babies are snatched from their mothers' breasts. The fact that such a large proportion of the mothers use the nursing bottle instead of furnishing the babies the natural food, explains in a great measure why so many die. But half a million mental defectives and delinquents grow up almost entirely neglected, Mr. Davis informs us. That is a more serious problem. Possibly many of the babies that die soon after birth are also mentally or physically defective. But it is a more serious matter to take care of a defective or delinquent than to provide the younger wards with proper nourishment. This problem of the defectives in one that requires very special treatment and in most cases treatment that should have been begun with the parents.

But the main burden of the Davis complaint is that fully one and a half million children are put to work at an age that stunts their growth and prevents them from getting proper schooling. Mr. Davis describes this evil thus:

"Approximately a million and a half American boys and girls of school age are today thrown beneath the wheels of the juggernaut of industry, pressed to labor before their time, doomed to the dreary drudgery of mine and mill and factory by economic necessity. They face a hopeless future. Before them stretches the treadmill of unremunerative labor with its few years of heartbreaking, soul-searing toil, and at the end—a grave."

That is a very gloomy picture which refers mainly to industrial conditions in the south. It is one with which congress has endeavored to deal by two separate enactments, both of which were declared unconstitutional. It remains now to find a means of preventing child labor in the south and elsewhere by a federal law even if the constitution must be amended for the purpose.

THE TURKISH MENACE

There is a very menacing state of affairs in the Near East, centering around the Dardanelles with the Turkish national forces threatening to seize the straits and cross back into Europe to take possession of Thrace and Adrianople. France, which is said to have treaty agreements with Turkey, states that the Turks will not attempt to cross the straits or to hold them against the power of the allies. On the other hand, the Turks demand the occupation of Constantinople, Adrianople and an advance into Thrace. This province had been transferred to Greece, and that is why the Turks are so determined to take possession of it.

A conference has been called by the allied powers headed by Great Britain and France to deal with the situation, but there can be but slight hope of united action against Turkey while France and England are divided on the question of resisting the advance of the Turks by naval and military operations.

The outlook at present shows little signs of an agreement by which another war can be averted. The people of England are strongly opposed to war against Turkey at the present time, but the only alternative is to let the Turks get control of the Dardanelles and this would mean a junction with soviet Russia later on. Thus the situation presents some very grave possibilities of future warfare involving the greater part of the European continent.

DEDICATED

Seldom has there been a more delighted audience at any public function in Lowell than that which attended the dedicatory exercises in the magnificent Memorial Auditorium last evening. Even to those who expected much and who are accustomed to sit in fine buildings, the rare largeness of design and adaptation to general convenience and utility as well as the chaste and striking beauty so evident in every feature of this edifice, proved a veritable revelation.

For the first time in the city's history the people of this city will have an opportunity of realizing the advantages of such a splendid public building, appealing as it does to the highest patriotic instincts, the civic pride and the public spirit of all our people. The tributes paid by Vice-President Coolidge, Governor Cox, Congressman Rogers and General Edwards should cause the residents of Lowell to feel more proud of their city and appreciate more fully the great step forward for our municipality in dedicating such a unique temple of patriotism and public utility.

MARKS WORTHLESS

Markets have become so worthless in Germany that dealers at the Leipzig fair refuse to accept them in payment for goods to be exported. They demand foreign money.

Samuel Montagu & Co., London foreign exchange house, says this is typical of the approaching situation all through Germany. The day inevitably is not far off when the foreign holder of German currency will be unable to spend his marks even across the Rhine. Americans have lost at least $2,000,000,000 by the drop in German marks, since speculators began buying them. Paris bankers make the estimate. In other countries, similar losses.

The bankers figure that Germany has profited $5,000,000,000 by depreciation of the paper marks sold to foreigners. The inflation of German currency, therefore, appears to have been intentional and part of a shrewd money-making scheme.

THE BONUS

The bonus measure has been disposed of by the republican congress in the way that was anticipated many months ago. It was predicted that both branches would pass the bonus bill in order to square themselves with their constituents, and then send it to the president, who promised to veto it on the ground that it did not provide the means of raising the funds, which it was proposed to disburse. The republicans were aware of this defect and the president had previously announced his intention of vetoing the measure on this ground alone. He has done so and the senate has failed to pass the measure over the veto. The senate is mainly responsible for the defeat of the measure. Its veto in favor of the bill was but a ploy of political camouflage.

ANTI-LYNCHING BILL

It is announced that the republicans have dropped the anti-lynching bill from their program for the present session. This is a very necessary measure but one on which there is some difference of opinion as to detail, and that is probably why it has been dropped by the senate. It is high time that congress should find a method of stamping out the lynching disgrace which has been so persistent in the south, particularly in Georgia.

MOVIES

Edward Swohoda, movie agent from Czechoslovakia, says in New York that his country has taken over all the large movie houses and is operating them for the benefit of charity. Censors over there are tolerant with movies of bathing beauties, but they do prohibit prizefighting films, not wanting the people to become interested in any kind of fighting. In many ways, this new country shows sound intelligence. Watch it.

PRICE OF COAL

It is estimated that the cost of pumping the anthracite mines during the long continued strike will add to the price of coal. The coal, it is alleged, amounted to eighteen million dollars and this, added to the price of coal, will undoubtedly be felt by the consumer. The old story will probably come true in this case as in the past, that every conflict between the miners and the operators results in the increase in the price of coal.

DEATH RATE

Sydney, Australia, claims it is the healthiest city in the world. Last year its death rate was only 19 out of each 2000 inhabitants. However, there is no occasion to rush across the Pacific. Only 26 out of each 2000 Americans die yearly. That is but seven above the world's healthiest city. And our death rate is being cut steadily by hygienic and sanitary methods.

SEEN AND HEARD

Every little snapper has a yearning now for the new, snappy boots with the open running boards.

Those Kennelists would be O.K. if they had a Richmond, Va., cigar named after them.

Most of the nitrate factories in Chili are now in British hands; but Germany hasn't started yet.

Milliners have just gone on record by declaring that every woman finds her highest beauty when she finds the right hat. And that's that.

Remember the banana handkerchief Aunt Femina used to drop over her naturally marcelled locks? Well, that's the famous banana handkerchief. That's the millinery leader for the pre-cocious fall style fair set.

A Thought

He that hath gained an entire conquest over himself will find no mighty difficulties to subvert all other opposition.—Thomas a Kempis.

Thin Man Squelched

A thin man resented the lateral pressure of a fat man on the same seat in the street car. He said: "They ought to charge on the basis of weight." "If they did, sonny," said the fat man, "you'd have to walk. They couldn't afford to stop for you."

Today's Word

Today's word is "disturb." It's pronounced—per-turb, with accent on the second syllable. It means—to disturb, to vex, to trouble, to disquiet, to agitate, to molest, to bother, to annoy, to disturb, by or for, and "turbare," to disturb. It's used like this: "Although the near east is a long way from us, it is not so far from our interests. It is not very extensive, yet the commotion in that part of the world has not failed to disturb the Washington government to some extent."

Very Good Advice

A portly woman had, by mistake, taken a seat in a railway coach reserved for smokers. When she noticed this she saw the man next to her fill his pipe. "Sir," she said in a friendly tone, "smoking always makes me feel better. Would you mind lighting me a pipe?" "Does it, ma'am? Well, I'll take my advice and give it up."—Chicago Herald Examiner.

A Native Anyway

In Homer's time and long thereafter, cities had a habit of claiming that illustrious persons were born in them. Possibly it is a more modern tendency for persons to claim that they were born in illustrious localities. Two youths were reading the society news in the daily paper, wherein Southampton, I. I., figured prominently. One observed casually that he had been born in Southampton. The other looked up quickly. "I bet it was out of season," said he.—New York Evening Post.

He Was Expected

A Park avenue apartment house which goes in for the latest in domestic blossomed out with a new doorman. When a gentleman called and asked to see Mrs. Brown the new attendant, true to his calling, detained him with the customary "But is Mrs. Brown expecting you?" "Yes, she is," replied the caller with a glance. "My good mother," he said, "Mrs. Brown was expecting me before I was born. She is my mother."

Ready Made Chickens

Little Emmeline was on a visit to her grandmother in the country. They had chicken for dinner, which pleased the little girl very much. "Oh, where did you get the chicken, grandma?" she asked. "From the chicken yard," said the grandmother. "What, one of those feds?" "Yes, dear," "Did you kill one?" "Yes, darling!" "Oh, did you?" said Emmeline. "At home we buy ours ready made!"

First Dress Suit

The first dress suit that ever came to Kansas came with the "add" from Boston during the day summer of 1860. Some rich man in that city, who was in, having outgrown it, and a farmer in Kaplow township in this county, plowed corn in it all summer. This is probably the only occasion in history on which a dress suit was ever put to a really useful purpose. The dress suit, like the silk hat and the gold-headed cane, is a thing that is made for show or ability to pay. They are passing out. The modern fadges are autos and bootleg whiskey.—Athletic Globe.

Two Men

The wise man prayed for guidance through the storm and stress of life. He sought for help, to make him strong for struggle and for strife. He knew his many failings, and was quick to recognize his weakness. He had need of aid and counsel—showing that he was wise.

The fool depended on himself with nothing in his hand. He rushed right in, as fools will do, where angels fear to tread. If some one gave him good advice, he scorned it. He was a fool.

—SOMERVILLE JOURNAL

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

When Grand Knight John E. Hart of the local Knights of Columbus appointed Joseph M. Duffy as athletic instructor of Lowell, he selected a man with unanimous approval. The appointment comes as the result of a decision of the supreme council at the recent convention held in Atlantic City to the effect that professional basketball in the Knights is hereafter to be discouraged to the utmost. Athletics from now on are to be conducted on a strictly amateur basis and the majority of the Knights are pleased. Many Twilight League fans in this city, however, will regret the passing of the K. of C. team from the city league. Although not away in the standing at the conclusion of the past season, the Knights played splendid ball and if they got any kind of a break would have established a more imposing record. Of course, I don't mean to say that the barring of professional basketball from their ranks will disrupt the Twilight League. I merely hope it does not, but there are very few players who will rush home after work, probably go without supper and hibernate to the South common for a game when there is no financial reward in store for them. But to get back to Joe Duffy: A strong exponent of clean athletics, Joe has established an enviable record as a sportsman. At high school he starred on the baseball and football teams and then matriculated at Holy Cross college. In Worcester where he continued his athletic success, Joe acquired additional fame on the diamond and gridiron, not alone for his ability but for that "never-say-die" spirit. During the war, Duffy donned the blue of Uncle Sam's navy, and upon his honorable discharge, he entered professional baseball, playing with the Lowell and Lawrence in the New England league and later transferring to a southern league outfit. At present he is employed as physical instructor in the grammar schools of this city and from all accounts is doing brilliant work. His career in his new capacity should prove but a repetition of his previous successes.

I was fortunate in hearing Chester Campbell deliver an instructive talk to the members of the Lowell Ad club at Wednesday noon's luncheon. Mr. Campbell is an interesting speaker and has traveled quite extensively. In the course of his informal talk, he recounted an experience of his in Boston, showing that it does not pay to advertise unless the advertisement is backed up by service. It seems he had developed a hobby for a sport suit, and went to a reputable Boston house with every intention of purchasing the object of his desire. The first store he visited, a big advertiser, had clerks so busy that when Mr. Campbell asked for a sport suit, one of the clerks informed him that they did not carry the style he wanted. That was all. He did not ask the prospective purchaser if he would like to see some other style. A second store was visited and here also the clerk told him they didn't have any of that kind but would have some the following week. He, too, refused to display what he did have and as a result lost a probable customer. The third store visited happened to have the men's clothing department on the third floor, which meant that patrons would have to take the elevator up. A colored man was operating the elevator when Mr. Campbell entered and not knowing the exact location of the desired department, the colored boy was questioning the same. Mr. Campbell, astonished at the boy's question, gave him his inquiries full particulars, directed him to a salesman, who in turn proved congenial and a sale was made. Here was service, said Mr. Campbell. The other stores spent large sums of money advertising, but their service was lacking and their money making. Fortunately, Lowell firms advertise and give service to back it up.

The following communication was sent to the Ad club by a resident of the Kenwood district. Dracut in connection with the fire which destroyed the barn of Joseph Volock in Kenwood last Friday, when the building was struck by lightning.

That the residents of Kenwood call a remarkable piece of work and an event that should be put on record in this: When the members of District Four company of the Kenwood fire department arrived on the scene of the fire after being summoned by telephone, the barn was a mass of flames and it is a fact that the shed adjoining the barn and the house, Mr. Volock, which adjoins the shed, would be destroyed, but the firemen got right down to business with their little Ford chemical, which has been the laughing stock of that part of the town since it was presented into service, and succeeded in saving the house, and none. The great work of the firemen on the job was partly due to the good judgment of Mr. J. King, who stationed some of his men at the shed to prevent the flames from spreading. In the history of the town has such a feat of work been accomplished in the fighting of a fire, so the Kenwood fire-fighters deserve great credit for their good work."

The near completion of the First street boulevard brings to light the fact that such a road was first suggested by Frank Ricard, the well known jeweler, way back in 1912, over ten years ago. At that time Mr. Ricard drew up a petition, together with a plan for such a boulevard, and presented it to the city council. The petition contained the names of such well known men as John Jacob Rogers, Joseph Legare, and many other prominent men of the city. Mr. Ricard's plan called for the continuation of the road through West Concord, Lowell, along the river, through the textile school and joining with Colonial avenue to make an uninterrupted stretch to the Pawtucket boulevard. He also proposed that a stadium and park should be built on First street on the site where it has been lately proposed to build one.

The athletic authorities at the Lowell high school have made public the schedule for the football team for this season and it contains some very fine games. This year there will be five games at home and six away from home. The team will make trips to Concord, N. H., Boston, where the local team will play the High School of Commerce, Danvers, Haverhill, Wakefield, and the final game on Thanksgiving with the aged rivals Lawrence. The prospect for a good football team at Lowell high is very bright, according to Coach Jim Liston, although he says the team will be a very light one. As a result of this he is coaching the team extensively in the use of open plays and local football. Liston is expected to lead a new display of open-field play by the local footballers. The season opens a week from tomorrow at Spaulding park, when Lowell will play Nashua high.

Although the season that is known as Indian summer has not arrived as yet, according to the calendar, the fall has given evidence of its presence by the chilly atmosphere we have had for the past few days and the harvest preparations of the farmers. I drove through the country districts last Sunday and on all sides were signs of the final activities of the harvest season. In many fields the corn shocks were gathered into sheaves and reminded one of the rural pictures that flood the papers in the harvest season. Another sure sign of the approach of fall is the appearance in the markets of cranberries and celery, the time-honored fixings for the turkey dinner. The pumpkins and squash are well along in the gardens and all is in preparation for the harvest.

There were 32 declarations of war by the nations on both sides during the world war.

Whole System Is Benefited By Tanlac

Thousands of frail, nervous people and convalescents everywhere have testified to the remarkable power of Tanlac in bringing back their health, strength and working efficiency. It seems to quickly invigorate the constitution and is a powerful foe of weakness. Mrs. Maud M. Bishop, 2 William St., Roxbury, Mass., says: "Tanlac is simply grand. For three years my life has been miserable by awful headaches and nervousness. I was afraid at times they would drive me mad. I have used three bottles of Tanlac and now my troubles have completely disappeared. I've also gained nearly ten pounds in weight." There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the helpful action of Tanlac. It enables the stomach to turn the food into healthy blood, bone and muscle, purifies the system and helps you back to normal weight. Get a bottle today at any good druggist.—Adv.

NOW THEY CALL IT THE "COW PATH ROAD"

The little old one-track rail line to Framingham via Chelmsford, Acton and Concord Junction, has been called some hard names in the past, but the latest appellation—the cow-path road—appears to fit it every once in a while, according to nearby commuters who witnessed another "movie" this morning when the inward-bound train dived in Lowell at 8.50 daylight saving time, had to be centered through a bunch of Ayrshire cows just below Chelmsford Centre.

Engineer Whittier, old-timer and prince of the traffic department on the Old Colony, spied the bovines romping joyously down the rails not far from the curve that rounds into the station territory. Two skippers of the green grasslands, about eight months old and rustling for new pastures, had skipped over a low fence to the railroad, and before the Lowell train appeared had been playing tag up and down the ties with all the abandon to be found in an awkward squad of playful milkers escaping from the lead.

Whittier glimpsed the first young heifer as he shifted up the track toward Chelmsford, going with all sternal clucking and the brakes off. The heifer got a bit frightened when the Whittier sedan appeared in the offing, but never moved.

Jamming down the steam pressure gauge that runs the air, Whittier managed to bring the morning local to a slow-down just as the heifer, laid flying and bellowing belligerently, scumpled down into a brook and tried to hide under a fence rail.

A mass of other bovines, male and female and all ages, trotted gaily along the fence with the train, trying to look pleased and giving the baby heifer cow advice in the regular language. The track looked all right ahead, and Whittier started on.

There was a merry race between the flock of milkers for more than 200 yards up the track, until a fence stopped the scramble of the animals and put them out of the picture.

"Regular thing right along every month in the year, almost," said the brakeman, disgustedly. "You know we lunched one of 'em last fall—couldn't help it. Flock of 'em got onto the rails and tried to stop old No. 6,000. But 'sixin' ain't been stopped yet—not even by the rail strikers, and no Jersey or Ayrshire, or whatever they are, is going to hold us up now if we know it."

Conductor Jack Wright argued along the same line, but Mr. Whittier looked across the train sheds, smiling knowingly, and proceeded to fill his oil gauges. Cows haven't bothered him yet on the old Acton line, and they won't if old No. 53 works its kinks out as regularly as it does about every dry—cows or no cows.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem THE SCHOOL IN THE WILDERNESS

(At Caney Creek, Ky., is the Caney Creek Community Center; a little group of devoted souls, who are struggling to educate the mountaineers' children.)

At Caney Creek they're teaching Youth
To know and understand the Truth.
Into the muck of fight and feud,
Of ignorance and living crude,
Of dirt and squalor and distress
They're bringing health and cleanliness.
They're "moving mountains" that they may Have space where mountain tots can play,
And neither poverty nor want
Their bravery and grit can daunt.
They toil on toward the goal they seek,
At Caney Creek.

What wonders faith and hope can do!
They stretch one dollar into two,
And even when the money fails
The work goes on. Along the trails,
From mountain hut and filthy shack,
The children come; to turn them back
Is never even in the thought Of Caney Creek. Somehow is wrought
A miracle, and out of naught
A vision clear is brought to pass
More durable than bronze or brass;
For flesh or spirit are not weak
At Caney Creek.

A little consecrated band
Of those who know and understand
These bleak and hardy mountaineers,
Is working bravely through the years
To bring the light, to dissipate
The bloody fog of blinding hate.
With simple service as the creed,
The dream's transmuted to the deed,
And on this barren mountain sod,
Where native stock has always trod,
The children will grow up to be Fearless, enlightened, strong and free;
Such is the future that they seek

Quay at Smyrna Finally Cleared

SMYRNA, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press)—The quay at Smyrna, which had been thronged with thousands of refugees since the Turkish entry and the conflagration, which followed, has finally been cleared. All the refugees now have been removed to concentration camps. Deportations to the interior are continuing. Several naturalized Americans have arrived here from the interior. R. W. Moreman of Pomona, Cal., in charge of the Greek orphanage, is resisting all the efforts of the Turks to deport 400 orphan boys. He declares he will accompany them to the interior if they are removed. Several members of the Angora cabinet have arrived for a council of war with Mustapha Kemal Pasha. The American destroyers McLeish, Litchfield, Edsall and Lawrence are standing by in the harbor. Captain A. J. Hepburn of Philadelphia, chief of staff to Rear Admiral Bristol, has returned from Constantinople, resuming charge of the naval units and seeking better conditions for the refugees from Kemal.

Charged With Dry Law Violation

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 22.—Abram Auerbach, former head of the Auerbach & Co., manufacturers of hair tonic, was arrested at his home early today by police acting under orders of Assistant United States District Attorney Breitenstein and charged with violation of the national prohibition act. At the same time, according to federal officials a warrant was out in New York for the arrest of Auerbach's brother, Louis, his business associate, on a similar charge. The arrest of Auerbach follows alleged alcohol manipulations through the hair tonic business, running into hundreds of thousands of dollars, according to federal officials.

The Exiled Emperor Exposes His Innermost Thoughts to the World

KAISER'S MEMOIRS

The Man Tells:

"Still others say the Emperor should have killed himself. That was made impossible by my firm Christian beliefs. And would not people have exclaimed: 'How cowardly.' Now he shirks all responsibility by committing suicide.' This alternative was also eliminated because

(Alluding to the choice of Prince William of Wied as King of Albania): "It was particularly unpleasant to me that a German Prince should make a fool of himself there. . . the ambitious, mystically excited wife of the Prince saw in Albania the fulfillment of her wishes. And 'what woman wishes God wishes.'"

(Alluding to the educational methods of Germany before the Kaiser "reformed" them): "This degradation is all the more difficult to understand in view of the fact that the youth of Germany, although it was impaired in health by overstudy and not so toughened by sport as the English, achieved brilliant feats in the World war such as were nowhere equalled before."

"The road to compromise has been my road both in domestic and foreign politics."

He declares that when Bismarck's son conducted the foreign office his rudeness was such that when anybody left him "their coat tails stood right out behind them."

The Ex-Kaiser snapped walking in his garden.

The Emperor Says:

"Professor Roland Usher, the American, talked out of school and conclusively proved at whose door lies the guilt of the World war . . . America—or rather President Wilson—was resolved probably from the start, certainly from 1915—to array herself against Germany and to fight."

"The Prince (Bismarck) gave away to a violent fit of anger. He spoke about 'family dictation in England,' of interference from that quarter which must cease; how the Crown Prince and Emperor Frederick had been ordered about and influenced by his mother-in-law, wife, etc."

"I stuck to my ideas, adducing in support of them the maxim of Frederick the Great, 'I wish to be King of the Rabble.'"

"I refused to abdicate and declared that I would gather troops together and return with them in order to help the government to maintain order in the land."

"Thus the decision as to my going or staying, as to my renunciation of the Imperial Crown and retention of the Royal Crown of Prussia, was summarily snatched from me. The army was shaken to the core by the erroneous belief that its King had abandoned it at the most critical moment of all."

ACCEPTS CALL TO
LOWELL CHURCH

Rev. Arthur Byron Clarke, of this city has accepted a call to become pastor of the Chestnut Street Baptist church, following an invitation which was extended to him at a special meeting held last Tuesday evening. Mr. Clarke occupied the pulpit at this church during July and August and his work greatly impressed the members here in Rhode Island. Mr. Clarke took a four years' course of study in the New England School of Theology and graduated with honors in 1915. He has been a resident of Lowell for the past two years.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

A large crowd visited the First Presbyterian church last night where the third in the series of evangelistic meetings was held. Dr. Bishop was the speaker and chose for his text the following extract from Luke 19:10 "For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost," while his theme was "Our Responsibility for the Salvation of Souls." Tonight is Sunday school night and the meeting will prove of especial interest to children and teachers. A large attendance is looked for.

THE "GEE EYE" GIRLS

"Our bathroom became a problem"

"Bob says that I'm the best housekeeper in New England. That's not true, of course,—but I am sure there isn't a more particular one in the world. Imagine how I felt when my spic-and-span little bathroom developed an odor which we couldn't get rid of.

"It wasn't really objectionable, but it was always noticeable. We had the plumbing inspected. There was nothing wrong with it. I scrubbed and scrubbed and scrubbed. I used ammonia and lye and all the home-tried compounds—everything I could think of. It didn't do a bit of good. I was simply miserable.

"Bob came in with a grin one evening. 'Trust me now sometimes,' he said. 'I think we've found the remedy for the bathroom.' We had. Bob had brought home our first bottle of Sylpho-Nathol.

"I wouldn't have thought it possible that anything as easy to use could make that room fresh and sweet again in such a short time. It was almost miraculous. I wouldn't be without Sylpho-Nathol for anything. And I have found so many other necessary uses for it—it has freshened up the whole house."

For many years, thousands of thorough New England housekeepers have used Sylpho-Nathol day in, day out.

In mop-water, it assures the cleanliness that keeps families healthy. It is a necessary safeguard for sinks and drains; for damp, musty, hard-to-get-at places; for cellars; for fly-breeding garbage receptacles. And, of course, it should be used regularly around the bathroom fixtures—and as a flush for the closet bowl.

Sylpho-Nathol is 4% times stronger than carbolic acid—yet is as safe to have in the house as a cake of scouring soap. It cannot hurt your skin. It comes in four handy sizes, 15c, 35c, 65c, $1.25. Most good grocers and druggists have it. If yours hasn't, he can get it. Just ask for it by the name—"Sylpho-Nathol."

DISTRIBUTION OF COAL

Dealers to Supply Only
Regular Customers, Says
Phelan

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—James J. Phelan, emergency fuel administrator for Massachusetts, yesterday sent to 300 fuel distributors and 750 dealers throughout the state copies of rules and regulations effective today in an effort to "secure an equitable distribution of coal for the citizens of Massachusetts."

Dealers, the regulations set forth, are to provide coal only to regular customers, while persons having no regular dealers are to be referred to the local distributors. No anthracite coal is to be delivered to hotels, clubs, apartment houses, office buildings, theatres or other places of amusement, factories or mercantile establishments. No anthracite coal is to be delivered to customers having on hand a 30-day supply, and deliveries to such customers are to be limited to a supply for 30 days, except in cases where a 20-day supply would constitute less than one ton.

No restrictions are placed upon delivery of bituminous coal nor on delivery of buckwheat and smaller sizes of anthracite. No restrictions are placed on the burning of wood or fuel oil, or on the delivery. Dealers receiving fuel in carload lots are ordered to unload the cars within 24 hours.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By the Theatres' Own Press Agents.

THE STRAND
Eight canoes were wrecked during the filming of one of the several thrilling scenes in the screen presentation of "The Storm," the feature offering at The Strand this week. Miss Virginia Valli and Josef Swickard were in constant danger as they shot the rapids in their fragile craft. The picture throughout is a real thriller. Other House Peters, Matt Moore and others of screen note are also in the cast. Gladys Walton in "Top of the Morning" and a good comedy offering help to round out a truly commendable bill.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE
There are only a few more opportunities in which to see Will Mahoney, that funny man, who is appearing at the B. F. Keith's theatre, this week. Mahoney will rate up with the best of comedians. The Royal Variety Five, makers of good music, top off the bill exceedingly well and Marshall Montgomery, the ventriloquist, is easily the top-notch in his particular line of work. Other comedians, Jess Labadie, xylophonist; Mason Gwynne and Sultan complete the excellent bill.

MERIDIAN SQUARE THEATRE
Gloria Swanson in "Her Glorious Day," and "The Seventh Day," starring Richard Barthelmess, are the feature attractions now playing at the Meridian Square theatre. Both of them are well worth seeing.

RIALTO THEATRE
"The Jack Rider," heralded as the most daring and most thrilling picture ever screened at the Rialto theatre, is the feature of a varied program which opens at the Rialto theatre this afternoon. It is booked for today and Saturday and is bound to draw a large audience. Other pictures which deserve merit on the same program are the third episode of "The Jungle Goddess," also a Meridian comedy, "Sue The Way" and a juvenile comedy, "Kid Love." Don't fail to go and see it.

$200,000 FOR RELIEF OF AMERICANS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—An appropriation of $200,000 for relief of Americans in Smyrna, recommended by President Harding, was voted yesterday by the senate. It was included in a deficiency bill and must yet be approved by the house.

Latest reports from Maj. C. Clavin Davis, in charge of American Red Cross relief operations at Smyrna, indicate repatriation of refugees to their homes in Asia Minor is impossible now and that the only solution is to move them to Europe.

With the aid of American business men and American institutions in Smyrna, Maj. Davis reports, he is finding it possible to provide for the temporary necessities of many refugees out of the $25,000 fund made available. Admiral Bristol, replying yesterday to a state department request, reported as follows:

"Dr. Reed, Professors Laurence, Moremen, Seylez and Bourguin, at Smyrna; Mrs. Reed and children, Mrs.

Birge and children, Mrs. Caldwell and children, Mrs. Lawrence and children, Miss Mills, Miss Morley and Miss Gordon at Athens, Mr. Getchell and Miss Way at Constantinople, and Dr. and Mrs. MacLachlan on board the British battleship King George."

The American Red Cross is caring for about 1000 naturalized Americans at Athens and Saloniki.

Suggestions in press dispatches that Great Britain would welcome the United States in the conference on the problems of the Dardanelles brought the statement from administration officials yesterday that possible American participation is being given no consideration in Washington.

COOK WILL DECIDE BALLOT PROBLEM

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook is expected soon to announce his decision as to the legality of placing on the ballot in Boston representative districts at the state election the question of instructing successful candidates to support at the coming session of the general court the proposition of equal pay to women school teachers with men for equal work.

The secretary already has ruled unofficially that the question was one of "public policy" and as such was entitled to a place on the ballot. The Boston finance commission and the Boston school committee have protested it was not a question of public policy.

As a result of the protest a hearing was held before the state ballot law commission in the state house yesterday. Judge Sullivan appeared for the finance commission, and E. L. Briggs for the Boston School Men's Economic association. The proposed placing the question on the ballot, William

GALLI-CURCI CONCERT

Everything Points to Record Breaking Sale of Tickets for Big Concert

Shortly after noon today the advance sale for the concert by Madam Galli-Curci passed the $3000 mark. The public sale opens tomorrow morning at Chalifoux's and everything points to a record-breaking sale. The manager of the concert is optimistic about a sell-out.

Who is the greatest box office attraction in the world today? The same Amelia Galli-Curci who has smashed every record made in this section of New England. Only Wall Street can appreciate the volume of business she earned in five days. Last year she earned five times as much as President Harding. Her last five concerts at the Hippodrome, New York, produced a total of $51,780.50 without war taxes. Her two most recent recitals at the Auditorium in Chicago yielded $19,977, a total of $70,753.50, an average of over $10,000 a concert. Though she has had 19 New York appearances and 13 Chicago appearances last season, the demand for her increases steadily. The last Philadelphia recital saw a capacity house and 300 that were sold to her while 300 stood. In Toronto the entire house was sold out six hours and a half after the sale opened. In Montreal, when the multitude found the doors closed, they rushed the police and simply forced a way in.

The Grand Rapids armory was too small for the crowd that would hear Galli-Curci. Many had to be accommodated in the officers' quarters at the sides of the building. Columbus, O., tells the same story—213 stage seats were sold and the audience were so numerous that the fire department closed the doors. At Detroit the receipts were $3,417.50, her seventh appearance in that city. In Sharmokin, a small Pennsylvania city of 21,000, last season the box office took in $800.

On Friday night, April 28, she sang "Travels" with the Metropolitan Opera company in Atlanta, Ga., to a house filled to the utmost capacity, while hundreds were turned away. Speculators were offered as high as $50 for a single ticket. Receipts for that evening were over $23,000 and were the highest for the 12 years that the Metropolitan company has been visiting Atlanta. All of the records made by Caruso went by the boards that evening.

During last March and April Madam Galli-Curci made an extensive tour of the Pacific coast and tremendous audiences greeted her from Vancouver, B.C., to San Diego, Cal. The San Diego, two Los Angeles and Seattle concerts were sold out far in advance of her arrival and in Portland, Ore., the mail order sale was over $7000. In San Francisco, March 19, Galli-Curci gave a concert to over 5000 people at the Auditorium, which netted $18,516, or a new record for the city. The press and public vied with each other in superlative praise of the diva and she was compelled to give 4 encores before the audience dispersed.

And so the record runs—sell out houses everywhere and from the looks of things now, a sell-out house will greet the great soprano at the Memorial Auditorium on Friday, Oct. 6.

SLAUGHTER OF CHILDREN BY AUTOS MUST STOP

(Special to The Sun.)

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—The slaughter of children on the highways of Massachusetts by automobilists must stop. Police officials must stop "pig-con-holing" three-fourths of the complaints against speedsters the state registrar of motor vehicles, Frank A. Goodwin, announced today in a statement in which he "threw it out" in fine style to influential persons who are using their influence to interfere with the law in the prosecution of violators of the motor vehicle laws.

"The alarming increase in the number of children that are being killed on our highways by motor vehicles is a matter of great concern and requires immediate attention," says Mr. Goodwin. "A great burden rests upon the parents and the school teachers to keep constantly before their children the dangers of the highway, but the principal burden rests upon the police."

In the last three months, July, August and September, there have been 72 children killed. In the same period last year there were only 51 killed. The great increase in the number of motor vehicles indicates the number of deaths necessarily increasing. "In a great many of the state's cities and towns, the police have traps and officers detailed for the purpose of prosecuting those who are speeding. So far the police officers have been doing their duty. There is not much hope for a reduction in the deaths of children, however, if the higher up police officials pigeon-hole three-fourths of the complaints. It is a notorious fact that after the officers bring the names of automobile offenders into the station house or to the chief, those who have political pull or wealth, or excited social standing with the police with the result that only the poor and friendless are put into court, while the rest are permitted to continue crushing out the lives of the children in the streets."

"There is only one remedy for this and that publicity; I hope that the newspapers will do all they can to create a public opinion that will compel the police of this commonwealth to enforce the motor vehicle laws impartially, regardless of wealth, pull, or social standing." HOYT.

CAVE-IN KILLS CLINTON MAN

CLINTON, Sept. 22.—George M. O'Toole, ex-police officer and present chairman of the democratic town committee, died at the Clinton hospital and John Cannon is at the same institution severely injured as the result of the caving in of a sewer

Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxatives

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way

THE public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mild, most easily tolerated laxative obtainable, and not a drastic physic that upsets them for days afterwards.

As over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people of this country must believe that this mild vegetable compound is the proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt water or powders that clog the bowels; cold-water drugs in emulsi form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and gripping.

The best constipation remedy is the one that moves the bowels without shock to your system, and such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and has been satisfactorily sold for 30 years. Unlike the harsher physics it does not produce a habit, and increased doses are not required; in fact, it so trains the stomach muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

Many take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin once a week as a health safeguard. Others use it only when required, as, for example, Mrs. J. W. Borroughs of Little Rock, Ark., who finds it equally valuable for herself and the children, and Mr. Enas S. Costa of Waterville, Cal., whose family uses it regularly. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in constipation, biliousness, piles, headaches, sallow complexion, and to break up fevers and colds. A generous-size bottle can be had at any drug store, and it costs only about a cent a dose!

STAGING GIVES WAY, PAINTERS INJURED

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 22.—Alex Fournier, Philip Guilford and Edward Pahey, painters at work on the Star building on Main street, plunged 30 feet to the ground yesterday afternoon when the staging upon which they were working gave way.

Fourier received a broken ankle, but Guilford and Pahey were unhurt, except for severe shaking up.

WINSOL

A GUARANTEE OF QUALITY

In the Sunset of Life

there's bound to be some slowing up of the vital forces, but for the past 90 years SANALT, the Sensible Tonic, has helped New England people grow old happily and healthily—relieving them of the dizzy headaches, insomnia, indigestion, nervousness and general debility from which so many elderly people suffer.

Sanalt is perfectly safe for anyone to take, as it contains no opiates, narcotics, nor other harmful drugs.

Read what it has done for Mr. Herman Scheld, an expert pattern weaver, whose home is in Clinton, Mass:

"I am sixty-nine years old and I have felt every year of it. I seemed to be generally out of sorts. Had backache, was constipated, and was rapidly becoming nervous. I could not sleep and every-one knows what that means when a man is past sixty. I had never really thought of myself as getting old until this trouble came.

"A friend gave me just a few doses of Sanalt. While I could not say it really did me any good, there was something about that medicine that made me have faith in it, so I bought a bottle with the result that I am now fit and feel more like forty-five than sixty-nine. I feel better every way, simply because Sanalt seems to have put my whole system to working right. I eat heartily and enjoy my food, sleep as well as I ever did and am back on the job and enjoying my work.

"I believe that a great many people who think they are commencing to suffer from old age would feel all right if they used a few bottles of Sanalt."

You can get Sanalt, or any of the other famous Winsol products, at any drug store. For Winsol preparations are one line of trade-marked proprietary remedies sold by both Winsol Agents and non-agent druggists. No need to accept substitutes. Any druggist can get Winsol remedies for you through his jobber.

NEUROPATHIC DROPS, the great emergency medicine, and CERIZANE BALSAM, for coughs, are two Winsol remedies that should be kept in every home. Ask your druggist about them.

DORCHESTER MAN KILLED BY AUTO

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—Running across Tremont street, near the junction of Broadway Extension, in an effort to catch a car, Morris Lazar, 46 years old, married, of 156 Talbot avenue, Dorchester, was fatally injured when he was run over by an automobile truck owned by Dennis Mahoney of 264 Milton street, Readville. The truck was operated by John P. Mahoney, of the same address, who was held by the police of the Lagrange street station on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Lazar on being struck by the truck was thrown forward a few feet and the left front wheel passed over his head. He was removed to the City hospital and on arrival was pronounced dead by Dr. Bowe. The body was

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with the draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Adv.

YANKS AGAIN BEAT TIGERS

Overcome Five-Run Lead and Maintain 3½ Game Advantage Over Browns

Giants Drop Another to Pirates But Still Hold a Comfortable Lead

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—By overcoming a five run lead and defeating the Detroit Tigers yesterday, 9 to 8, while the Browns were winning from Washington 7 to 6, the Yankees today maintained their lead of three and one half games over the St. Louis club. It was the Browns' first victory in their last four games.

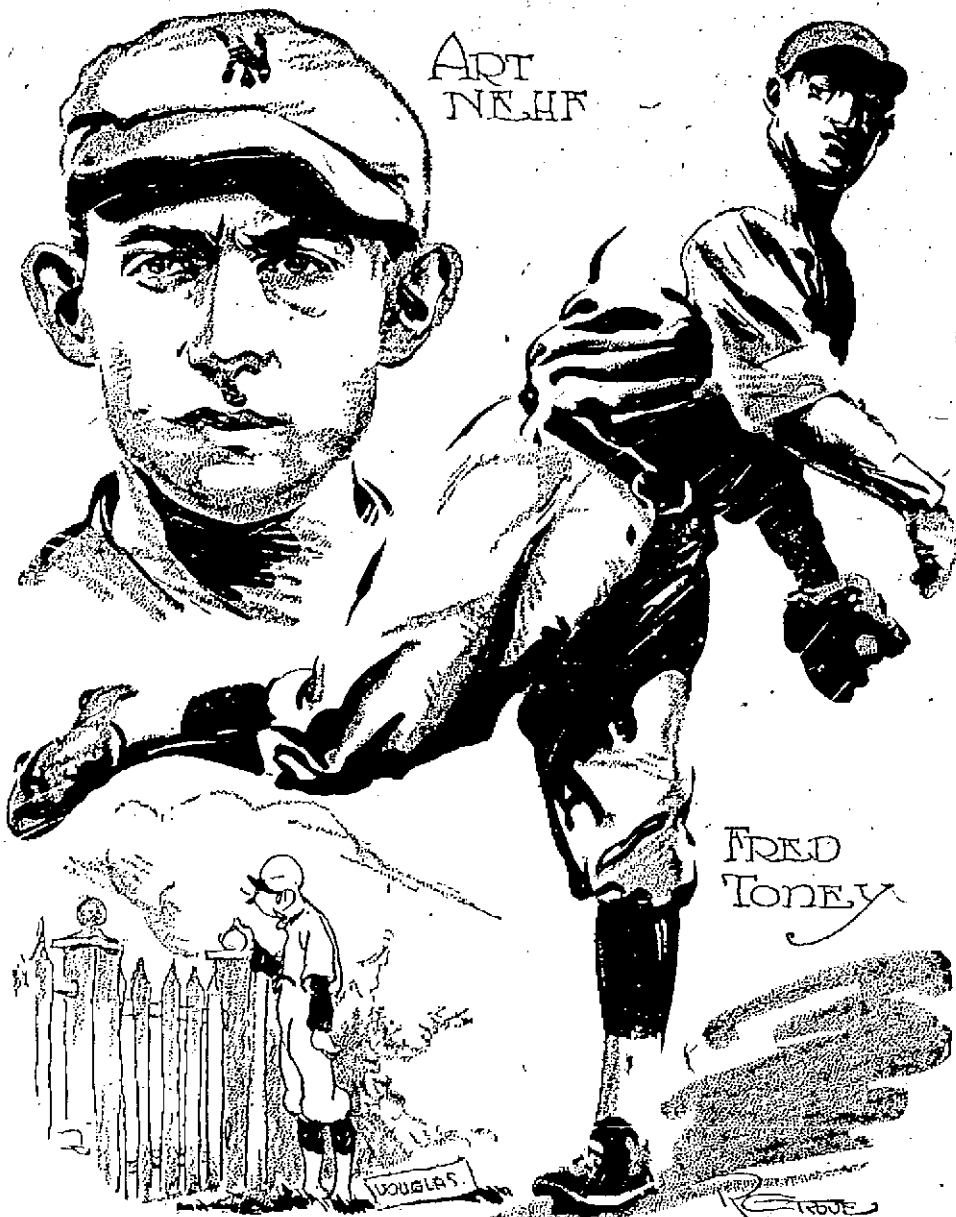

The Yankees have seven more games to play while the Browns have six on their schedule. Thus, if the Huggins win four of their contests and the Browns win all of their games, the New York club will win the pennant by one full game.

The Giants lost ground in their penultimate game when they dropped a second game to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 1, and are now only three and one half games to the good. To make the pennant a mathematical certainty, the Giants must win seven of their remaining 11 games. However, the Pirates, with eight games on their schedule to move up, the leaders must finish the season without a defeat while the Giants win only five of their games.

The Cubs and Phillies and Cincinnati and the Boston Nationals split doubleheaders and Brooklyn won from St. Louis in other National league contests. In the American league the Athletics defeated Chicago, 6 to 1, and Boston took a sweater from Cleveland, 15 to 1, in other games.

The Yankees opened their final series at Cleveland today, while the Browns face the Athletics. Washington at Chicago and Boston at Detroit are other games in the American league today. Doubleheaders will be played between Cincinnati and Boston and Chicago and Philadelphia, while the Pirates continue their series with the Giants at the Polo Grounds and St. Louis meets Brooklyn at Ebbets Field in National league contests today.

Brilliant Hurling Will Be McGraw's Main Problem

LOWELL HORSEMEN OFF TO GROTON FAIR

Lowell horsemen, a dozen or more, piled into waiting automobiles at Town's corner shortly after noon today and started for the Groton fair. The drivers and owners are well represented in the crowd, which is scheduled for this cozy country ball. Mary Q. the Braden speeder, is entered in the 2½ mile pace, with Oscar Hewell up. Jack McQuinn, driver, over with Barker, going into the 228. Geo. Parker has two horses in the Groton stakes. Mike Delmar and Barcelona. They are ready for the 224. Mike Senecal will be the driver.

Hector Clough goes along with Ethan Allen, Jr., a bay stud for the "slow class," but a classy speeder all the same in the pinches. Thilo Green has entered Jackson in a slow feature that has good money attached.

The first day's racing at the popular Topsfield fair yesterday brought a first-position win for Mayor White of Lawrence, who entered Ariola and captured the top money. This horse is a chestnut mare, but is to be sold at the horse auction after the Topsfield race.

Mayor White announced today that four other good ones owned by him are to be disposed of also at Topsfield. He picked them up early in the year, and all have received regular training. White's driving yesterday was the talk of the fair attendees, second position going to the Scammon Boy, a bay gelding driving by M. F. Fitzgerald.

George Hudson came in fourth position at Topsfield yesterday, with his new one, Spirit, a chestnut mare with many good points and a "future," so the fans say. This was the Class A "fast race," so Hudson didn't lose much.

Entries are coming in freely for the last meeting of the Lowell Driving club season at Golden Cove in October. Four new animals with good make and a variety of speed in good order are in the cards for the first race.

RECORD GATE FOR SIKI- CARPENTIER BOUT

PARIS, Sept. 22—(By the Associated Press.) A record gate will be received for the first time in the history of boxing in France when Georges Carpentier, the heavyweight boxing champion of Europe, engages in the ropes at the new Hippodrome Velodrome Sunday afternoon to face the undefeated Senegalese, "Batling" Siki.

Although Carpentier has not performed before his countrymen since the fight with Dick Smith at the Cirque, July 9, 1919, and despite his defeat by Jack Dempsey, his popularity with the general public remains such that all attendance and gate receipt records are broken by the advance sale.

More than 100,000 francs for the reserved section has already been turned in, while unreserved seats for a like amount are certain to be filled. Forty thousand more persons are expected to fill the arena.

All expect to see the French idol win inside of six rounds.

SISLER WINS TROPHY

St. Louis Star Honored as Player of Greatest Service to His Team

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 22 (By the Associated Press.)—Geo. H. Sisler, brilliant first baseman for the St. Louis Browns, who yesterday was awarded the American league trophy offered by the club owners as a reward to the player who proved of the greatest service to his team during the 1922 season, declared to the Associated Press today that he hoped to duplicate his feat next year.

The name of the local baseball idol will be the first inscribed on the $100,000 baseball monument which is to be erected by the American league in Washington and which is to be presented to the government as a memorial to the national pastime and the memory of those who died during the war.

Sisler has excelled in almost every department of baseball, his selection came as no surprise to local fans who were expecting him to be named as the most valuable player of the American league.

Sisler's exceptional performance on the diamond was not all considered in the ranking. His deportment on and off the field also played a big part in his being selected the first player for the roll of honor in American league baseball.

Co-operation in teamwork and regularity in service were other factors which resulted in his selection. Sisler started his diamond career as a pitcher at the University of Michigan, where he struck out 25 of 21 bats.

He was selected the first player for the roll of honor in American league baseball.

JOHNNY BROWN ON TOP

Wins Decision Over Freddie Williams in Fast Bout—Flaherty Beats Brewster

Newport Johnny Brown was awarded the decision over Freddie Williams after ten rounds of sensational fighting in the main event of the Moody club show at the Crescent rink last night.

The fight was a thriller from beginning to end with Brown demonstrating terrific hitting abilities and Williams showing a remarkable repertoire of clean-cut knockdown in the third and fourth rounds.

A great man have around to finish games. Douglas won 15 starts. His deceptive spitball also made him an ideal pitcher in finish a game when some pitcher faltered.

McGraw has been forced to go along without these pitchers, a greater part of the season. Toney, from the start, was little of an use. Douglas pitched remarkable ball in spots.

All Kinds of Trades
Artie Nehf, McGraw's great little southpaw, has continued his winning ways.

However, to bolster up the rest of the staff, McGraw has resorted to all kinds of trades and sales.

Good work by Ryan, who scarcely was listed as a regular last season, has helped. The purchase of MacBain from Boston also was a wonder stroke. In dire extremity McGraw even resorted to John Scott, released by Cincinnati because it was believed a bad arm had ended his pitching days for all time.

If the Giants represent the National league in the world's series, pitching will be the big issue with McGraw. It has been his big won all season.

Phil Douglas's Work
I have inspired in a half dozen world series and been a spectator at as many more. In all that time I have never seen better twirling than that delivered by Phil Douglas last fall.

In making such a statement I am taking into consideration the remarkable feats of Matthews, Brown, Babe Adams, Fisher, Bender, Plank and many other stars of olden days.

Douglas certainly was McGraw's ace in the class of last year. He will be greatly missed if the Giants win the right to play in the 1922 event.

Ask the Yankees
If you have your doubts as to Douglas's work just fall just confer with any member of the New York Yankees. They all have a wholesome regard for his prowess.

The big mountaineer worked three great games against the Yankees, one a defeat, two of them victories. He was the man who saved the day for the Giants when the Yankees were riding high.

Pitching has been, and still is, McGraw's big problem. It is a difficult matter to compute what the loss of Douglas means to the Giants.

courts of the West Side Tennis club at Forest Hills.

Aside from the rivalry between the two sections of the country interest will center in two of the singles matches.

The first of these will be today between Mrs. Mollie Rutherford Mallory of New York and Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles, runner up in 1921 and considered "marvelous Mollie," mightiest contender. The match will be Miss Browne's reappearance in "big time" tennis circles.

In the second match, to be played tomorrow, William T. Tilden 2nd, of Philadelphia, national men's champion, will meet William M. Johnston of San Francisco, who forced the eastern wizard to two sets last Saturday in the final match of this year's national championship. It was the third successive year that Tilden had won the title.

By defeating Johnston last week Tilden increased his life time scoring superiority over "Little Bill," but the coast star has an opportunity to even the count which now stands six matches to five and 23 sets to 24 in favor of the Philadelphian.

BY BILLY EVANS
Groh, New York Giant—Groh is no longer a youngster. His play the greater part of the year has been handicapped by an injured knee. Seems back in good shape again, and he's been playing his hang-up game at third down the home stretch.

Groh is an experienced veteran, who has the business of playing third down to a science. He appears able to renege the batsman's intentions, whether he is going to bunt or hit.

Groh bats right handed. His stance at the plate is entirely different from that of any other major player. He directly faces the pitcher and steps into the ball as it nears the plate. Is rated a fine batsman.

Dugan, New York American—A youngster with remarkable ability, destined to be one of the greatest third snappers of all time when he gets confidence in the alley he really possesses. At present Dugan doesn't realize what a great player he is.

Dugan bats right handed. Is inclined to hit in spots. When he is on his game he is mighty dangerous at the plate.

Has a fine pair of hands and a wonderful throwing arm. Has played his best ball since joining the Yankees. Will show constant improvement.

Foster, St. Louis Browns—A veteran of other days, who is nearing the end of a great career. Has always been a marvelous leader, death on bunts, is a good batter and is the best place hitter in the game today. On the hit he can run play he is a wonder, the way he can hit through the vacated slot.

His legs are bothering him, but he still plays a nice game in the field. Bats right handed.

The honors at third base go to Groh; his ability, plus experience, giving him a shade over the brilliant youngster, Dugan, and the fading star of other days, the great little Eddie Foster.

4 CHAMPION TROTTERS OUT TO BREAK RECORDS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 22—Four champion trotters, three with world's records of a mile in better than two minutes, will attempt to reduce their time at North Randall track this afternoon.

Peter Manning, world's fastest trotter, will attempt to lower his mark of 1:57½, made at the Lexington track October 6, last year. He will be driven by Thomas W. Murphy, the Poughkeepsie tinsmith, who also will pilot Arion Guy, world's champion trotting stallion.

In an effort to break his record of 1:59½, Arion Guy also established his record at the Lexington track on last October 6.

The third world's champion to be sent against her time is Nedda. The mare trotted a mile in 1:50½, without the aid of a pace setter.

Guardian Trust, champion three year old trotter and the fastest four-year-old of 1922, will go against his record of 2:02½, made at North Randall last August 10.

Making Your Own Movies

—Scenario Writing Secrets

BY JAMES A. CREELMAN
Film Guild Scenario Editor

Twenty years ago Bronco Billy Anderson used to start out in the morning with a camera, a carload of actors and a bright idea. He wrote the scenario on the back of an envelope as he motored toward some likely location, and then, in the course of the day, filmed the entire story.

Nowadays it takes about two months to write the scenario—called the continuity in studios—exclusive of the time taken to write the original story. But you can still steal Bronco Billy's idea of making a movie told almost entirely in exterior outdoor scenes—a feat to which cowboy pictures lend themselves.

Study your original story for several days, and analyze it for dramatic faults. As you write the story will naturally divide itself into sequences of action occurring in various periods of time in the same locality. These sequences correspond to the acts of a play and in a five reeler there are, from 12 to 14 of them.

Each sequence opens and closes with a fade effect, fading in or fading out. Each progresses to its own dramatic climax. Sequences are connected with lapses of time or change of locale subtitles (the written words on the screen) such as "One Hour Later," or "In Jim's Apartment."

First plan the scenario in skeleton form. Try to write it all in action which needs no words. Where words are absolutely necessary, put in a subtitle, preferably a spoken title. Establish each new setting with a long shot; after that use close-ups chiefly.

As soon as you are satisfied with the skeleton begin to dictate the final scenario. Dictating is easier than writing it, because you can visualize as you go along. You must dictate every move, every gesture, every nuance of feeling in your script.

The only mechanical effects you need bother with are the fades and rises (your curtains) and the dissolve-outs and dissolve-ins where the scenes melt into each other. If you want any special effect, describe it in simple English and leave it to the director. The fewer mechanical effects you have in your scenario the better, anyway. Double exposure transparencies and the like remind the audience that it is only a movie after all.

Do not write in any action which does not bear strictly on the plot. You can prune your scenes down tremendously by planning two parallel lines of action and cutting from one to the other. While Mary is fighting off the villain, John is rushing to the rescue in an automobile, and so forth.

You'd better devote the first one or two sequences to the character building. After that start the suspense, the story proper.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 22.—More than 1600 athletes and 46 rifle teams have entered the American Legion National Athletic championship meet to be held during the national convention of the legion in New Orleans, October 1-10, officials in charge of the meet announced today. Entries close October 1.

UNVEIL MEMORIAL TO JAMES C. DUNN

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 22.—Before today's game with the New York Americans is started a bronze plaque bearing the likeness of James C. Dunn, founder of the Cleveland team who died June 18, will be unveiled by Mayor Brad Kohler. The memorial is a gift of the members of the Cleveland first department (com. Chief George A. Wallace) and is in appreciation of an order from Mr. Dunn when he bought the Cleveland team, to admit any fireman wearing his badge to the ball games free of charge.

LEONARD WHITE BOAT POSTPONED

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The lightweight championship bout between Benny Leonard, title-holder, and Charlie White of Chicago, scheduled for Saturday Oct. 8, was indefinitely postponed yesterday. Another postponement on Leonard's jaw for bone infection was announced as the cause. Leonard, who has sustained a jaw fracture, announced that considerable further treatment will be necessary and it is understood that he will not be ready to re-enter the ring until November or December. It is probable that the bout with White will be staged in Madison Square Garden toward the end of the year.

Opportunities Ought to Be Restricted to Aristocracy of Brains, Says Hopkins

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 21.—Opportunities of higher education ought to be increasingly restricted to an aristocracy of brains, composed of the intellectually alert and eager, if democracy is to become a quality product rather than one of quantity, said President Ernest M. Hopkins of Dartmouth college in addressing the student body at the opening of the academic year today.

"To many of us as college men," he said, "the opportunities for securing an education by way of the college course are definitely a privilege and not at all a universal right. The funds available for appropriation to the uses of institutions of higher learning are not limitless, and cannot be made so whether their origin be sought in the resources of public taxation or in the secure benefactions for the enhancing of private endowments.

"It consequently becomes essential that a working theory be taught that will co-operate with some degree of accuracy to define the individuals who shall make up the group to whom, in justice to the public good, the privilege shall be extended and to specify those from whom the privileges should be withheld.

"This is a two-fold necessity: On the one hand that men incapable of profiting by the advantages which the college offers or indisposed, shall not be withdrawn from useful work to spend their time profitlessly in idleness acquiring false standards of living; and on the other hand, that the contributions which the college is capable of making to the lives of competent men and through them to society shall not be too largely lessened by the slackening of pace due to the presence of men indifferent or wanting in capacity."

"Too often men reputed to be seeking an education are seeking membership in a 'social organization which has reputation for affording an education,' President Hopkins asserted.

"It would be incompatible with all of the conceptions of democracy," he continued, "to assume that the privilege of higher education should be accorded to any class defined by the accident of birth or by the fortuitous circumstance of possession of wealth, but there is such a thing as an aristocracy of brains, made up of men intellectually alert and intellectually eager, to whom increasingly the opportunities of higher education ought to be restricted, if democracy is to become a quality product rather than simply a quantity one and if excellence and effectiveness are to displace the mediocrity toward which democracy has such a tendency to slide."

President Hopkins said he would "carefully safeguard these statements" by reiterating that "it behooves all of us to avoid confusing the symbols and the facts of intellectual quality."

"I should hope," he added, "that under any circumstances we might avoid confusing mental gymnastics and facility in appropriating the ideas of others with genuine thinking."

President Hopkins sounded a warning against what he termed "the spirit of propaganda."

"Many of us thought we were to have been done with any necessity for thinking of or discussing propaganda, once the war should have been ended," he said, "but instead we find ourselves confronted with the definite possibility that what was reluctantly accepted as a war necessity, will be imposed upon us in larger dimensions and with greater thoroughness than ever before as a working procedure in daily life."

TO AID BUSINESS MEN

Will Be Supplied With Facts on Industrial Activity in Europe by Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 21.—American business interests will be supplied with current information as to the movement of commodity prices and industrial activity in Europe by Harvard university. This service will be accomplished through the university's economic service in conjunction with a committee of British economists representing the Universities of London and Cambridge, the Federation of British Industries, and the Central council for economic information.

Sir William H. Beveridge, Prof. A. L. Bowley, Prof. John Maynard Keynes and H. D. Henderson are included in the committee membership, according to the announcement of the plan made today by Fred Y. Presley, general economic manager of the Harvard economic service.

An index on the same principles of the present Harvard system, accompanied by forecast of British industrial conditions, will be opened the first of next year in England to be known as the London-Cambridge service.

According to the plan Harvard and the London organization will exchange by cable monthly data listing commodity prices, securities and money rates in their respective countries.

BRIEF BUT IMPORTANT WIRE DESPATCHES

GENEVA, Sept. 21.—(By the Associated Press.) The Council of the League of Nations decided today to increase the non-permanent membership of the council from four to six. This will make the council membership ten, with the non-permanent members in the majority.

ORONO, Me., Sept. 21.—University of Maine opened today for its 55th year with prospects of the largest registration in the history of the institution.

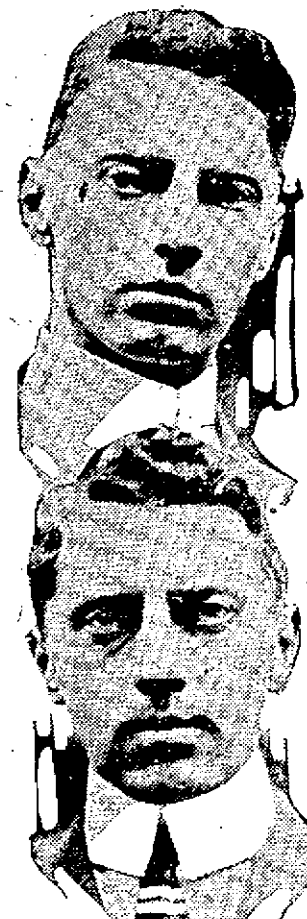

MARION, Ill., Sept. 21 (By the Associated Press.) According to its investigation the special grand jury inquiring into the Herrin mine killings today had on hand another large batch of witnesses, some of whom were expected to give first hand accounts of the killings.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 21.—The federal labor party of Australia has cabled the British labor party announcing the opposition of the Australian labor organization to war without the consent of the Australian people.

A bathometer registers the depth of water beneath vessels without sounding.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Great Britain's payment of interest on her war debt to the United States, due October 15th, will amount to approximately $50,000,000, according to the belief expressed today by treasury officials.

In setting forth this opinion they disclosed that the British government had asked the United States for an approximation of the $50,000,000 of interest due next month and of the $50,000,000 of interest due November 15, might be made in October pending arrangements for refunding the $5,000,000,000 British debt. The British debt at present bears interest at the rate of 5 per cent payable in semi-annual installments but as there is a probability that the funding scheme will provide for interest at 4 1/2 per cent treasury officials think the approximation probably will be allowed in October.

Shame on Them.

PERHAPS there are a few mothers who do not know the virtues of Fletcher's Castoria. Perhaps there are a few who know that there are imitations on the market, and knowing this demand Fletcher's. It is to ALL motherhood, then, that we call attention to the numerous imitations and counterfeits that may be set before them.

It is to all motherhood everywhere that we ring out the warning to beware of the "Just-as-good". For over thirty years Fletcher's Castoria has been an aid in the upbuilding of our population; an aid in the saving of babies.

And yet there are those who would ask you to try something new. Try this. Try that. Even try the same remedy for the tiny, scarcely breathing, babe that you in all your robust womanhood would use for yourself. Shame on them.

YOUTHFUL AUTO THIEVES COME TO GRIEF

Four youths received stiff sentences in the juvenile court this morning when they were adjudged guilty of the theft of an automobile last Saturday night, the property of Mitchell Evans, the foreman of the Chase Wall Paper Co. on Appleton street. Three of the boys were given a term at the boys' school at Shirley and the fourth was fined $25. Two of them appealed the Shirley sentence but the other could not as he was under a previously suspended sentence to that institution.

According to the story told by the police, the boys took the machine from Paige street, near the Y.W.C.A., where it was parked last Saturday night, and started in the direction of Lawrence, traveling over the First street boulevard. Officers Drowell and Creamer noticed the boys in the machine and apprised that something was wrong. They commanded a passing truck and gave chase to the machine. The officers gained on the car and when at a point beyond the First street car barns the boys jumped from the machine and allowed the car to run off on its own power. Luckily the car struck a fence and stopped in its driverless progress or it would have plunged into the river.

Later the officers corralled one of the boys and he told the officers all the names of the other three youths who were in the party. They were rounded up by the police and appeared in the session of the juvenile court this morning for trial.

THE MUTUAL SAVINGS BANK IDEA

First, is to protect the savings of the wage earner and people of moderate means from loss from any cause.
Second, to invest these savings in securities that pay sure and regular interest.

The Massachusetts Savings Bank Laws carefully state just what kind of securities the Savings Banks can invest in. All interest paid to the bank on these investments goes to the depositors after paying expenses, taxes and a stipulated sum has been set aside in the guarantee fund.

The guarantee fund is for the protection of depositors. This is why MUTUAL is applied to SAVINGS BANKS.

ACTION TAKEN BY FRENCH CABINET

Britain to Keep Troops at Chanak—Refuses to Bind Herself to Terms

PARIS, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press) The French cabinet today decided that in view of the refusal of the British to withdraw their forces from Chanak on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, the efforts of the French government should be directed toward preventing war between Turkey and Great Britain. To this end it was agreed immediately to send Franklin Bouillon to Smyrna, as the negotiator of the agreement reached at Angora between the French and the Turkish nationalists, will urge upon Mustafa Kemal Pasha the necessity of remaining in Asia Minor until the peace terms are decided upon.

The French negotiator will probably leave today or tomorrow and he hopes to arrive in Smyrna before the termination of the conference now in progress there between Kemal and his governmental and military chiefs for the purpose of deciding whether to push on in the face of the British military and naval concentration or await the results of the peace negotiations.

When the conference met this afternoon Premier Poincaré, Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, Count Sforza of Italy, and Lord Hardinge, British ambassador in Paris, were present. Lord Curzon at once presented the British decisions reached by the cabinet in London yesterday, including the declaration that her troops remain at Chanak and her unwillingness to bind herself to peace terms in advance.

Premier Poincaré, it was understood, continued his efforts to persuade the British to adopt a more conciliatory attitude.

ROME, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press) The Apostolic delegation at Constantinople telegraphed the Vatican today that the situation there was very grave.

COTTON INDUSTRY ACTIVE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Increased activity in the cotton spinning industry during August, as compared with July, was reported today by the census bureau. The number of active spindles was placed at 8,023,000,129, an increase of more than 983,000,000 over the preceding month. Although three cotton spinning states showed declines in the number of active spindles, the losses were slight and not a single state was represented showing reductions in spindles.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 22.—Complaint that fares charged on the electric lines of the Portland Railroad company are excessive, was made today to the public utilities commission by eight aldermen and 13 councilmen of the city of Portland. GREECE MUST KEEP THRACE

Consider Thrace Part of Homeland—Essential Condition to Peace Conference

ATHENS, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press) Greece will never permit the Turks to invade Thrace, which she considers part of her homeland and retention of which is "an essential preliminary condition to any peace conference." This declaration was made in a statement to The Associated Press by the Greek foreign office today.

"We have lost Asia Minor but we must keep Thrace," said the statement. "That is an essential preliminary condition to any peace conference. Our army in Asia Minor, which had been fighting for 10 years, was absolutely exhausted but the Greek nation will never permit the Turks to invade Thrace, which we consider home territory."

"Unhappily we lack ammunition, artillery and general equipment, but hope our friends will help us in our efforts to keep the Turks out of Europe and that the English fleet will aid us in preventing the Turks from crossing the straits."

"The Smyrna massacre speaks for itself. Greece is defending Christian civilization."

"Internally Greece is quiet. There is absolutely no danger of a revolution. Foreign reports of trouble are the outgrowth of the insistence of our troops that they be returned to Phrygia instead of being demobilized on the islands."

"Our king remains because the people demand him and want him. By the right shall any foreign nation interfere with the expressed will of the Greek people?"

CLERKS WANT PAY FOR OVERTIME

A protest has been lodged with Mayor George H. Brown on behalf of certain clerks employed in the elections commission office relative to pay alleged due them for overtime work in connection with the recent registration session and primaries.

The matter brings up an interesting point in that whether the duties of the Budget and Auditing commission can over-ride the general laws and just how far such a question can be carried. One member of the commission said this morning that he was firm in the belief that some sort of an opinion should be handed down by the city solicitor and if such an opinion could not be obtained there, the attorney general should be appealed to to clear up the point at issue.

The facts of the case are during the three weeks just before and at primary time it was necessary to ask the clerks to work overtime that desired results might be obtained. A bill

TURKS SEIZE TOWN OF EZ-INE

Move to Prevent Free Ingress to Dardanelles to British Atlantic Fleet

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 22, 12.45 p. m. (By the Associated Press)—Turkish nationalist forces have seized the town of Ez-ine, on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, and are threatening Kumkaleh, an important key position on the southern side of the straits. The Kemalists are nowhere opposed.

The nationalist move, in the opinion of naval experts here, will enable the Turks to prevent free ingress to the Dardanelles to the British Atlantic fleet units which are on the way from Malta.

The important positions involved were up to today occupied by the French and the Italians, and from them the heavy Turkish batteries can command the entrance to the straits.

Announces That He Will Try to Accomplish the Feat Next Year

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press) Henry Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., who made several attempts to swim the English channel, has abandoned for this year his hopes of accomplishing the feat because of unfavorable conditions.

It is now at the top of the spring-tide, that is, the solar and lunar tide acting together produce the maximum tide. Meteorological experts have told Sullivan that next month's conditions will be equally as bad as this month. The swimmer feels that there is no use in making an attempt this year. He is scheduled to sail on the President Polk tomorrow.

He told the Associated Press correspondent that he would try again next year.

Authorities Turn to Questioning of Individual Members of Church

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 22.—The mystery of who killed the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist, and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, wife of the sexton, was far from solution today as it was nearly a week ago when the bodies were found.

Authorities turned to questioning the individual members of the little church, indicating that the investigators give some weight to the theory advanced by Ellis Parker, famous Burlington county detective, that the slain couple may have been the victims of a person inspired by religious fanaticism, an obsession to be conscious of the conduct of the clergyman may have prompted the crime, according to this theory.

James Mills, husband of the dead woman, was to be questioned further today in an effort to learn the identity of the woman who first told him of rumors about the clergyman and Mrs. Mills.

Both Mills and Mrs. Hall are vigorous in declaring they do not believe stories of improper relations between the pair.

Mills was re-examined at length today and it was understood that the authorities made strenuous efforts to help him recall the name of the woman he says told him several months ago that gossip was linking the names of Mrs. Mills and Mr. Hall.

Questioning of church members was continued today. The questioners were ready to follow lines supporting any one of three theories:

That the murders were committed with a jealous motive.

That they were committed by blackmailers, who had become desperate.

That they were committed by some self-appointed moral censor in the minister's flock.

The only theory which has been advanced that they appeared unwilling to consider seriously was that of a robbery motive. Their fervent faith, however, is pinned to the jealous motive.

Mrs. Hall, the rector's wealthy widow, issued a statement today through Miss Sally Peters, a friend of the family, denying reports yesterday that she had suggested a robbery motive for the murder. Miss Peters quoted her as saying she had no clue as to the motive, but that she was inclined toward the mistaken identity theory.

The rector's wallet was missing from the Hall home, however, she said.

Detectives who had been investigating a report that an attempt had been made to poison Mrs. Mills at a tea party several weeks before the slayings, today obtained partial confirmation of the story of Mrs. James Tenneson, a sister of the dead woman.

"Mrs. Mills told me last June," said Mrs. Tenneson, "that something very peculiar had happened to her at this tea party. She said she was served with coffee, but that she drank only a sip of it as she had never tasted any coffee like that in her life."

"She said she felt ill almost immediately and went home, where she felt distressed for some time, but was not seriously alarmed."

"I can almost remember the exact words she said to me. They were: 'You know, if I weren't sure Mrs. Mills was a friend of mine, I would be certain there was poison in it.'"

Threw Away Notes Worth $2000

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 22.—Finding that he had thrown away in fun unsigned national bank notes amounting to $2000, believing them to be worthless, William B. Soucia, foreman of a bridge construction gang, today admitted that the joke was on him when he was informed that the notes were negotiable. The bills were found tucked away in a bridge pier that was being razed and were part of a lot of $10,000 believed to have been stolen while en route from Washington to the banks in western Massachusetts. Soucia and two others noting that the bills were unsigned, amused themselves for several days by throwing them in the street and watching persons scramble for them. They were in denominations from $5 to $20.

Key of Building Presented by John H. Harrington and Accepted by Mayor

Impressive Gathering of 4000 People Pays Homage to Heroes of Three Wars

The Lowell Memorial Auditorium, gift of a grateful people, temple of peace, meeting place of thousands in the years that stretch ahead, was dedicated and turned over to the city as a public building last evening at exercises that forever will remain a fragrant memory in the minds of those who were privileged to attend.

Graced and honored by the presence of the second officer of the union, first official of the old commonwealth, head of the northeastern department of war, the city's own representative in congress and hundreds of men and women who answered their country's call for mobilization in 1917 to '18, in 1918 and again in 1917, the exercises were national in aspect, surrounded by the mantle of patriotism and Americanism and glorified by the knowledge that that which was being done was to the eternal honor of those sons and daughters of Lowell who had given their last full measure of devotion that this nation might live and hold her place among the powers of the world.

Prominent Men as Speakers

The speakers were His Excellency, Calvin Coolidge, twice governor of Massachusetts and now vice-president of the United States; Governor Channing H. Cox, Major General Clarence H. Edwards, head of the northeastern department of war and former Yankee division commander; Hon. John C. Rogers, representative in congress from the fifth district; John H. Harrington, chairman of the building commission and presiding officer, who formally turned over the building to the city by presenting the key, and Hon. George H. Brown, mayor, who accepted it.

Four thousand men and women of Lowell, filled every chair and seat in the magnificent Auditorium and for more than two hours paid homage to the memory of those whose sacrifices made the building and the subsequent exercises possible.

Significant from beginning to end from the standpoint of eulogy and oratory, and beautiful ceremony, the exercises were made even more inspiring by the splendid work of the Lowell Choral society, which sang "Unfold, Ye Portals," from "The Resurrection," and "The Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah."

Program Excellently Executed

There was not a discordant note struck during the entire ceremony. The program was carried through without hesitation and its success forever will remain a monument to the men of the building commission who conceived and accomplished it.

The building itself was a beautiful setting. The magnificence of the interior.

rior was enhanced and accentuated by the brilliance of the lighting effects and the burning floral decorations that were artistically arranged on the stage and in trophy hall. Completely filled, the appearance of the Auditorium must have been an inspiration to the speakers, as it was to those who were privileged to listen.

The outside doors were thrown open at 7 o'clock, although long before that hour hundreds of people lined the opposite side of East Merrimack street, and many others strolled along the beautiful esplanade on the river side. The uniforms of army and navy men were everywhere—uniforms of old blue, uniforms of blue and gray and uniforms of khaki, veterans of three wars.

Entrance of G.A.R. Men

For an hour the Auditorium filled, gradually at first, but gaining in rapidity as the hour of 8 o'clock approached. Just before 8 o'clock, Borden orchestra swung into "Marching Through Georgia" and down the main center aisle two abreast, marched the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, with Capt. Joseph A. Molloy, D.S.C., as escort. As the audience rose and applauded, the boys of '61 and '65 were given chairs of honor in the front rows. The remainder of the main floor was filled by veterans of the two

Spanish and World wars and their guests.

In the second row were Judges George P. Lawton, John C. Loggatt, Stanley E. Qua, Thomas J. Barlett, Frederic A. Maher and John J. McMahon, wearing their official robes; Charles H. Hobson, Major Frederick A. Josten and Thomas P. Boulger of the board of trustees; Representatives Owen F. Brewster, Charles H. Stowey, Victor F. Jewett, Henry Aeblin, Jr. and Thos. J. Corbett and members of the city government. Several rows of chairs in back were occupied by officers of military organizations, allied societies, Red Cross representatives and guests.

There is no more beautiful stage adornment conceivable than the dark maroon curtain that cuts off the gallery from the stage. When its folds were pulled apart, revealing the members of the chorus society and orchestra, an audible expression of happy surprise ran through the vast auditorium. Few had realized what the curtain concealed and the impression made upon the gathering was instantaneous and lasting. It completed the picture and became a vital part of it.

Invocation by Dr. Keleher

At just 8:25 o'clock all interior doors were closed by the ushers as Chairman John H. Harrington rose to open the exercises. He presented Rev. D. J. Keleher, one of the city's most distinguished clergymen, to give the invocation, which was as follows:

"Almighty Father, we pray to Thee. We adore Thee Infinite Majesty. We thank Thee for Thy never failing goodness to us; to our nation, our state and our city.

"With joy of heart we are assembled in this noble structure to dedicate it to Thine Honor, and to invoke Thy continued protection over it. It is true that it is not a temple of religion; it is a temple of citizenship. It is dedicated to the intellectual, moral, social, artistic and patriotic welfare of the inhabitants of our city, present and future. But these ends can be reached only by a people who love and fear Thee, and respect and keep Thy commandments. Grant, O Lord, that we may be always such a people, and that this edifice may be ever worthily used, and never profaned by those enemies of our country's liberties, and of that sound morality which must ever be the bulwark of these liberties. "Grant that its memorial character may speak to generations as yet unborn of our love, our gratitude, and our admiration for the men and women of Lowell who have served our beloved country in her hours of peril. May his walls stand firm through the ages to witness to the world the history of their unflinching loyalty. And may the memory of their deeds and their sacrifices keep alive in the hearts of our people the patriotic spirit of which they have given such noble examples.

"We invoke Thy blessing upon all who have contributed to the success of this enterprise; upon the members of the civic society who conceived it, upon the members of our city government and of the legislature who made it possible, upon the governor who gave his approval, upon the architects, builders, and artisans who contributed their best efforts, upon the members of the building commission who have labored unflinchingly to bring about the happy results which we witness this day, and finally, we ask Thee to bless all our people who willingly bear an increase of their burdens in order that our city may possess this noble and useful monument. We ask much, but we ask it with the confidence befitting Thy child.

Dear to the heart of every true soldier, every patriot and every citizen in the desire to pay respect to "the colors," At the sight of our flag with its glorious stripes of alternate red and white; its white stars on a field of blue, something throbs in the breasts of all of us that cannot be described, but which only the sight of Old Glory can produce.

To every soldier the trooping of the colors has a significance that no other military exercise conveys. When the flags are brought "center" everyone feels before him that banner which stands for all that is right and good. When this exercise commenced the vast audience was hushed.

At a word of command from Major Colby T. Kiltredge, flags of our nation and from the various veterans' posts appeared from three different parts of the hall. Down the center aisle came three flags born by three representatives of the Grand Army of the Republic. The bearers were J. K. Knowlton, Isaac Patnaude and Chester Goodwin. Six members of the Spanish War Veterans acted as a color escort. They were Carl Lambert, Albert Richardson, James Molloy, William Donnellan, Fred Cheney and John P. McBride. From the entrance at the left of the stage appeared another detachment bearing the national colors and the flag of the American Legion. Joseph E. Coughlin carried the national flag, and Thomas M. Gargan carried the Legion's standard. The color guard consisted of Mark W. Flannery, sailor, and George M. Walsh, soldier. From the right appeared the national colors and the Spanish war flag. The colors were carried by Carl F. Fehr and George E. Everett. The guards were John H. Ward and John M. Lund, Spanish War Veterans.

As the flags, with their color guard, made appearance the audience rose and came to rigid "attention." To the front of the stage came the squad, and at a word of command faced the audience. At "present arms" eight guns were snapped to position by the guards. Buglers Riggs, Reegan, Lamoreaux and Carli "played up the colors." At the command of "order arms" the guns were snapped back to the floor. The flags were then placed in positions at either side of the stage.

The entire ceremony was simple and lasted but a few minutes, but it was perfectly executed and there are few who witnessed it who will ever forget its impression.

At a word from Chairman Harrington the audience then rose and sang "America."

Vice President Coolidge's Speech

In presenting Vice President Coolidge, Chairman Harrington brought to mind the fact that the act under which the Auditorium was built was signed by him during his last term as governor of Massachusetts.

The vice president spoke as follows:

"In the erection of this memorial the people of Lowell have put in serviceable and enduring form their appreciation of the men and women who have served their country in the day of national peril. The contribution which the military forces have made to the well-being of America is beyond estimation. It reaches all the way from the little band of Pilgrims under the command of Miles Standish down to the gigantic expeditionary force abroad, supported by an even larger force at home, under command of General Pershing. The defense and the perpetuation of liberty has rested upon the determination of the American people to pledge to its support their fortunes and their lives. When this spirit has no longer been cherished by a people, they have fallen prey to those who did cherish it, their heritage has been destroyed, and their name has been blotted out from the effect on history. This Auditorium will stand along with your army as a citadel for the defense of American liberty.

MASSACHUSETTS BAKERY TO CHANGE HANDS

Negotiations are under way for the purchase of the Massachusetts bakery in Hildreth street, the home of the Honey Crust bread, by Henry L. Turcotte, a well known business man of this city. It is expected that the final papers in the transaction will be signed within a week or ten days and that Mr. Turcotte will take possession of the business by Oct. 1.

The Massachusetts bakery is one of the largest of its kind in the city, the weekly output being about 30,000 loaves. It is now owned by Adam Gullmette, whose plans after transferring the bakery will be to retire and look after his real estate. In connection with the shop, there are also three buildings, the home of Mr. Gullmette in Hildreth street, the home of the foreman of the shop in Alken Avenue and a large garage. Mr. Turcotte will buy the business and real estate.

Life of Massachusetts. When the last call came two of her sons left the halls of congress, putting aside the authority of civil office to wear the uniform of their country: Major Augustus Peabody Gardner of Essex, and your own congressman, Private John Jacob Rogers. One gave his life, the other his life and sleep with his comrades at Arlington. The other, preserved and restored to the public service, is here to honor this occasion. These men are typical of the spirit of this proud city, and of that which has gone into the creation of our commonwealth and the establishment of our nation.

"Our country has neither lost nor forgotten this spirit. It is not lacking in the estimation of its value, nor does it fall in the bestowal of the honor which is its due. It holds it as its most precious possession, and will cherish it forever.

Great Sacrifice

"This attitude of the people toward those who make up our military forces here and can have but one source. It arises from the realization of the great sacrifice which they make. This is not alone in time of war, from which happily we have been for the most part of our history mercifully spared, but it is also their condition in time of peace. The financial return to those in the service is necessarily small. While it is certain, it is meagre. The private must enlist with a higher motive than for the pay he is to receive. The officer must stay in the service as a result of some other sentiment than that which arises from his financial return. Yet American manhood and womanhood have not failed to respond. Patriotism has inspired our forces from the private to the chief in command, generously bearing our country the highest order of ability, the deepest devotion to the line of duty. No other country can boast of such sacrifice and such devotion. It is this splendid service in war and peace which this monument has been raised to glorify.

"Our country will maintain this ancient spirit. It will maintain an adequate army and navy, ever ready to keep order, insure the administration of justice, perpetuate the freedom of the people at home, and secure the rights of our citizens and uphold respect for our flag abroad.

Remove Causes of War

"While our country will shrink from no sacrifice ever to maintain its ideals, it is by the arts of peace that it ultimately expects to serve itself and the world. It cherishes its armed forces because they are the instruments and guarantees of peace. That peace it will ever seek most to promote by the only practical means, which is the removal of the causes of war. Our country stands for justice among the nations. It advocates the removal of misunderstanding by conference and negotiation. It is sought to promote international harmony by covenants and agreements, not most of all by doing right itself and exerting its moral influence in support of the doing right by others.

"It was for this broad purpose that the recent conference was held in Washington. It did not pursue an impossible and impractical proposal for disarmament. There could be no such thing. It did propose and succeeded in securing an end of the building of competitive armaments and a general limitation in the construction of ships of war. It stands as a great accomplishment and an unanswerable justification of the place of America in the history of civilization.

tion moved the people of colonial days, a maintenance of their dear-bought heritage was the motive of the old French wars. Not merely the defense of their liberties, but an inspired will to found an independent nation, sustained the revolutionary patriots through seven years of blood and sacrifice. The extension of freedom, the washing away of the curse of human slavery, was the result of the conflict between north and south. The principle that civilization is founded not on force but on reason, that not despotism but democracy is the ideal of the world was the justifying cause of our participation in the great war. All of these have been the establishment of the arms of our military forces. It is a glorious record of progress and righteousness. It is the foundation of world peace.

The Memorial

"In recognition of these achievements of the living and the dead, of that part in their fulfillment which has been borne by the city of Lowell and by those who in the days of old supported the principles which have been maintained and extended by the sacrifice of its sons and daughters, this memorial has been raised. Let it stand as a testimonial to patriotic devotion in the days to come! Let it afford a meeting place for those who love liberty and cherish their country! Let it be a monument to the spirit which, through the sacrifice of war is forever building stronger the temple of peace!"

Governor Cox Next Speaker

Mr. Harrington next presented His Excellency, Gov. Channing H. Cox, who spoke as follows:

"It is a satisfying experience to come to such an occasion as this and on such an occasion as the present to share in this moment of your progress. This is a beautiful Auditorium, something that this fine city has needed. The civic pride which has prompted its erection in memory of our sons will make it a stronger the sense of the city's worth and its possibilities. We are all a great family of human beings and these agencies which facilitate our coming together are of more than material value. One of the first things which our forefathers did here when they came and established the foundations of this nation, was to provide common meeting places where all the people of the settlement could come together. That determination to meet, to share views, to assemble for entertainment or other purposes, has ever been one of the sources of the strength of the American people and one of the securities of our freedom.

"This is a typical New England city, both in its material prosperity and in the record it has written of American industry and achievement. Certainly here the early settlers must have found spiritual inspiration. The curving line of the Merrimack, the distant hills of New Hampshire, the blue peak of Wachusett, these formed a frame in which the pioneers set a picture both of beauty and industry. Your Lowell historian, Charles Cowley, has written: 'From the mountains to the main, there is no lovelier scene than that which meets the eye when from the summit of Christian Hill we look down upon Lowell, a city which is a picture of the past, a picture of the future.'

"This region was destined for the growth of a great industrial centre. Here nature had provided a remarkable water power, first used in a saw mill owned by Judge John Tyng, of Tyngsboro. It was not a long step to the incorporation of the Proprietors of the Locks and Canals on Merrimack river, which company cut a canal for boats around the Pawtucket falls. From then onward developed the city which has grown to what we see today.

"Tonight, as we reverently pay tribute to the memories of these men who made such worthy response to the call of their country we recall with gratitude the names of some of these courageous men who so firmly laid the enduring foundations upon which a happy and contented people have dwelt in security: Moses Hale, Phineas Whiting, Joseph Fletcher, Oliver M. Whipple, William Tilton, Francis Cabot Lowell, Patrick Tracy Jackson, Nathan Appleton, Paul Moody, Kirk Root and Warren Cutten. They were great figures in American history, factors in the creation of a mighty country and a strong and prosperous nation.

"Tonight, however, we are dealing less with the past than with the future. Yet for the future we can certainly draw inspiration from the past. This new Auditorium would not tonight stand here, we tonight would not here meet to dedicate it, but for the courage and the vision of these early pioneers in New England industry. They have succeeded as they usually do," said Chevalier, the French writer on political economy, who came to this city in 1834. He had caught something of the spirit of America. Those founders had set their goal; they were determined to attain it, they pursued it and they won.

"In those words of this foreign visitor, uttered nearly a hundred years ago, we can find a text for modern Lowell. This fine Auditorium marks an achievement, the fruits of an effort which was bound to succeed, because the people of this city always do succeed. Cities have an atmosphere, a tradition maybe it is, certainly something indefinable yet definite, which compels their progress. New individuals come here, men and women from other regions of the world, men and women with the traditions of older nations behind them, men and women not familiar perhaps with all of our early history. But they find here not only wheels turning and cotton goods and other products being made. They find some elusive thing that they cannot put into words, but it is something which is essential to this nation. It is the spirit of success.

"In the history of Lowell there is, of course, much more than the story of industrial struggles and achievements. There is the record of patriotism and sacrifices that are the proud memories of all of you. Many of you have stopped to read upon the monument erected in Monument square the names of Addison O. Whitney and Luther C. Ladd, two sons of Lowell who fell in the fighting April 19, 1861, at Baltimore. By their death they made immortal the fame of the old Lowell City Guards. The record of Lowell men in the World War is known by all of us. Their sacrifices are indelibly branded upon our very souls. But in all these records of the city, whether in peace or war, whether in building up an industrial centre or in defense of the nation, the distinguishing fact has always been that you have won success.

"Ours is not an old nation, as nations go. Yet we have stood firm through a good many years. We have seen our countrymen meet many tests, and conquer all of them. We have never failed. We can never fail so long as we keep alive that spirit of success. We shall continue to win, as we usually do—not in a spirit of vain glory, not for the single reward of material profits, but because it is in the tradition of this country to go through to the end, stopping for no obstacle, recognizing no discouragement.

"Doctor, I Want
I Can Eat With"

A man came into this office some time ago and made the above statement. He said he had two sets of teeth and could not eat with either of them. I made him a set and he came in the office later and said they were the only ones he could keep in his mouth while eating. In fact he could chew peanuts and eat apples without the least trouble.

The reason for this is my particular method of taking impressions, study of the shape and relation of the jaws, and correct articulation of the teeth.

Now, I can make you a set of teeth just as good as his. If your plate drops or breaks come in, for I make a specialty of difficult cases and will examine your mouth and give you advice free of charge.

The price for sets of teeth is $8 up. Gold crowns $5. Fillings $2 up. Teeth extracted painlessly free, when plates are ordered.

Down as He Rushed to
Assistance of Two Others
Charge of Buckshot Fatal—
Gun in Hand

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—While going to the assistance of a police officer who had been wounded by shots fired by a drink-crazed janitor at 1708 Beacon street, Brookline, late yesterday afternoon, Dr. Henry V. Reynolds, a prominent physician living at 112 Salisbury road, Brookline, was shot and instantly killed.

A few seconds before Dr. Reynolds happened upon the scene, Patrolman Alexander Johnstone of the Brookline police, and Bartholomew J. Connelly, a flat estate man, 45 Rogers circle, Brookline, had been wounded by buckshot from a shotgun alleged to have been fired by William Morgan, 42, colored, who lives in the basement of 1708 Beacon street.

Thomas McLaughlin of 50 Villa lane, Brookline, employed in the Brookline highway department, who was standing over a tool chest on the beach street Reservation, opposite the house, was also hit by the buckshot, which caused an abrasion on his left arm.

Morgan Found in Closet
Shortly after the shooting, Patrolmen Allen Wilson, Matthew Moreland and the police chauffeur, Timothy Connelly, entered the basement of the apartment house. The officers pushed in a closet door and found Morgan standing behind it with the shotgun in one hand and a knife in the other.

When Morgan saw the officers, he threw up his hands and submitted to arrest.

When the police and Dr. D. M. Hassman of 1738 Beacon street reached the side of Dr. Reynolds they saw at once that life was extinct. He received the full force of a charge from the double-barreled shotgun on the right side of the head.

The body of the physician lay on the sidewalk at the corner of Beacon street and Corey road. Patrolman Johnstone, who fell over a hedge on the front lawn of the house, was picked up and rushed to the Peter Bent Brigham hospital.

His chest penetrated with buckshot and his condition last evening was regarded as critical. He was conscious when found and was able to apprise other officers, who had been hurried to the scene of the presence of Morgan in the basement.

Mr. Connelly is at the Corey Hill hospital, where he was removed in an automobile. Mr. McLaughlin was able to go to his home, where his wound was excruciating in distress.

The shooting of four men caused excitement of the wildest kind in the neighborhood and immediately afterward a great crowd gathered on the scene. The body of Dr. Reynolds lay on the sidewalk covered with a sheet for more than an hour before it was removed by an undertaker.

Morgan, it was said, had been in a particular belligerent mood since Wednesday, when he had been given his notice to leave by his employer, Mr. Connelly, owner of the block.

Mr. Connelly had some words with the janitor Wednesday, as the result of which the police were notified. An officer was sent to the house and following an interview with Morgan the latter is said to have quieted down.

Yesterday afternoon after 5 o'clock, Mr. Connelly again visited the house. One story is that he went there to see if Morgan had made preparations to leave. Another that he went there to procure some tools.

At any rate, there were further words between Mr. Connelly and the janitor. Mrs. Morgan, wife of the janitor, told the police that when the argument between her husband and Mr. Connelly started, she became frightened and pushed to the roof of the apartment house, where she stayed. She claims she was not present in the basement when the shooting occurred.

Connelly Gets Policemen
Mr. Connelly, following words with the janitor, went out onto Beacon street and there found Patrolman Johnstone. The pair walked to the corner of Beacon street and Corey road, which is in front of the house, and stood talking.

Several persons witnessed the shooting, but the police, last evening had had no direct statement from anyone that they saw Morgan with the shotgun in his hand.

Dr. Reynolds, whose home on Salisbury road is just around the corner from Corey road, was coming through Corey road toward Beacon street and he could see Mr. Connelly and Patrolman Johnstone standing on the corner, though he, of course, could not see the front of the apartment house from which the shots were fired.

He and several other persons including George W. Hanley of 1833 Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, also employed by Mr. Connelly as janitor, appeared to have been on the Corey-road side of the building.

Hanley, and presumably Dr. Reynolds, heard shots and saw Mr. Connelly fall. They saw Patrolman Johnstone reach out to catch Mr. Connelly as he fell.

Hanley, the other janitor, and William Dunkle of 133 Salisbury road saw Dr. Reynolds get out of his machine, and run toward the house. The physician had seen the officer fall over the hedge.

Doctor Dropped in Tracks
As Dr. Reynolds started from the corner to assist Patrolman Johnstone, the physician received a charge of buckshot, which dropped him in his tracks.

All of the shots were fired from a small doorway in the front of the block, located on a level with the basement windows and close to the front steps. The door was open, for none of the glass in the upper part of it was broken. It is presumed by the police that Morgan, anticipating arrest when he saw Mr. Connelly talking with the officer, took up his position just inside the small front doorway of the basement and fired.

Patrolman Matthew Moreland, who was doing traffic duty at the corner of Beacon and Washington streets, was apprised of the shooting and hurried to the scene. He met Patrolman Allen Wilson.

Meanwhile word had been sent to the station and Patrolman Emory Allen and John J. Sullivan were dispatched to the house in the police automobile in charge of Chauffeur Connelly.

Moreland, Wilson and Connelly ran around to the rear of the house and entered by a basement door. They found no one in the apartment, but after looking around a bit they heard a noise in a closet. Wilson pushed in the door and there found the colored janitor with the shotgun and bottle in his hands.

The janitor had evidently reloaded the weapon, for the police found new cartridges in both barrels. They also found ammunition in the janitor's pockets.

Why I Am Spending $1000 to Advertise This Event

I am spending this amount in newspaper advertising because by so doing I can sell better clothes for less money than if I did not advertise. Instead of making 20 to 30 garments a week at a profit of $10.00 to $15.00 a garment, as do some of the non-advertising tailors, I will sell five times this amount. The more I sell the greater my buying power, my overhead is less, my growth is faster. I am establishing a clientele and good will that are worth real money. I spend $1000 for advertising and at the same time save you from $7.50 to $12.00 on a suit of clothes or overcoat and also make a small profit on each garment, I sell, is it not good logic to spend the money in that way? If you have any doubt as to my ability to save you money, then do this: Come in and get a sample of woollens. See how well I am making the clothes, then ask any tailor to duplicate in quality and workmanship what I offer you. This test will convince you that it pays to respond to any announcements, and it pays me to tell you about my offer.

Signed MITCHELL.

Read it—fine print and all. To many it will prove more interesting reading than the leading news articles on the first page of today's Sun. It is a message to men, but is also of interest to women.

By a fortunate deal I have become the owner of more than 3000 yards of fine quality woollens including imported Carr's Meltons overcoatings. These were bought from one of the largest woolen houses in New England—a firm that specializes in quality goods such as are featured by the high-priced tailors. At regular prices in unbroken bolts I would have had to pay not less than $10,500 for what I bought. Because they were not full bolts and because I was one of the few tailors in New England that could and would use the quantity offered, I bought this brand new stock of fall woollens at a ridiculously low price. THIS IS MY FOURTEENTH WINTER IN LOWELL and as you know I make men's clothes only, yet I do want the women, wives, mothers and sweethearts to come in and see what I have to offer. Most women know more about cloth than men do. They will back me up in the assertion that quality is woven into every inch of the warp and filling of every piece. The more you know about woollens the greater will be your astonishment that I can and will make a made to order suit or overcoat from such materials for as low as $25.00.

You Run No Risks—I Do Not Even Ask for a Deposit

Recently at a New York hotel there was a meeting of men interested in staging an industrial exposition. The principal speaker, a man of more than ordinary sagacity, said: (in effect) "If a community, firm or individual wishes to get back to normalcy within a reasonable length of time it is necessary that the ordinary ways of doing things be supplanted by extraordinary methods, to wake people to action, (and action is what is most needed right now). It is necessary that unusual means be used."

In this sale I am doing two most unusual things. First, I am selling Suits and Overcoats at $25.00, made of identically the same quality materials that are used in the making of garments selling at from $32.50 up to $37.50. Second, I will take orders and make them up without a deposit, whether you are a man out of a job or a retired millionaire. You can order a garment without putting a dollar for a deposit. If the suit is not satisfactory, after it is made simply say so and I will keep it. I assume all risk of loss. Such is my confidence in the clothes I make and the people I deal with.

John J. Sullivan were dispatched to the house in the police automobile in charge of Chauffeur Connelly.

Moreland, Wilson and Connelly ran around to the rear of the house and entered by a basement door. They found no one in the apartment, but after looking around a bit they heard a noise in a closet. Wilson pushed in the door and there found the colored janitor with the shotgun and bottle in his hands.

The janitor had evidently reloaded the weapon, for the police found new cartridges in both barrels. They also found ammunition in the janitor's pockets.

LOWELL FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL OUTING

If the hungry bunch of fish and game celebrities posing on that rudely constructed grand stand at Willow Dale yesterday had partaken of the shore dinner first, there might have been a sad tale to tell today. As it happened, the sportsmen were decidedly underweight, none having had a chance to obtain a plate of Waldorf salad and roast lamb that around the corner, therefore being in the lightweight class, no fatalities were recorded.

The collapse of the picture gallery, or one portion of it containing some four dozen stout members of the rod and gun legion, only proved to be the first comedy number on the program that was genuine. And when the members picked their ankles out of the mess of planks and beams, found their hats and dinner tickets, the club snapshot artist re-arranged the group on safety-first principles, and the rush to the dining hall ended all chances of any more spills.

Almost everybody in the fish and game world attended that highly successful banquet and outing yesterday at the big pond. The weather was just right, the air brisk, and there were notable galore, from congressman, mayors, etc., down to town selectmen from nearby precincts.

Cheering news to Massachusetts sportsmen reached old Lowell yesterday afternoon via Willow Dale park. The news was that the annual outing, which of course was not neglected. Notable guests arranged to take in both the association outing as well as the memorial exercises at the Auditorium.

The guests included Congressman John Jacob Rogers, Mayor George H. Brown, Hon. John B. Burnham, president of the American Game Protective Association, Harry Thompson, president of the Palmer Fish and Game club of Manchester, N. H.; Mott L. Bartlett, conservation commissioner of New Hampshire; Arthur L. Clark, secretary of the Massachusetts Fish and Game Association; Elmer C. Leland, Walter F. Hubbert, Henry Thompson of the Winchester-Reed Co., Boston; Harold L. Crosby, Dracut; B. E. Backus, William B. Davis of Rhode Island, and others well known in New England's sportsman's circles.

Among those unable to attend the outing were Hon. Charles H. Allen, General Adelbert Ames, William A. L. Barclay, state commissioner of conservation, and William C. Adams, director of the state department of fish and game. The latter sent letters of regret. Mr. Barclay was called to an important meeting of the directors of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, and Mr. Adams sent word that he was obliged to be at the annual convention of the United States Fisheries Association in Atlanta, Ga. Both attended last year's outing here, and had a royal time.

Many Automobiles in Line

Considerably more than 100 automobiles were in line for auto rides from the Head administration building to the lake, yesterday. The start was made promptly at 12:45, trumpeter Edward Howe leading the procession in an auto also containing President Livingston of the Lowell Fish and Game association, Secretary Willis L. Holt and Samuel McCord, well known druggist and ardent sportsman for many years.

It was a long line of automobiles of every brand and make, loaded with sportsmen and American flags flying from the windshields or radiators, that went through Lowell's main thoroughfare and along the highway for Willow Dale. The parade attracted a lot of attention, as usual.

The annual photographs were taken first, then came the dinner bugle and a grand rush for the Page catering tables, loaded to the edges with generous portions of roast lamb, salads, hash, potatoes, sweet corn, rolls, ice cream and coffee. Exactly 478 diners were handled in good style by 25 expert waiters, and then came the speechmaking and the Mozart smokes distributed by Secretary Holt, who carried his dinner on his right sleeve most of the time while keeping tabs on the folks spread over the banquet hall.

The line-up of dining tables filled the interior of the hall, and forced the entrants to place a hundred or more sportsmen outside on the verandas, where the lake breeze obliged them to wear their jackets. For the weather man did his darndest yesterday to make it a real day for the outdoor boys—and the latter appreciated it to the limit.

The head table had room for 32 persons, officers of the association and invited guests. Nobody was late. Mayor Brown came early, and Congressman Rogers rushed up the stairway to the dining board just in time to keep a young sportsman from Westford from grabbing the last seat.

Welcomed by President

Over the coffee and good smokes shortly after 2 o'clock, President Livingston called the boys to order and welcomed everybody.

"I am going to call on our guests today, and I want them to just stand up, bow and sit down," thundered the president, rapping for a little more order and he made them do it, with the exception of Congressman Rogers and Brother Burnham, who came a long way and wanted to say a few words of encouragement to the Lowell sportsmen.

Congressman Rogers said in part: "I have been pretty well scared by the threats of your president, but he has the right idea, so I'm going to talk to you only a few minutes. I am delighted to be here again with you. I remember that congress was on the eve of adjournment last year, and I had just time enough to get here. Today I got into Lowell with an hour to spare, and am here with you once again by the skin of my teeth, so to speak. And I am mighty glad to greet you all again and to sit down with you here at this banquet board and enjoy this splendid outing."

"You have all been interested in the national campaign to provide sufficient game refuges for the preservation of our country's wild life. I was informed just before leaving Washington by a member of the committee in charge of the new game refuge bill, that what congress convenes next December, that bill will pass."

The sportsmen applauded vigorously and a few cheers were heard about the banquet hall, the statement making a deep impression, as fish and game experts have been endeavoring for years to get congress to pass stringent laws for such preserves. Mr. Rogers declared that the opposition to the December bill was practically all, and he congratulated the Lowell sportsmen's organization for its long-continued and vigorous battle to be kept out of the coming year, that is to aid in the protection of wild game in various parts of the country in the years to come.

Mr. Rogers said sportsmen in Canada are convinced that "game is coming back everywhere." Game refuges or sanctuaries, he continued, are the only means that can be adopted to keep wild game alive in the future. Laws of this kind are working out well in the northern lands, the congressman said. With the new principle of issuing federal licenses at one dollar per license, a fund of more than one million dollars will be raised by the new laws, Mr. Rogers declared. Forty-five percent of this annual fund will be used to purchase game and other wild life sanctuaries and 55 percent of it used to maintain them under proper regulations. All federal game may be obtained at any post-office in the future, red tape will be out and the new laws will work a wholesome effect on the country's game question.

Mr. Rogers declared that he did not approve of "draining all the lakes and destroying the forests," but would do all he can to maintain the open waters of the land and preserve the national forests that are threatened with destruction. He said the secretary of agriculture has written to the conservation department, praising the proposed game refuge bill. At the present time, more than 5,000,000 people fish and hunt each year in America, the nation's recreation facilities.

Mr. Burnham received a warm welcome. He told of the latest methods adopted by the protective association of which he is the head, in preserving wild fowl. The season is now open he announced. And one week from today other "game seasons" are to be opened.

"You Lowell sportsmen have set a high standard in the state of Massachusetts by your policies, your honorable conduct and your campaigns for the upholding of our game protection laws," said the speaker.

"You have set a good example by leaving the seed in the covers when you do your own shooting," Mr. Burnham said in closing amid applause.

Prizes were awarded for old and young guests present. Frank Goodwin, aged 75, received one as the oldest sportsman at the dinner tables, and Paul Best, aged 11, got the other when he arose, hat in hand, and blushed handsomely.

The next number on the program was the reading of Secretary Holt's very interesting and comprehensive semi-annual report.

At 6 o'clock a buffet luncheon was served to the Lowell sportsmen, who arranged to go in automobiles to the celebration conducted by the Lowell Fish and Game club in Nashua. It was a monster rally with more than 1000 sportsmen from four states present. The Nashua sportsmen entertained the Lowell club coming down the line with a large delegation. Hon. Mr. Burnham gave his illustrated lecture, "81-washing in Siberia," the entertainment that delighted local clubmen March 30, when the Lowell men held its annual "ladies' night."

Among the Lowell clubs outing guests who made the Nashua trip with the members last night, were James A. Peck, state fish and game warden of Pittsburg, and Raymond J. Kenney, deputy chief warden, of Boston.

Radiographs

Talk Over Sea by Radio!

By N.E.A. Service
NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Uncle Sam hopes to talk to John Bull by radio within a very short time.

His hopes are based on the successful production of a huge vacuum tube powerful enough to transmit speech over a considerable distance.

Wireless communication with England and the rest of Europe has been possible for several years. But actual conversation across the Atlantic has not yet been found practicable. The reason being the incomplete state of development in which radio telephony finds itself today.

Vacuum Tube
Modern radio telephony bases its success on the vacuum tube with its capacity for converting waves of an audible frequency into those of a much higher radio frequency and hurrying them out into space. Those used by amateurs today are slightly smaller than an ordinary electric light bulb. That being tested for transatlantic work stands three feet high and is from three and one-half to five inches in diameter.

This large tube is comparatively greater than the small one in power than it is in size. In 1918, when the first transmission of speech across the Atlantic was accomplished, 300 of the small tubes were used to generate the necessary high frequency power. Now it is believed three or four of the large tubes will be enough for practical conversation between America and Europe.

Features
The success of this development is due to two outstanding features:

1. The system of water-cooling the plate of the vacuum tube.
 2. The process of sealing pieces of metal to glass so that a perfect vacuum can be maintained under wide ranges of temperature.
- For the first change, the plate was taken out of the tube and placed below, where a steady stream of water could keep it cool. Thus a high current could be passed through it without fear of overheating the plate.

The matter of insuring a complete vacuum was a problem until W. G. Houskeeper, one of the engineers, invented a method of sealing copper to glass which would make an airtight joint that would not crack at an ordinary working temperature.

STREET RAILWAY PUT ON EXTRA CARS

The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway pressed 20 extra cars into service last night to take care of the increased traffic, due to the Auditorium dedication. The extras started out early in the evening and continued in operation all during the rush hour. At the conclusion of the exercises, the electric cars were again in demand, having remained in Pidge and John sts. until the close. At 11 o'clock, all traffic was disposed of without inconvenience or interruption.

For the present, passengers in the Westford street route will be compelled to change cars at Windsor st., as the city is reconstructing the roadway in that section from Windsor street to the end of the line. The work will be finished within a week.

Twenty-five years is the average life of a coin.

BIG CROWDS IN VICINITY OF AUDITORIUM

Thousands of persons unable to secure tickets of admission to the ceremonies, crowded the sidewalks in the vicinity of the Auditorium last night. For over an hour preceding the opening exercises automobiles drove past the Auditorium in a never-ending stream.

At an early hour the sidewalks on East Merrimack street began to fill and as the hour for the exercises to begin approached, the vast throng of people who had been unable to secure tickets of admission but wished to see as much of the event as possible filled the walks to overflowing and it was almost impossible for pedestrians to get through on their way downtown. The mall on the East Merrimack street side was kept clear only through the persistent efforts of the police and this greatly aided in the unloading of the machines as they drove into the driveway at Liberty Hall.

At 7.45 news was passed that the American Legion was approaching and would enter the main portico on the way from Memorial hall. As the Legion approached, a familiar figure was seen at the head of his buddies and the vast assemblage cheered to the echo for the daddy of the 28th, Major General Clarence R. Edwards. The famous leader of the YD division was in civilian clothes but was quickly recognized by the huge crowd of onlookers. At this point the crowd had reached its peak and traffic on East Merrimack street was practically blocked. The kaleidoscopic picture of the thousands of people plainly visible in the bright illumination of the white way and in the glow cast from the lights on the Auditorium presented a wonderful sight and testified to the interest in the public undertaking that had been completed and was about to be turned over to the people of the city of Lowell.

Great credit is due the members of the police department who had charge of the direction of the traffic last night, both vehicular and pedestrian. There was little parking of machines in the vicinity of the Auditorium, as East Merrimack street was closed except to passing automobiles from the bridge over the Concord river on East Merrimack street to Fayette street. In this stretch were placed four members of the traffic squad and they kept the machines passing in either direction without any delays.

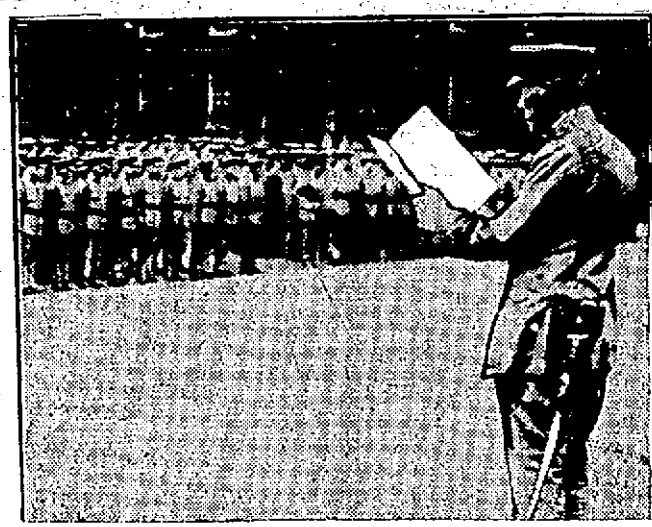

Cars were allowed to park on Brown street where, in the early afternoon, members of the city departments had marked out spaces for the parking of machines. As the hour for the opening of the exercises drew near the machines came in greater numbers and they were directed by the traffic officers on duty to park on Stackpole street with the result that they were lined heavily on both sides of this street. Now on row of machines were parked along the Merrimack square end of East Merrimack street and on the further end of the same street beyond Fayette street. In addition to this there was also a large number of cars parked in the various garages in the vicinity. It is estimated that there were over 600 machines parked in these open areas.

Traffic Officer Connors, who had charge of the traffic squad in directing the procession of machines estimated that there were about 10,000 machines passed the building during the early part of the evening.

It is almost impossible to estimate the number of pedestrians that crowded the sidewalks in the immediate neighborhood of the new edifice and made a tour of inspection of the grounds. The police were greatly taxed in order to keep the walks of the building clear so that those who had tickets might enter and they did a very thorough job.

All in all, the police deserve the greatest credit for the efficient and satisfactory work accomplished in directing such heavy traffic last evening. Everything went off as clockwork and there was not a hitch in the program.

Turks Seize Town of Ez-lne

elated Press) Views of the Near Eastern crisis here fluctuate between hope and fear. The immediate peril is in the possibility that the Turkish Nationalist troops will attack the British positions along the Dardanelles. It is confidently hoped that resumption of the conversations of the allied statesmen in Paris today, will lead to the sending of an invitation to the Angora government to participate in a general conference to settle the Dardanelles question and the Turkish claims. Meanwhile, Mustafa Kemal is conferring with the Angora cabinet in Smyrna, and the result of their deliberations is awaited here as eagerly as the outcome of the Paris discussions.

REPORT TURKS TO ISSUE ULTIMATUM

PARIS, Sept. 22.—The Near East situation seemed a little more hopeful, at least from the viewpoint of a prospective ally, only upon the resumption today of the conference between Lord Curzon and Premier Poincaré. Disturbing reports, however, continue to come from Constantinople, and it is reported that the Turkish Nationalists are on the point of issuing an ultimatum to the allies demanding the evacuation of Thrace within 48 hours.

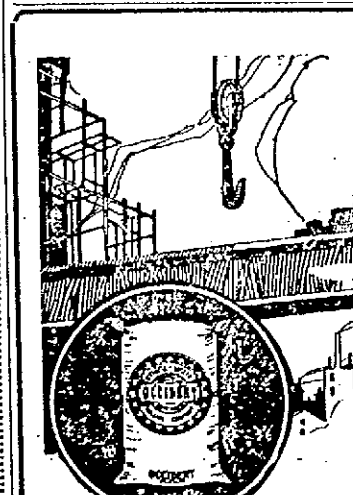

Turks Possessive
CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press) A pessimistic view of the present situation is taken in Turkish Nationalist circles here. It was declared yesterday that, unless the Kemalists received assurances and guarantees from the allies within 48 hours that the question of the disposition of Thrace would be settled in favor of the Turks, a serious situation would arise and it would be impossible to restrain the forward march of their army.

British Labor Opposes War
LONDON, Sept. 22 (By the Associated Press).—The attitude of the British labor party toward the present Near Eastern situation is succinctly set forth in a cable message sent today to the Australian and New Zealand laborers. The message reads: "British labor is opposed to any wars in the Near East and believes the only way of averting it is by reference of the dispute to the League of Nations, in which Turkey, Russia and Germany should be included. We are strongly opposed to Great Britain acting individually, and demand a settlement by discussion and agreement."

CADILLAC FACTORY TO RUN FULL FORCE

Cadillac plans of production include the running of the factories full force during the winter, with a production even greater than that of the past 12 months, which has been the greatest in Cadillac's history.

H. H. Rice, president and general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Co., so informed Cadillac distributors assembled from all parts of the country at the annual distributors convention at the Cadillac factory last week. Cadillac representatives from nearly 100 Cadillac distributor organizations attended the convention.

Mr. Rice sounded an optimistic note concerning the real situation and business in general.

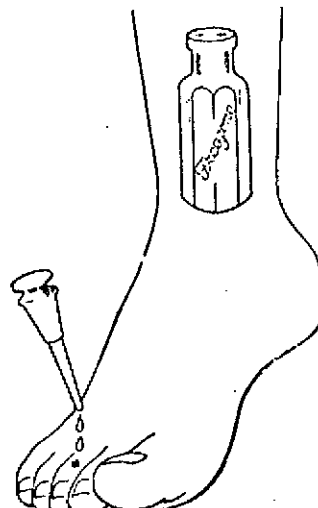

Lynn McNaughtin, general sales manager, stated that during the 12 months just concluded the Cadillac organization had exceeded the business of any previous 12 months both in number of cars sold and in volume of business in dollars and cents.

In conversation at the George H. Dana & Son establishment, Mr. Dana, Sr., states that the Cadillac Motor Car Co. has now built and sold over 155,000 Cadillac eight cylinder cars and the present car, the "Type 41," is the result of all experience gained during the building of this enormous number of high grade cars. The company first built well, and have since devoted their science and skill to the betterment of the first idea which proved so good. Of course it is well known that the Cadillac Motor Car Co. built the first eight cylinder motor car produced in this country.

MINISTRY OF HEALING

Formally Recognized by Protestant Episcopal
Church in United States

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 22.—The Protestant Episcopal church in the United States has been formally placed on record in recognition of the ministry of healing. The recognition was accorded last night by a vote of the House of Bishops ratifying the action of the House of Deputies at the general convention here.

The bishops' action authorizes clergy and lay members, who believe they possess powers of healing, to practice themselves "by care and prayer and theological and medical study for their proper and safe exercise."

A commission to consider the matter of healing further was named.

ATTACKS SEN. FRANCE

Democrat Call Ohio Senator
Exponent of Radicalism
and Communism

BAITIMORE, Sept. 22.—The democratic state convention yesterday declared Senator Joseph I. France, republican candidate for re-election, an exponent of radicalism and communism.

Senator France was criticized in both the keynote speech and in the platform. The platform said that France "stands neither for democracy nor republicanism, he having been repudiated by the best thought in the party."

TIVERTON OFFICER SHOT IN LIQUOR RAID

FALL RIVER, Sept. 22.—Officer A. H. Boleau of the Tiverton police department was shot last night while approaching the farm of Manuel Diaz on Bulgar Marsh road, Tiverton, to make a liquor raid with four other officers. The police were stealing up a wooded line toward the Diaz farm when a shot was fired. A bullet pierced Boleau's right lung. He was taken to St. Ann's hospital, Fall River, where he is in a dangerous condition. A warrant has been made out for Diaz's arrest. Chief of Police Masse was shot in the hand by a second bullet.

MORE CHARTER DOPE FROM CITY HALL

Any petition calling for a new form of charter need not pass through the city clerk's office. The election commission has full charge of the matter and not even the city council will have a say in it. At least this is the belief expressed today by city officials after digging into law books at hand.

Yesterday it was stated at the hall that the city clerk would be the first to receive the petition as it was required by law that it be filed with him and that he would have five days in which to send it through the proper channels before sending it to the secretary of state. Following yesterday's story there were more or less talks of the possibility of a new form of charter being placed before the voters in November.

This led to arguments on the law with the result that recent laws were brought to light which seem to exclude both the city clerk and council from any dealings with a petition for a charter and to place the matter directly in the hands of the elections commission. In chapter 50 of the general laws, which went into effect on January 1, 1921, there is a section which deals with definitions of various terms used in the law.

In the first paragraph it says that the aldermen or board of aldermen shall be construed to include the elections commission of Boston and Lowell as to all matters coming within the scope of their powers and duties and as to such matters, shall not apply to the city council of either city. In the fourth paragraph similar language excludes the city clerk while in paragraph 1 the mayor is excluded.

While no petition favoring any form of charter had been filed with either the city clerk or the elections commission one is expected any day now. It was reported from the city clerk's office today that if a petition were presented there the person or persons would be immediately referred to the elections commission.

It is thought that an opinion will be asked from the city solicitor regarding the entire matter as with the laws making the matter a rather difficult one to understand some definite statement is wanted one way or the other.

Clerks Want Overtime Pay

For 63 hours overtime was put in but this was deemed excessive by the budget and auditing commission and it recommended that payment be withheld. The mayor stood by the commission. The overtime work was then submitted on a separate payroll but once again it failed to get by the commission and the mayor.

Now, according to a member of the commission, comes the rub. He claims that in 1920 the elections commission was created by a special legislative act. Under section 150 of the general laws he claims that the commission is empowered with complete control over the clerical force; that it may employ the number of clerks deemed necessary and that it shall pay such compensation as is deemed sufficient.

Pointing this out, this member insists that the budget and auditing commission and the mayor are not in accord with the law when they refuse to pay the money. He also pointed to the fact that the present form of charter provides the commission with the same powers as it always had.

It is possible that an opinion will be asked on the matter in the near future. Verbal protests have been lodged with the mayor over the matter but what step is to be taken next is not known.

NEW TARIFF RATES IN EFFECT

Millions of Dollars of Revenue Expected to Be Raised Immediately

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The new rates of the tariff act of 1922 are applying today on the flow of American imports. The law, marking a new phase in the history of American tariff making in its delegation to the president of broad powers under the elastic rate provisions, went into effect at midnight. Millions of dollars of revenue, officials believe, will be raised immediately from the assessment of the duties on goods in bond or in transit to ports of entry.

With the going into effect of the law, signed yesterday by President Harding, the tariff commission, as the agency through which the president will exercise his new authority to increase or decrease rates and to change from foreign to American valuation as the basis for assessing ad valorem duties, assumes a greatly enlarged function.

In addition to extensive investigations into costs of production and abroad as a basis for recommendation of rate or valuation changes to the president, upon the commission, also, devolves the responsibility of determining any case of discrimination against American commerce and trade in foreign countries and of making recommendations as to means for meeting such situations.

DISTRICT COURT HOLDS BRIEF SESSION

This morning's session of the district court was a very short one, the business of the court being completed in half an hour. There were only four cases on the docket and they were quickly disposed of with the result that the city officers were enabled by 11:05 and the state treasury received $10 toward its monthly total of motor vehicle law violations.

March Spent pleaded guilty when he was charged with illegal keeping in violation of the prohibition law. Because of extenuating circumstances, as the men in the case pleaded guilty, he was given a month in which to pay the usual fine of $100 which was levied on him. The court made the statement that he would not make such allowances in the future.

The temptation of an apple again drew man into trouble when Anthony Pozzillo appeared in answer to the charge of larceny of fruit from an orchard. The arresting officer said that he apprehended the man last night as he was emerging from an orchard with a bag of apples. The man admitted taking the apples and he was fined $5 by the court.

Failure to have his car registered cost Joseph St. Louis $10 when he was found guilty of violation of the motor vehicle law. St. Louis testified that he had traded cars last August and had forgotten to have his previous registration transferred.

The case of Thomas J. O'Loughlin, charged with violation of the motor vehicle laws on two counts, and that of Wilfred Polvin, charged with felonious assault, were continued to September 23. John McElhin, who was charged with drunkenness, was held over to tomorrow morning for disposition. The case of Wilfred Chase, charged with violation of the milk law, was held over to October 20.

Auditorium Dedication

It had its birth here in New England. And that is the spirit we must keep here and everywhere in our country.

"We mention the names of some of the men who figured prominently in the early days of struggling towards success. Yet we know that there were hundreds of others whose names are not written so plainly in history, but without whom the achievements of this region could not have been attained. So tonight, we know that the prosperity of the Lowell in the years to come, will depend not alone upon the men who are prominent in leadership, but also upon every worthy individual who contributes something towards progress. Every person in Lowell has something to give for the welfare of the city. That is the essence of democracy, that opportunity and responsibility rest upon all of us. The city's fame, the city's good reputation, the city's existence, rest upon the shoulders of all the people in it. And if all the people here could but read the honorable record of the days which have gone I know they would appreciate the better what the present opportunity and the present responsibility are."

"So this Auditorium inspired by the noblest purposes is not only a great material convenience. It is not simply an evidence of our material prosperity. It is not merely the vision of a few men. It is far more than that. It is a symbol of the community. Into it have been woven the heart throbs of a whole people. Here the people of Lowell will meet on various occasions, and here much of the future activity of the city will center. Here much of the public opinion will find voice. Here tonight we dedicate a fitting memorial to all that Lowell has been in the past. Here tonight we give expression to our firm faith of all that Lowell will be in the future. In this testimonial of our appreciation for those who have lived and died for the glory of Lowell, we proclaim anew our purpose that our contribution to our day and generation, shall be in their spirit of devotion. As they have served, so we shall serve. As they have been worthy, so we shall strive to be worthy. As they have succeeded, so we shall succeed. Even as they, so we to the extent of our ability shall contribute to the honor and glory of Lowell, and her proud mother, old Massachusetts."

General Clarence R. Edwards
When Chairman Harrington introduced Gen. Clarence R. Edwards as "the most popular commander in New

MAJ. GEN. CLARENCE R. EDWARDS

England," the biggest ovation of the evening was rendered. The general arose, attired in neat civilian clothes and saluting the audience, addressed the World War veterans as "fellow Yanks." Referring to the G.A.R. veterans, the general said: "They stood four years of war and they did not have the comforts we had. They were tougher than we, tougher in a great many ways."

"As I came into this building tonight," he continued, "I thought of it as a peace temple. We hear much talk of peace, talk that is intermingled with a great deal of false logic. For example, a syllogism of this sort is introduced: Soldiers love war; George Washington was a soldier, therefore, George Washington loved war. Such a deduction is false logic, and I hope and trust the people of Lowell will not listen to it."

"It is delightful to come to a people who, like you, make up the sustaining power behind the soldiers and erect such a magnificent temple as this with an assembly hall for veterans where traditions may be cherished. I've just been with the Legion tonight and I told the members assembled there that its chief glory lies in the fact that it did not differentiate between those who bled in the front line trenches and those who were saving their hearts out to be bled. The Legion had due cognizance of those who tried, and so I say, cherish your squad, your platoon, your battalion, your regiment and your division. Join whatever organizations and societies you wish, but first of all, I say, join the Legion."

"In the city of Lawrence, they thought it wise not to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the city, but the Legion took it up and pushed it over successfully. Let questions of jealousy be wiped out from the heart and know that your duties are with the municipality."

"Foreign born citizens are all Yanks in America, for a Yank is a man who will go forward and face a nest of machine guns and die with a smile on his face. I saw patriotism abroad, but when a people is willing to be taxed $10 each for the erection of a memorial such as this, it is the height of patriotism."

"The people of Lowell should realize that we drafted men's lives in the great World war, but we didn't draft capital and labor. We should, therefore, have that appreciation and thoughtfulness and be as potent on the reconstruction of this country as our traditions may be cherished. "Taps" was echoed from "Trophy hall" by two more buglers. The effect was impressive, for it seemed as if one were actually hearing this beautiful call echoed around a large encampment.

Hardly had the echo died away than revellie was sounded by the buglers in the main hall. As the blustering notes came from the trumpets, with their command for all sleeping soldiers to prepare for the work of the day, the lights were slowly turned on in a manner to portray, as far as possible, the rising of the sun. The echo-buglers repeated revellie from the trophy room.

Address of Congressman Rogers
Fraught with significance and poignantly portraying the feelings of a grateful people, were the words of Hon. John Jacob Rogers, Lowell's own congressman.

"Four years have passed since the ceasing of the conflict," he said in opening. "Our five million defenders have laid down their arms. The great war belongs to history. Already it is but a memory—a memory fraught with heartbreak to many, with sadness to all."

"Three times within a span of less than two generations has America gone forth to battle. Once we fought against slavery and disunion. Once we rose up to sweep European tyranny, cruelty and misgovernment from

tended for the right and, always the right prevailed.

"Men and women of many races meet in the market place of Lowell," continued the congressman. "But love of our republic and loyalty to her cause and ideals do not, thank God, hang upon an extended lineage in America. Had they so depended, the historian of the World war would have had a very different tale to tell. No city in the whole land, whatever the nativity or racial unity of her citizens, can boast a more abundant offering of her sons than can Lowell."

"Nor should we tonight omit reference to the part of the women of Lowell. As our greatest president once said, 'I am not accustomed to the use of language of eulogy; I have never studied the art of paying compliments to women, but I must say that if all that has been said by orators and poets since the creation of the world in praise of women were applied to the women of America, it would not do them justice for their conduct during this war.'"

"Lowell rejoices to do honor to her brave men and devoted women. Here, today, it records and dedicates. Here, today, we pledge to remember."

"This is the Lowell Auditorium—a memorial to our gallant dead, who died in war; a tabernacle for those who offered their all for country; a course for everything that shall be

A woman who carefully safeguards her health benefits her disposition. She will be happy and attractive to all. The world unfortunately is filled with sweet women who are unhappy because they are held back from unhappiness by troubles so common among them. Frivolous and awkwardly rapidly destroy good dispositions. Sickly, all-worn-out women cannot make happy homes.

Lydia E. Plunkhurn's Vegetable Compound is a safeguard of women's health. This is clearly proven by the many letters we are continually publishing in this paper, from women who have been restored to health and happiness by its use after years of suffering. Why don't you try it?—Adv.

most worthy in our community life; an exemplar for Lowell men and women in the generations yet to come. We wish to establish this work of our hands, establish Thou it!"

Commissioner's Work Finished
John H. Harrington, president of the committee and chairman of the building commission then rose to formally turn the structure over to the city.

"Ever since Harrington hall was burned for the second time, the people of Lowell have felt the need of a public hall," said Mr. Harrington. "Several movements were begun, but none gave much promise of success until after the World war, when the old Lowell Board of Trade proposed that such a hall be built, to be dedicated to the men and women of the city who had served in all our country's wars."

"The suggestion seemed to meet with the instant approval of the citizenry and a board committee was appointed to further consider and study it. After a number of hearings before the local city government an act was drafted and discussed before the committee on cities of the state legislature and eventually passed the General Court and was signed by the governor.

"The act not only empowered the city to acquire land either by purchase or seizure and erect thereon a public hall, but, also, it specified that it should be dedicated as the committee had suggested."

"Hon. Perry D. Thompson, then mayor, appointed a building committee to assist the mayor as an ex-officio member, to carry out the provisions of the act. The appointees were promptly confirmed by the municipal council. The committee then organized and ten minutes later, we started on the job and have been on it ever since."

"The chairman told of the commission's work in the selection of a site, saying that many were visited and given serious consideration. Finally to select the present one as the most accessible, the most commodious and the most fitting."

"So we built our Auditorium here," he continued, "at the meeting of the waters, where the rippling of the majestic Merrimack and the historic Concord sing an eternal requiem to our heroic dead."

"It is finished and finished within our appropriation. Mr. Harrington spoke of the work that was necessary on the exterior of the building and explained that the building act did not provide for the expenditure of money along this line of embellishment and improvement."

"The city council, however, has provided sufficient funds to do this work," he said. He expressed regret that the organ builders had not been able to install the organ in time for the dedication, but said that it is very nearly finished and gave assurance that it would be installed within a very short time.

"I am pleased to tell you," continued Mr. Harrington, "that your building commission has money enough to meet all its obligations under the organ contract, including its installation and I would not be surprised if, after all other bills are paid, including the cost of these exercises tonight, we would have a little balance of the appropriation to turn back into the city treasury."

"Our work is done; our labor is at an end. To us it has been a labor of love. We have given to our city the very best that was in us and before the local city government an approval, we shall have been paid and overpaid a thousand times."

"As the Roman gladiators of old, who, as they entered the arena, turned to the balcony, with a 'Hail, Imperial Caesar!' We who are about to die, salute you," so we, the members of the building commission, salute you, the people of Lowell."

Mr. Harrington then requested Mayor George H. Brown to step to the front of the stage for the formal ceremony of turning over the building to the city.

As the chairman turned to face the mayor, he held in his hand a key and said:

"Mr. Mayor, here is the master key of the Auditorium. It is the symbol of possession and it is our earnest wish and sincere hope that the people of Lowell and their children and their children's children shall enjoy it forever."

Mayor's Speech of Acceptance

His Honor took the master key and formally accepted the building for the city in the following address.

"This splendid edifice will ever call to mind the services of Lowell's sons to the nation in the hour of war. Not local pride, not a spirit of boastfulness but the compelling power of truth requires the statement here that the people of this community in every war from and including the Revolution performed in fullest measure that highest duty of the citizen and freely gave of life and treasure that America might take her place among the nations; that America might survive to the service of mankind and that American ideals of human liberty and democracy might survive the night of European monarchial conquest."

"When the word came that the British troops were advancing, the farmers living on our fertile fields went in a very short time to their neighbors of Lexington and Concord."

"When our commercial life was threatened with extinction by Great Britain some of the hardy sons of this soil went to sea to write the romantic story of an infant people struggling for national existence which the schoolboy reads with glowing cheeks and brightening eye in the history of the War of 1812-14."

"When human slavery embarrassed the world; when Lincoln strove to save this government of the people, and when Sumner was fired upon, no town or city in all the north sent forth its sons to die upon the bloody field of war more quickly, more readily or more generously than Lowell."

"In the period just before the Civil war large numbers of immigrants from foreign shores had come into our community and taken up their abode and were proving their value and their worth, and as rapidly as possible were becoming citizens of our city and of our country. How they responded to the call to arms the history of our country bears witness. In that other public building—Memorial hall—their names are inscribed on tablets to perpetuate forever their individual memories. The memory of these brave and hardy men must be with us today—their services and their sacrifice, proof conclusive that the worthy immigrant who seeks our shores for freedom, for the right to work for the liberty of religious worship, who believes in God and his fellowman, bears with him the kernel of American citizenship, which in time of war, when danger threatens the institutions that made America great, may be relied upon for any toil or any danger."

"More than the memory of most of those here present are the sturdy boys of Lowell who forced themselves to the very front of the country's service when the time came for service against Spanish misrule, when national sentiment could no longer submit to insult and shame. We can see them going forth in the strength and vigor of their young manhood; we see them again as they returned wan and worn, but the national honor had been vindicated and Cuba was free."

"The long threatened day in Europe had arrived—Germany, strong and proud, had been taught by her rulers to believe she could conquer the world. She reckoned well, but forgot America. Again our great national tolerance was in evidence. All Europe fought and bled. The flower of the manhood of a goodly portion of the populated and civilized world was swept to death in the mad struggles of jealous nations. Neutral and patient till American sovereignty was flouted and scorned, we took up arms again. As in 1776 and 1812 the men of Lowell were in the van, so in 1917 our gallant boys were among the first to land at the cockpit of Europe to vindicate American ideals and to defend democracy among men. With anxiety and bated breath we waited for news of battle. Soon there came to us the news of the first to fall, and as day by day, we learned of another hero gone, we again were taught the lesson that here in this our city of many races from many lands, the process of Americanization goes steadily on—the son of native parents fell fighting bravely and so did the son of the Irish immigrant. The French-American mother grieved for her darling lost. The Portuguese mother gave the cry of anguish when she learned her oldest son had died for America. The Italian lad, true to the traditions of his race, fell with advancing feet and face to the foe. The son of the Englishman preferred to fall under American colors. Our sons laid down their lives on the battlefields of Europe to their own undying glory—and to the glory and renown of this, our city. They died that democracy might live and that forever men must know that no consideration of race or creed or nationality or worldly station shall be the standard for the judgment of men or nations of the world, but that eternal principles of right and justice must prevail, that men must be judged for what they are—not who they are—and that nations in their life must be as true to the rights of man as man must be true to the rights of his fellowman."

"This building must remind us, too, of the work and sacrifice, the toil and suffering of the noble women of our city. We learned of another hero gone, we again were taught the lesson that here in this our city of many races from many lands, the process of

Guns Roared Greeting to Vice-President

Long before the scheduled time of the vice-president's arrival, two 75-millimeter guns, manned by members of Battery B and under the command of Lieutenant Emsie, were placed in position on the lawn of the old George estate overlooking the depot, and the battymen kept on the alert. For the signal to fire. As soon as the vice-presidential party alighted from the train, the wig-wagging signals, relayed from the station platform to Chelmsford street and thence to the guns, told the message of the executive's appearance and the big "75's" roared out their greetings, first one and then the other at given intervals of time, until the regulation 19 shells had been exploded.

Lowell in the Civil war took leading parts in the work of the Women's Relief Corps, and in all the varied work for the assistance, nursing and care of soldiers and their families. In the World war our women, through the Red Cross, the Knights of Columbus, the Y.M.C.A., the Salvation Army and every agency, ministered to the wants of our soldiers and those dependent upon them. They went to France to care for the sick and wounded—they were in almost every hospital in the eastern part of our country."

"So, to the men and women of Lowell, for their service to the country in time of war, this building stands a fitting memorial and a monument. It is dedicated to their memory and is intended to keep before the oncoming generations thoughts of them and of their work. It has been built for all the people of the city,—for their use, their recreation and their enjoyment and education. Here the young may enjoy themselves in the pastimes of youth. The serious-minded may come to hear words of wisdom from the greatest thinkers and all may come to be pleased and charmed with music and song, with lecture and with oratory."

"Great thanks are due to the gentlemen of the commission who had in charge the work of building the structure and laying out the grounds. On behalf of the city, I tender them the people's expression of gratitude. They have worked wisely and builded well, and their service has been honest."

"A great problem confronted me, as mayor, to select a worthy board of trustees to take permanent charge of the building. The men who have been selected may be relied upon to carry on this public project in conformity with the highest standards and may be trusted to give all the people a maximum of service. This building will be so conducted in the people's interest that all who conduct themselves rightly may use and enjoy it, but none may abuse that privilege. The moral tone of all affairs conducted within these walls must be of the highest standard. Freedom of speech will be allowed, but that freedom must be exercised in harmony with American institutions and government. The nation's voice will not be heard within these sacred precincts, nor shall anarchy be taught here. The conduct of those who come here must be that of American gentlemen and American ladies."

Vice President Calvin Coolidge, with Mrs. Coolidge and Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston arrived at the Middlesex street depot at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the party coming on the regular train from Boston. A crowd of some 3000 people had gathered to witness Mr. Coolidge's arrival and as he came down the steps from the train he was greeted with cheers and the vice president's salute of 13 guns which was fired by Battery B from a point just above the station.

As Mr. Coolidge stepped from the train he was met by Congressman John Jacob Rogers and a squad of men in military uniform. Three automobiles were in waiting at the side of the station to which a large force of police officers kept open a lane for the party. Capt. David Pettie and Lieut. Martin Connors swept down the lane a few paces in front of the official party. Capt. W. C. MacBrayne headed the escort. Then came the vice president, flanked by Lieut. Donald R. McIntyre and Lieut. Arthur L. Eno, with a secret service agent a few paces in the rear.

As the vice president came by, the crowd closed in behind him, forgetting there were ladies in the party. It was some time before the women, who had been taken care of by Mr. Stearns, were brought to the waiting cars. When the crowd, which had gathered about the autos, despite the efforts of the police to hold it back, was advised ladies were coming, it fell back once again to make a lane for the visitors. The party was carried immediately to the Auditorium where a short inspection of the building was made. From there the party was taken to the home of Congressman and Mrs. Rogers, where it was joined by Governor Channing H. Cox, Lieut. Eno, secretary of the Auditorium building commission, represented that body in the absence of Mr. John H. Harrington, who was attending to other duties at the time. Dinner was served after which the party made ready for the dedicatory exercises.

uses. May it be a potent influence for good in this city and in the commonwealth, standing for patriotism, for enlightenment and for social intercourse, that Thy name may be glorified through Jesus Christ our Lord. And now to God's gracious care and protection commit you. The Lord bless you and keep you; the Lord make His face to shine upon you and be gracious unto you; the Lord lift up His countenance upon you and give you peace, both now and evermore."

Chairman Expresses Thanks

Just before the audience rose to sing "The Star Spangled Banner," Chairman Harrington said a final word. He explained the method to be followed in exit and publicly expressed the commission's grateful appreciation of the work of the Choral society and its conductor, which was given freely with absolutely no expense involved on the part of the commission. To those who furnished floral decorations and motor conveyances, he also extended thanks.

The assembly then rose and with the Choral society leading sang four verses of the national anthem to bring the exercises to a close.

Capt. Wilson in Command

One of the most taxing and well managed jobs in connection with the exercises was that assumed by Percy J. Wilson, chief marshal. It was his duty to supervise all seating arrangements and ushering, provide suitable escort to the distinguished guests and in fact, take complete charge of the situation as it developed up to the actual time of commencement. He was assisted by nearly 100 uniformed men of the army and navy, who served as ushers, ticket examiners, directors, orderlies and inside and outside door-men. "Was in charge of parking, assisted by J. F. McGrath and James Clancy.

Capt. Wilson had for his adjutant, Andrew G. Jenkins. Stephen Kearney was in charge of first floor ushers, with Michael H. Harrington and James H. Connor dividing the supervision of the balcony.

Special orderlies were: Roland Black, for Vice President Coolidge; Irving Loueratt, for Governor Cox, and Daniel P. Brennan, for Mayor General Edwards. Other orderlies were Albert Bourgeois and Walter Matthews.

The distribution of programs was handled by Winthrop Dean, with Randolph Read in charge of supply. Other program men were Walter F. McInerney, Raymond Ingham, Paul Halstead and Paul Jarvis.

Karl Lunan, Raymond Slater, James Sheehan and John W. Brooks were ticket examiners, while W. C. Kirk and Daniel P. Brennan were in charge of a general outside man on the main steps. Checking was in charge of Wilbur J. McGrady, Fred Nichols, Anthony Gosselin, John Brown and George T. Morse.

The main floor ushers were Dr. Nathan C. Peiffer, Eugene Lequard, Donald C. McIntire, Joseph A. Molloy, Leander E. Conley, Walter C. Wilson, Alexander D. Mitchell, Frank Dodge, and William H. Prescott.

Ushers for the parquetry circle were Adair Fortin, David E. Caldwell, John L. Robertson, Jr., George O. Robertson, Napoleon Vigeant, Paul Perkins, Francis M. Qua, Arthur E. Woodles, William Bradley, George H. Brock, Hammond Barnes and Richard Gibbons.

Ushers in the corridor around the circle were Clarence Norton, Aubrey M. Butcher, Ralph H. Dorby, W. T. Hazelline, Calob Rogers, Joseph P. Donahue, Cornelius J. O'Neill, Frank H. Jones, Leon Sarre, Paul Burns, Edward W. Gallagher and Victor Turnquist.

Inside and outside balcony ushers were: E. S. Belloy, Frank E. Hart, Allen Gerson, Thomas Higgins, Carroll A. Pingree, R. T. Casey, Gilbert Garrott, William Thompson, Joseph T. Dussault, John H. King, J. J. McShane, A. F. Peiffer, Joseph M. Reilly, Dr. P. M. Caldwell, Ariston K. Barrows, Benjamin F. Meloney, George H. Allard, Lewis Putnam, George R. Garmon, Joseph Garmon, C. F. Dupue, and Richard D. Donoghue.

Stage ushers were: Dr. Robert L. Jones and Dr. Schuyler R. Waller. Patrolmen on duty in the building were: James Noonan, Louis Lapan, Walter Nickles, John J. Donovan, Paul Spillane, William Nelson, Owen Conway, J. Graham, W. McBride. On the outside were the following, detailed for traffic and general supervisory work: Sergt. Michael Wm and Patrolman Frank Moore, Albert Conroy, Clyde Aldrich, J. F. Lynch, Isadore Trudel, Frank Maloney, Timothy Dwyer, Edward J. Connor, William J. Quinlan, Michael Ryma, P. B. Clark, Alfred J. Kilroy, J. V. M. Noye, John T. Whelan, John F. McNulty.

DEDICATION NOTES
The following members of Massachusetts either guests or occupied seats in the mayor's section: Hon. Daniel W. Mahoney of Lawrence, Hon. John V. Kimball of Malden, Hon. Christopher Harrison of Everett, Hon. Peter F. Sullivan of Worcester, Hon. Bernard Golden of Woburn, Hon. Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge, Hon. William A. Bradford of Quincy and Hon. Percy W. Wheeler of Gloucester.

The large crowd was admirably handled both inside and outside the building by the military order command of Capt. Percy J. Wilson, chief marshal, and the police under command of Lieut. Bartholomew Ryan.

Chief Edward F. Saunders of the fire department, with a score of men, were in charge of the thorough cleaning and gave valuable assistance in directing persons to proper sections.

The ushers were not hurried in their work, for the crowd came gradually and in consequence there was little or no confusion.

For more than half an hour before the program opened, Emil Borjes' orchestra gave an excellent concert program. The orchestra also played for the Choral society numbers.

Much admired was a floral standard in trophy hall, in which the words "American Legion" were beautifully worked out amid a mass of varied colored asters.

More than a score of times expressions were heard on every side in commendation of the beautiful sweeping balcony, but particularly of the fact that no posts, pillars or obstruction of any sort cut out a full vision of the stage.

The distribution of tickets for the exercises was one of the most amazing and unsatisfactory duties that fell to the lot of the building commission. There was a demand for more than 12,000 tickets, while the commission had only 4000 to give out. It was finally impossible to satisfy everybody, but the commission did the very best it could under the circumstances.

It must have been a revelation and inspiration as well to the members of the new board of trustees, who will legislate the building's affairs, to see the vast interior filled with people. They visualized, perhaps, what the future has in store.

East Merrimack street, as light as day, under the glow of the new white way lamps, little resembled the street of two years ago when the cornerstone of the building was laid. The transformation of this thoroughfare has been remarkable, due entirely to the Auditorium.

Most active in the affairs of the Legion during the day was Robert J. Rutledge, post adjutant. His automobile covered many miles within the city and he was on the job from morning until late at night.

LEGION POST BANQUET IN MEMORIAL HALL

One of the big features of yesterday's exercises was the American Legion banquet held in Memorial hall at 6 o'clock with nearly 600 people in attendance. According to everyone present, it was the best affair that the local post has staged since its institution. Harry Cole, a former mess sergeant, served the banquet.

The legion members, with invited guests, filed into the hall shortly after 5 o'clock and not a vacant seat remained five minutes later. So great was the throng that it was necessary to set up extra tables. Stephen C. Garrity, commander of the post, took personal charge of seating the guests. The diners gathered in the hall way and stairs outside of the banquet room, Commander Garrity in dignified for the representatives of the country, state, county and city to step forward after which the doors were thrown open to the main hall.

The county was represented by Mayor James C. Holly, the city by Mayor George H. Brown, City Solicitor Edward J. Tierney, and members of the council, while a number of other representatives of the people at large were present. The entire Auditorium commission was there and occupied the place of honor at the head table to Commander Garrity's right. Col. John F. Herber, of Worcester, past department commander and William Doyle of Malden, newly elected department commander, represented the high officials of the state legion. A delegation of war nurses also was in attendance.

A few moments after the dinner started it was announced that Vice President Coolidge and Governor Cox had arrived to greet the "boys." They were given a tremendous ovation as they filed to the head table. Both a few minutes and left the hall amid shouts of applause. Mayor Brown was the next speaker and he too was loudly applauded as he left the hall. Col. Herber and Commander Doyle made short addresses after which Commander Garrity introduced, individually, the members of the Auditorium commission. Each member arose and bowed amid thunderous applause.

Hardly had this introduction been completed when word came from the outside guard that General Edwards had arrived. He was given a wonderful reception. The assembly cheered and cheered, and then cheered some more as the "grand old man" of the Yankee division entered the hall and made his way to the head table. It was with difficulty that the cheering was silenced and it seemed that the applause lasted for five solid minutes. Another outburst of applause started at the completion of his remarks, and at the announcement that General Edwards was to lead the members to the Auditorium the hall was emptied and the men formed in squads in front of the hall. The band struck up a lively air and the march to the dedicatory exercises was started.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The directors of the chamber of commerce will hold their second fall meeting of the season next Monday. Henry A. Smith of the traffic regulations committee will meet with the directors to discuss the proposed new traffic signs. On Wednesday, the big meeting will be held in Liberty hall, Memorial Auditorium. Mr. John C. Noll of Cambridge, Mayor, will make an address at this meeting, prior to which he will tour the city with an idea to suggest improvements. The chamber of commerce of New England chamber of commerce secretaries at Westfield, Mass., today.

Went to Aid Officer and Real Estate Man

BROOKLINE, Sept. 22.—William Morgan, a negro janitor, who shot and killed Dr. Henry V. Reynolds and wounded three other men yesterday, was held without bail on a charge of murder today. The police also preferred a charge in two counts of assault with intent to murder.

Dr. Reynolds was killed when he went to the assistance of Patrolman Alexander Johnstone, and Bartholomew J. Connolly, who had been wounded by bullets from Morgan's shotgun after a quarrel between the negro and Connolly, real estate man in charge of the property. Morgan, a janitor was employed by Thomas McLaughlin, standing across the street from the scene of the shooting was slightly wounded by a stray shot. Johnstone was still in a critical condition today. Connolly, wounded in the head and shoulders, was noticeably hurt.

Morgan, who pleaded not guilty, collapsed in his cell when told what he had done. He said he remembered none of his acts yesterday afternoon. His case was continued to October 2 and he was taken to the Dedham jail.

EXHIBITION AT THE AUDITORIUM

The Middlesex North Agricultural Society again extends a cordial and free invitation to the public of Lowell to attend the exhibit of farm and home products, fruits, vegetables, preserves, food, flowers, etc., which is to be held under its auspices at the Lowell Memorial Auditorium, Thursday, September 23, day and evening. It is hoped liberal contributions will be made to this display by the farmers, housekeepers and others of the Middlesex North district. The products shown will afterward be given to local charities. A musical program will be given during the exhibition.

NAVY RECRUITING STATION

PARIS CORSETS

Some recent corset importations from Paris are made of most elaborate fabrics with higher tops and a more definite waistline than we have seen in many a day.

STREET FROCKS

Many of the smart street frocks of wool are entirely unembroidered in silk lines or elaborately beaded in rather large wooden beads.

Ford Plants to Resume Operations

DETROIT, Sept. 22.—A feeling of relief pervaded business as well as labor circles here today as three of the largest industrial plants in the Detroit area—those of the Ford Motor Co.—resumed operations after a week of idleness. Approximately 70,000 Ford employees were under orders to resume work on their former schedules and between 30,000 and 35,000 workers of other concerns which shut down when the Ford suspension closed up their market, were preparing to reopen. All Ford units, including plants in many other cities of the country, are expected to be running on a normal schedule by Monday.

dies, and all must know that when our sons and daughters are at the Auditorium they are in an atmosphere which our mother city has taken pains to keep pure and clean.

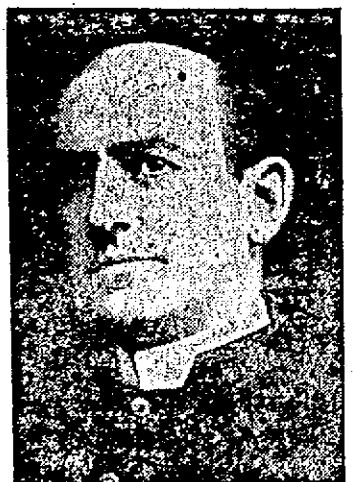

"Mr. chairman and gentlemen of the commission:
"On behalf of the city of Lowell, I accept the Lowell Memorial Auditorium and again I tender to you the people's thanks."

"The Choral society then sang "The Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah." Under the leadership of Mr. E. B. Wood, the work was impressively given.

Benediction Pronounced

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Appleton Grannis, rector of St. Anne's, as follows:

"Almighty God, who in former times didst lead our fathers forth into a wealthy place, we yield Thee hearty thanks for all that Thou didst for them and art doing for the land to which they came. May we always remember them in Thee and be grateful to them through Thee. We remember that their communion was to eat their bread in exile, their sacrament was to pour out their blood for others. We remember them as brave warriors, far-seeing statesmen and incorruptible patriots. And we give Thee thanks for them. We remember those of a later day, who spared not their lives that our land might be one, prophets and martyrs of our country's unity. And we give Thee thanks for them. We remember those who in the great war willingly laid down their lives to preserve us and that our liberties might be saved inviolate. And we give Thee thanks for them. Give Thy grace, we humbly beseech Thee, to us of this generation, that we may always prove ourselves a people mindful of Thy favor and glad to do Thy will. Bless our land with honorable industry, sound learning and pure manners. Defend our liberties; preserve our unity; save us from violence, discord and confusion, from pride and arrogance, and from every evil way. Fashion into one happy people the multitudes brought hither out of many kindreds and tongues.

"Fill with the spirit of wisdom those whom we entrust with the authority of government, that there may be peace at home and that we may keep our place among the nations of the earth. We ask Thy blessing on those who have assembled this night. Keep them under thy protection from all things that may hurt them both in soul and body. The Exiled Emperor Exposes His Innermost Thoughts to the World

KAISER'S MEMOIRS

The Man Tells:

"Still others say the Emperor should have killed himself. That was made impossible by my firm Christian beliefs. And would not people have exclaimed: 'How cowardly. Now he shirks all responsibility by committing suicide.' This alternative was also eliminated because

(Alluding to the choice of Prince William of Wied as King of Albania): "It was particularly unpleasant to me that a German Prince should make a fool of himself there . . . the ambitious, mystically excited wife of the Prince saw in Albania the fulfillment of her wishes. And 'what woman wishes God wishes.'"

(Alluding to the educational methods of Germany before the Kaiser "reformed" them): "This degradation is all the more difficult to understand in view of the fact that the youth of Germany, although it was impaired in health by overstudy and not so toughened by sport as the English, achieved brilliant feats in the World war such as were nowhere equalled before."

"The road to compromise has been my road both in domestic and foreign politics."

He declares that when Bismarck's son conducted the foreign office his rudeness was such that when anybody left him "their coat tails stood right out behind them."

The Ex-Kaiser snapped walking in his garden.

The Emperor Says:

"Professor Roland Usher, the American, talked out of school and conclusively proved at whose door lies the guilt of the World war . . . America—or rather President Wilson—was resolved probably from the start, certainly from 1915—to array herself against Germany and to fight."

"The Prince (Bismarck) gave away to a violent fit of anger. He spoke about 'family dictation in England,' of interference from that quarter which must cease; how the Crown Prince and Emperor Frederick had been ordered about and influenced by his mother-in-law, wife, etc."

"I stuck to my ideas, adducing in support of them the maxim of Frederick the Great, 'I wish to be King of the Rabble.'"

"I refused to abdicate and declared that I would gather troops together and return with them in order to help the government to maintain order in the land."

"Thus the decision as to my going or staying, as to my renunciation of the Imperial Crown and retention of the Royal Crown of Prussia, was summarily snatched from me. The army was shaken to the core by the erroneous belief that its King had abandoned it at the most critical moment of all."

ACCEPTS CALL TO
LOWELL CHURCH

Rev. Tonight is Sunday school night and the meeting will prove of especial interest to children and teachers. A large attendance is looked for.

SHE'S PRIDE OF U. S. NAVY
Miss Emma Scott Stitt, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Edward Rhodes will head the list of navy debutantes at Washington this season.

"Our bathroom became a problem"

"Bob says that I'm the best housekeeper in New England. That's not true, of course,—but I am sure there isn't a more particular one in the world. Imagine how I felt when my spic-and-span little bathroom developed an odor which we couldn't get rid of.

"It wasn't really objectionable, but it was always noticeable. We had the plumbing inspected. There was nothing wrong with it. I scrubbed and scrubbed and scrubbed. I used ammonia and lye and all the home-ried compounds—everything I could think of. It didn't do a bit of good. I was simply miserable.

"Bob came in with a grin one evening. 'Trust mere man sometimes,' he said—'I think we've found the remedy for the bathroom.' We had. Bob had brought home our first bottle of Sylpho-Nathol.

"I wouldn't have thought it possible that anything as easy to use could make that room fresh and sweet again in such a short time. It was almost miraculous. I wouldn't be without Sylpho-Nathol for anything. And I have found so many other necessary uses for it—it has freshened up the whole house."

For many years, thousands of thorough New England housekeepers have used Sylpho-Nathol day in, day out.

In mop-water, it assures the cleanliness that keeps families healthy. It is a necessary safeguard for sinks and drains; for damp, musty, hard-to-get-at places; for cellars; for fly-breeding garbage receptacles. And, of course, it should be used regularly around the bathroom fixtures—and as a flush for the closet bowl.

Sylpho-Nathol is 4½ times stronger than carbolic acid—yet is as safe to have in the house as a cake of scouring soap. It cannot hurt your skin. It comes in four handy sizes, 16c, 36c, 65c, $1.25. Most good grocers and druggists have it. If yours hasn't, he can get it. Just ask for it by the name—"Sylpho-Nathol."

DISTRIBUTION OF COAL

Dealers to Supply Only Regular Customers, Says Phelan

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—James J. Phelan, emergency fuel administrator for Massachusetts, yesterday sent to 300 fuel distributors and 750 dealers throughout the state copies of rules and regulations effective today in an effort to "secure an equitable distribution of coal for the citizens of Massachusetts."

Dealers, the regulations set forth, are to provide coal only to regular customers, while persons having no regular dealers are to be referred to the local distributors. No anthracite coal is to be delivered to hotels, clubs, apartment houses, office buildings, theatres or other places of amusement, factories or mercantile establishments. No anthracite coal is to be delivered to customers having on hand a 30-day supply, and deliveries to each customer are to be limited to a supply for 30 days, except in cases where a 30-day supply would constitute less than one ton.

No restrictions are placed upon delivery of bituminous coal nor on deliveries of buckwheat and smaller sizes of anthracite. No restrictions are placed on the burning of wood or fuel oil, or on the delivery of dealers receiving fuel in carload lots are ordered to unload the cars within 24 hours.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By the Theatre's Own Press Agents.

THE STRAND

Eight canoes were wrecked during the filming of one of the several thrilling scenes in the screen presentation of "The Strand" this week. Miss Virginia Valli and Josef Swickard were in constant danger as they shot the rapids in their fragile craft. The picture throughout is a real thriller. House Palmer, Matt Moore and others of screen note are also in the cast. Gladys Walton in "Top of the Morning" and a good comedy offering help to round out a truly commendable bill.

H. F. KELTH'S THEATRE

There are only a few more opportunities in which to see "Wild Canary," that funny play which is appearing at the H. F. Kelth theatre, this week. Mahoney will rate up with the best of comedians. "The Royal Vagabond" five makers of good music. Top off the bill exceedingly well and Marshall Montgomery, the ventriloquist, he easily the top-notch in his particular line of work. Bronson & Edwards, the pantomime comedians; Joe Altonah, xylophonist; Mason & Gwynne and Sultan complete the excellent bill.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
Florida Swanson in "Her Gilded Cage," and "The Seventh Day," starring Richard Barthelmess, are the feature attractions now playing at the Merrimack Square theatre. Both of them are well worth seeing.

RIALTO THEATRE

"The Jack Rider," heralded as the most daring and most enthralling picture ever screened at the Rialto theatre, is the feature of a varied program which opens at the Rialto theatre this afternoon. It is booked for Friday and Saturday and is bound to draw a large audience. Other pictures which deserve merit on the same program are the third episode of "The Jungle Goddess," a Merrie comedy, "Step This Way" and a juvenile comedy, "Kid Love." Don't fail to go and see it.

SUNDAY AT THE STRAND

"Our Own" Charles Barton will be featured on the vaudeville program at the Strand for Sunday. Mr. Barton is well and favorably known to the theatre and vaudeville followers of this community. He was associated with the local stock company for a season and more recently filled a successful engagement at Pittsburgh. His vaudeville offering will surely meet with the approval of all lovers of the clean and clever entertainment. Then there will be Eugene Bennett, the Irish tenor, assisted by a trio, in Irish song. The picture feature will be "Suspicious Wives."

$200,000 FOR RELIEF OF AMERICANS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—An appropriation of $200,000 for relief of Americans in Smyrna, recommended by President Harding, was voted yesterday by the senate. It was included in a deficiency bill and must yet be approved by the house.

Latest reports from Maj. C. Clavin Davis, in charge of American Red Cross relief operations at Smyrna, indicate repatriation of refugees to their homes in Asia Minor is impossible now and that the only solution is to move them to Europe.

With the aid of American business men and American institutions in Smyrna, Maj. Davis reports, he is finding it possible to provide for the temporary necessities of many refugees out of the $25,000 fund made available. Admiral Bristol, replying yesterday to a state department request, reported as follows:

"Dr. Reed, Professors Laurence, Moremen, Seyler and Bourguin, at Smyrna; Mrs. Reed and children, Mrs.

Blrigo and children, Mrs. Caldwell and children, Mrs. Laurence and children, Miss Mills, Miss Morley and Miss Gordon at Athens, Mr. Gitchell and Miss Way at Constantinople, and Dr. and Mrs. MacLachlan on board the British battleship King George."

The American Red Cross is caring for about 1000 naturalized Americans at Athens and Saloniki.

Suggestions in press dispatches that Great Britain would welcome the United States in the conference on the problems of the Dardanelles brought the statement from administration officials yesterday that possible American participation is being given no consideration in Washington.

COOK WILL DECIDE BALLOT PROBLEM

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook is expected soon to announce his decision as to the legality of placing on the ballot in Boston representative districts at the state election the question of instructing successful candidates to support at the coming session of the general court the proposition of "equal pay to women school teachers with men for equal work." The secretary already has ruled unofficially that the question was one of "public policy" and as such was entitled to a place on the ballot. The Boston finance commission and the Boston school committee have protested that was not a question of public policy. As a result of the protest a hearing was held before the state ballot law commission. Judge Sullivan appeared for the finance commission, and E. L. Briggs for the Boston School Men's Economic association. They opposed placing the question on the ballot. William

GALLI-CURCI CONCERT

Everything Points to Record Breaking Sale of Tickets for Big Concert

Shortly after noon today the advance sale for the concert by Madam Galli-Curci passed the $3000 mark. The public sale opens tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and everything points to a record-breaking sale. The manager of the concert is optimistic about a sell-out.

Who is the greatest box office attraction in the world today? Madam Galli-Curci who has amassed every record made in this section of New England. Only Wall Street can appreciate the volume of business Galli-Curci has been doing. Last year she earned five times as much as President Harding. Her last two concerts at the Metropolitan New York produced a total of $51,750.50 without war taxes. Her two most recent recitals at the Auditorium in Chicago yielded $18,977, a total of $70,758.50, or an average of over $10,000 a concert. Though she has had 19 New York appearances and 13 Chicago appearances, last season the demand for her increases steadily. The last Philadelphia recital saw a capacity house and 300 on the stage. In Buffalo, last season, 200 sat close to her while 300 stood. In Toronto the chitlins house was sold out six hours before the doors were opened. In Montreal when the multitude found the doors closed, they rushed the police and simply forced a way in.

The Grand Rapids armory was too small for the crowd that would hear Galli-Curci. Many times she accommodated in the officers' quarters and the stables of the building. Columbus, O., tells the same story—213 stage seats were sold and the standees were so numerous that the fire department closed the doors. At Detroit the receipts were $8,117.50, her seventh appearance in that city. In Shanghai, a small Pennsylvania city of 21,000, last season the box office took in $6500.

On Friday night, April 28, she sang "Travlers" with the Metropolitan Opera company in Atlanta, Ga., to a house full of the singing capacity, while hundreds were turned away. Speculators were offered as high as $50 for a single ticket. Receipts for that evening were over $23,000 and were the highest for the 12 years that the Metropolitan company has been visiting Atlanta. All of the records made by Caruso went by the boards that evening.

During last March and April Madam Galli-Curci made an extensive tour of the Pacific coast and tremendous audiences greeted her from Vancouver, two Los Angeles and Seattle concerts were sold out far in advance of her arrival and in Portland, Ore., the mail order sale was over $7000. In San Francisco, March 19, Galli-Curci gave a concert to over 9000 people at the Auditorium, which netted $18,516, or a new record for the city. The press and public vied with each other in superlative praise of the diva and she was compelled to give 14 encores before the audience dispersed.

And so the record runs—sell out houses everywhere and from the looks of things now, a sell-out house will greet the great singer at the Metropolitan Auditorium on Friday, Oct. 6.

McMasters represented the High School Women's association and 5000 petitioners, and urged the question be submitted to the voters. The commission decided it had no jurisdiction and advised the matter be taken up with the secretary of state.

Secretary Cook held a hearing in the afternoon at which Messrs. Sullivan and Briggs repeated their arguments and were supported by School Committee member Lane. Mr. McMasters rehearsed his arguments and was supported by Francis X. Tirrell.

Secretary Cook said he would inform interested parties of his decision in ample time before election for either party to petition the supreme court for an injunction to prevent the question going on the ballot or for a mandamus to compel it to be there.

DORCHESTER MAN KILLED BY AUTO

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—Running across Tremont street, near the junction of Broadway Extension, in an effort to catch a car, Morris Lezar, 45 years old, married, of 156 Talbot avenue, Dorchester, was fatally injured when he was run over by an automobile truck owned by Dennis Mahoney of 24 Milton street, Readville. The truck was operated by John P. Mahoney, of the same address, who was held by the police of the Langrange street station on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Lezar, on being struck by the truck was thrown forward a few feet and the left front wheel passed over his head. He was removed to the City hospital and on arrival was pronounced dead by Dr. Rowe. The body was buried.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Adv.

SLAUGHTER OF CHILDREN

BY AUTOS MUST STOP

(Special to The Sun.) BOSTON, Sept. 22.—The slaughter of children on the highways of Massachusetts by automobilists must stop. Police officials must stop "pig-pen-holing" three-fourths of the complaints against speedsters the state registrar of motor vehicles, Frank A. Goodwin, announced today in a statement in which he "handed it out" in fine style to influential persons who are using their influence to interfere with the law in the prosecution of violators of the motor vehicle laws.

"The alarming increase in the number of children that are being killed on our highways by motor vehicles is a matter of great concern and requires immediate attention," says Mr. Goodwin. "A great burden rests upon the parents and the school teachers to keep constantly before their children the dangers of the highway, but the principal burden rests upon the police."

"In the last three months, July, August and September, there have been 72 children killed. In the same period last year there were only 51 killed. The great increase in the number of motor vehicles indicates the immediate necessity of slowing up traffic in all congested centers. "In a great many of the state's cities and towns, the police have traps and officers detailed for the purpose of prosecuting those who are speeding. So far, the police officers have been doing their duty. There is not much hope for a reduction in the deaths of children, however, if the 'higher up' police officials pigeon-hole three-fourths of the complaints. It is a notorious fact that after the officers bring the names of automobile offenders into the station house to the chief, those who have political pull or wealth or excited anger, standing immediately get in touch with the police with the result that only the poor and friendless are put into court, while the rest are permitted to continue crushing out the lives of the children in the streets."

"There is only one remedy for this and that is publicity. I hope that the newspapers will do all they can to create a public opinion that will compel the police of this commonwealth to enforce the motor vehicle laws impartially, regardless of wealth, pull, or social standing." HOYT.

CAVE-IN KILLS CLINTON MAN

Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxatives

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way

THIS public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mildest, most easily tolerated laxative obtainable, and not a drastic physic that upsets them for days afterwards. As over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people of this country must believe that this mild vegetable compound is the proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt waters and powders that dry up the blood; constipating drugs in candy form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and gripping.

The best constipation remedy is the one that moves the bowels without shock to your system, and such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian penna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and has been satisfactorily sold for 30 years. Unlike the harsher physics it does not produce a habit, and increased doses are not required; in fact, it so trains the stomach muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

Many take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin once a week as a healthy laxative. Others use it only when required, as, for example, Mrs. J. W. Dorroughs of Little Rock, Ark., who finds it equally valuable for herself and the children, and Mr. Eans S. Costa of Watonsville, Cal., whose family uses it regularly. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in constipation, biliousness, piles, headaches, hollow complexion, and to break up fevers and colds. A generous-size bottle can be had at any drug store, and it costs only about a cent a dose!

STAGING GIVES WAY, PAINTERS INJURED

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 22.—Alexander, Philip Edmund and Edward Foley, painters at work on the Star-bird building on Main street, plunged 30 feet to the ground yesterday afternoon when the staging upon which they were working gave way.

Fourier received a broken ankle, but Edmund and Foley were unhurt, except for severe shaking up. The sun softening the tar roof on which the staging boots were fastened caused the accident.

WINSOL

A GUARANTEE OF QUALITY

there's bound to be some slowing up of the vital forces, but for the past 90 years SANALT, the Sensible Tonic, has helped New England people grow old happily and healthily—relieving them of the dizzy headaches, insomnia, indigestion, nervousness and general debility from which so many elderly people suffer.

This safe-and-sane vegetable reconstructive tonic, prepared from a physician's prescription, acts gently on both secretive and excretive organs, and by stimulating digestion and assimilation of food and the elimination of waste matter, Sanalt purifies the blood and revitalizes the whole time-worn body. Sanalt is perfectly safe for anyone to take, as it contains no opiates, narcotics, nor other harmful drugs.

Read what it has done for Mr. Herman Scheld, an expert pattern weaver, whose home is in Clinton, Mass:

"I am sixty-nine years old and I have felt every year of it. I seemed to be generally out of sorts. Had headache, was constipated and was rapidly becoming nervous. I could not sleep and every one knows what that means when a man is past sixty. I had never really thought of myself as getting old until this trouble came.

"A friend gave me just a few doses of Sanalt. While I could not say it really did me any good, there was something about that medicine that made me have faith in it, so I bought a bottle with the result that I am now fit and feel more like forty-five than sixty-nine. I feel better every way, simply because Sanalt seems to have put my whole system to working right. I eat heartily and enjoy my food, sleep as well as I ever did and am back on the job and enjoying my work.

"I believe that a great many people who think they are commencing to suffer from old age would feel all right if they used a few bottles of Sanalt."

You can get Sanalt, or any of the other famous Winsol products, at any drug store. For Winsol preparations are one line of trade-marked proprietary remedies sold by both Winsol Agents and non-agent druggists. No need to accept substitutes. Any druggist can get Winsol remedies for you through his jobber.

NEUROPATHIC DROPS, the great emergency medicine, and CERIZANE BALSAM, for coughs, are two Winsol remedies that should be kept in every home. Ask your druggist about them.

Balloonist Who Fell Into River Rescued

DOBBS FERRY, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Hanging head down from a balloon in which he had been making midnight ascensions at a firemen's carnival here, John Smith, of Yonkers, early today fell with the craft from a height of 1000 feet into the Hudson river. He was rescued by three men who had watched the erratic course of the balloon's red guide light and who fought a strong river current for an hour in a rowboat to get to him.

Remove Americans From Constantinople

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press)—Several American organizations, including the Standard Oil Co., and the Near East Relief, are devising plans for the security of their workers here or their removal in the event the situation warrants. The Standard Oil Co. has ordered the steamer Wimpnam, now at Saloniki, to proceed to Constantinople and stand by in case it is found necessary to remove the personnel of the company and their families from the capital.

INDICTED FOR ARSON BY THE GRAND JURY

Armed with warrants issued following secret indictments by the grand jury for arson, State Atty. Marshall Everett W. Shumway and Lieut. Martin Maher of the local police, arrested late yesterday afternoon Costas Malheiros and James Nichopoulos, both of Draut.

It is claimed that the two men owned the old Tisho house in Collinsville at the time of a suspicious fire there. In the early morning of July 1, Marshall Shumway conducted an examination of the building immediately after the fire and found incriminating evidence of arson. He found that the plaster had been torn from the walls in several places and these orifices filled with sawdust and shavings. He also discovered what appeared to be fuses leading to this inflammable material. At that time Malheiros and Nichopoulos were arrested and faced Associate Justice Pitman in district court on the morning of July 3. There was no complaint against the men at the time, the district officers saying that as far as they were concerned there would probably be no complaint brought against the men. After the dismissal of the two men, Marshall Shumway announced that he would report the fire to the state authorities as a case of deliberate arson. He came to Lowell yesterday armed with the warrants for the arrest of the two men which had been made out after the men had been secretly indicted by the grand jury for the crime of arson. With Lieut. Maher he went to the mills in Collinsville where Malheiros was arrested and later James Nichopoulos was arrested at the Merrimack mills. The two men were taken to the local police station where they were locked up.

DECISION ON RAILROAD INJUNCTION TOMORROW

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—With the railroad world waiting for the decision he promised by 11 a. m. tomorrow, Judge James H. Wilkerson in the preparation of his ruling on the government's strike injunction, was without any suggestions from Attorney General Daugherty today for modification of the restraining order issued Sept. 1. Mr. Daugherty at the close of the hearing, explained the government position.

"This order," he said, "speaks the last word for the government for society and civilization; for peace and fairness, for liberty and protection, with firmness and, if necessary, with force."

Until he makes his ruling, the restraining order issued Sept. 1 and extended for a second 10 days period remains in effect, Judge Wilkerson announced.

Burn Prohibition Literature and Books for Light

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 22.—Marooned on the mainland meadows in darkness for four hours when a suburban trolley car was partly submerged by water, 20 members of the Women's Christian Temperance union, returning from a convention in Absecon last night, were forced to burn prohibition literature and prayer books in order to have temporary illumination.

The trolley had proceeded about one-third of the way over the meadowland, when without warning, all the lights went out and the car stopped dead in a flood of water that gushed about the wheels. A rescue car brought the delegates here.

NEW YORKERS

CAN PLAY TENNIS

"New Yorkers certainly can play tennis," was the most common expression heard about St. John's Prep. yesterday when the results of the junior fall tournament were announced.

William Barnes, D. Vastor and D. O'Brien all from the Metropolls were the victors in the finals.

The tournament which was started a week ago has caused considerable interest among the tennis enthusiasts as to the winners. Excellent playing was featured throughout by all the contestants and it was just a matter of the "breaks" that finally determined those to whom the tennis medals should be awarded.

Several boys of exceptional ability were discovered among the contestants. Besides the winners, Nicholas Grace, J. McGuane, J. Doyle and W. Mulcahy were far above par.

Gold, bronze and silver medals will be awarded to the winners of the tournament. It is planned to present the medals at an early date.

The senior fall tennis tournament is now under way and will be closed by Monday, G. Stadel, of the varsity team, E. Bernardin, F. McGuane and G. O'Neill are showing first class playing and it is expected there will be some lively competition while the finals are being played.

There are 10 entered in the senior tournament against 24 who were listed among the juniors.

BENEFIT DANCE FOR CAR SHOP STRIKERS

The benefit dance for the strikers of the Boston & Maine cars, which was held in Associated hall last evening, was largely attended despite other attractions in the city and the committee in charge is elated over the success of the affair, for it was felt that owing to the dedication of the Auditorium the strikers would not be very large.

There were close to 500 couples on the floor and all thoroughly enjoyed the program.

In the early part of the evening concert numbers were given by the orchestra and later general dancing was started and continued till a reasonable hour. The committee in charge of arrangements consisted of Walter H. Chandler, chairman; Bernard Gilbo, Thomas Dinane and Charles Lynch.

"Dear Sir:—The growth of twilight baseball, which affords an opportunity for thousands of people to witness good ball games in the evening, is very gratifying to its supporters. There has been some action for the formation of a statewide twilight baseball organization. As the first step in this work we desire to secure a complete list of the stronger teams in the state. We understand that there are a number of semi-professional and amateur teams in your community and would like you to send us the names of these teams and also the names and addresses of their managers."

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Sir Charles Santley, for decades probably the best known and most popular singer in the English concert and oratorio stage, died yesterday in his 87th year. Fined $100 for Clash With Rawlings

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Walter J. (Rabbit) Maranville, shortstop of the Pittsburgh National League club, was today fined $100 for his encounter with Second Baseman Rawlings of the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday. President John A. Heydler of the National League, in announcing the fine, stated that the Rabbit would have been suspended but for the fact that Rawlings provoked the attack by un-called-for remarks. The trouble arose in the third inning of the game yesterday when Maranville, after singling, was forced at second by Carey. Rawlings attempted to complete a double play at first and, throwing wild, complained that the Pirate shortstop had interfered with his throw to first.

Walter was allowed to have a couple more days of fishing and swimming until a special seat for him is completed.

YOUTHFUL AUTO THIEVES COME TO GRIEF

Four youths received stiff sentences in the juvenile court this morning when they were adjudged guilty of the theft of an automobile last Saturday night, the property of Mitchell Evans, the foreman of the Chase Wall Paper Co. on Appleton street. Three of the boys were given a term at the boys' school at Shirley and the fourth was fined $25. Two of them appealed the Shirley sentence but the other could not as he was under a previously suspended sentence to that institution.

According to the story told by the police, the boys took the machine from Paige street, near the Y.W.C.A., where it was parked last Saturday night, and started in the direction of Lawrence, traveling over the First street boulevard. Officers Dwyer and Greiner noticed the boys in the machine and surmised that something was wrong. They commandeered a passing truck and gave chase to the machine. The officers gained on the car and when at a point beyond the First street bridge the boys jumped from the machine and allowed the car to run off on its own power. Luckily the car struck a fence and stopped in its deliverless progress or it would have plunged into the river.

Later the officers recalled one of the boys and he told the officers of the names of the other three youths who were in the party. They were rounded up by the police and appeared in the session of the juvenile court this morning for trial.

THE MUTUAL SAVINGS BANK

IDEA
First, is to protect the savings of the wage earner and people of moderate means from loss from any cause.
Second, to invest these savings in securities that pay sure and regular interest.

The Massachusetts Savings Bank Laws carefully state just what kind of securities the Savings Banks can invest in.

All interest paid to the bank on these investments goes to the depositors after paying expenses, taxes and a stipulated sum has been set aside in the guarantee fund.
